Britain Orders Freedom for Gandhi

FEAR 'HOLY MAN' MAY REFUSE TO LEAVE PRISON

Revolt Aids Also Granted Liberty.

POONA, India, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Once again India's future destiny appears to rest upon the caprice or determination of the frail and mystical ascetic known as Mahatma Gandhi. At New Delhi today Viceroy Lord Irwin decreed the unconditional release from prison of Gandhi and other members of the working committee of the all India national congress, to take effect probably tomorrow. But the question agitating the officials of Yeravda prison here tonight was:

Will Gandhi accept?

Wants 60,000 "Martyrs" Freed.

The bespectacled little leader was astonished today when informed of the plan to release him and has already made known that he would prefer to remain a prisoner unless all those whom he calls his "fellow martyrs" are liberated with him. These total around 60,000.

If he definitely refuses to leave the prison, the British authorities will face the embarrassing obligation of evicting him. And if this occurs, so observers believe, it may jeopardize the entire movement for bringing peace in the Nationalist civil disobedience campaign, for Gandhi's supporters think he will turn a deaf ear to Prime Minister MacDonald's entreaties for civil quiet while any members of the congress remain in jail.

Even this broad and vital question, however, was not the only one confronting the authorities tonight.

Fear Mob Demonstrations.

Another problem was whether to spirit Gandhi away secretly at night, thus avoiding mob demonstrations which might follow his daylight appearance, or give the Nationalist chieftain his liberty tomorrow and allow him to go whither he pleases. In this they would take the chance that the leader, by his own presence and personality, could control the passions of the crowds which undoubtedly will assemble to hail him as a free man.

The British prison officers and wardens, who have had the responsibility of caring for Gandhi for more than eight months, were made happy by the fact that they will soon be able to breathe easier. Although they found Gandhi exceptionally pleasant and amiable to deal with personally, the Nationalist leader gave them constant anxiety by his strange habits and especially his experiments with different forms of diet.

His latest idiosyncrasy was to "refuse to allow the body to coöperate with animal matter," which meant giving up even milk. Following this he existed entirely on a full handful of cracked corn and birdseed flavored with California raisins, one of the few foreign products he has not boycotted.

Holy Man's Health Good.

Yet despite his self-imposed privations, Gandhi's health is described by prison physicians as good.

Late tonight a tense drama was enacted in this little ancient capital, the theme being that only a half dozen persons knew that Gandhi would be released before another day passed.

Slumbering within the gray and gaunt granite walls of the prison lay Gandhi and 3,000 other prisoners—the first already aware of his fate, the latter in ignorance of the fact, that after tomorrow they will lose one whom they call their Messiah.

Throughout the day and night the vicinity of the prison, which is not unlike Sing Sing, was deserted, because the Indian public, in the face of repeated postponements of Gandhi's liberation, had at last lost hope that the famous seer of the common people would really win his liberty.

Gandhi himself lay asleep in the open courtyard of the jail, with a full moon shedding its light on his frail, half naked body and giving his ascetic

Thirty years ago a luxury.

Today a necessity.

ROBBERS HOLD 3 VICTIMS IN HOME FOR THREE HOURS

Three robbers, accompanied by a pretty girl, took possession of the house of Christ Bauer, 11400 Normal boulevard, late last night and held him and two men guests prisoner until 2 o'clock this morning, when Bauer's wife and several friends returned from driving other guests to their homes. The robbers took $60 in cash and two shotguns.

Bauer, a loop cigar store owner, and his wife had given a party at their home. Among the guests were Edward Krenzinger, 11632 Harvard avenue; Arthur Tardiff, 11952 Yale avenue; Fire Lieutenant George Murdock, 11438 Normal boulevard, and his wife, Marie. Att 11 o'clock Lieut. Murdock and Mrs. Bauer, driving their own cars, took half a dozen guests home. With them was Mrs. Murdock.

Shortly afterward the bandits appeared at the Bauer home and, on the pretense of asking direction to a garage, gained admittance. They taped the wrists of Bauer, Krenzinger, and Tardiff behind them and waited three hours for the return of Mrs. Bauer and the Murdocks. When the three appeared the robbers snatched the women's purses and fled.

$3,000 GEM LOST BY KRESGE GIRL; POLICE FIND IT

Less than a half hour after Miss Catherine Kresge, daughter of Mrs. A. E. Kresge of Detroit, had reported the loss of a $3,000 diamond bracelet in the Chicago Stadium last night the jewelry was recovered and returned to her. In company with Warren Kaine of New York Miss Kresge had attended the hockey game at the Stadium. The bracelet was found beneath the seats they occupied by Detectives David Mulcrone and Herbert Schoenbeck of the Warren avenue station. According to H. E. Kresge, Miss Kresge's brother, with whom she is staying at the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street, they are distant relatives of Sebastian S. Kresge, the 5 and 10 cent store magnate of Detroit.

Armenian, 109, Claiming 78 Wives, Dies Alone 'in Peace'

Alexander De Nooryan, an Armenian, who claimed to be 109 years old, died yesterday of heart trouble at the rooming house where he lived at 1204 West Washington boulevard. He came to this country alone five years ago, telling the landlady, Mrs. Ruth Scholes, that he desired to spend the remainder of his life in peace. He claimed to have had 78 wives.

20 Policemen Trail Bandits in Loop Killing

Determined efforts were being made yesterday to run down the three masked bandits who killed one guard and seriously wounded another in an attempted robbery of the Hillman Pure Food store, 30 West Washington street, Saturday night. Capt. Willard Malone, of the Central station had twenty detectives assigned to this task.

The police were hampered by the inability of any of the witnesses to identify the bandits through rogue's gallery pictures, due to the fact the robbers' faces were concealed by mufflers as masks. The murder and attempted robbery took place so swiftly that none of the witnesses got a good look at the gunmen. Max Axelrod, 23 years old, 1606 South Trumbull avenue, was instantly killed, and Eugene Toro, 21 years old, 146 North Parkside avenue, was shot in the head almost immediately after the robbers had commanded "Hands up!"

Made Quick Getaway.

"The robbers must have been out of the building in less than a minute after the shooting," Capt. Malone observed. "The instant the alarm was given the doors were automatically closed and their escape would have been barred had they not been outside by that time. This quick exit on their part indicates they were familiar with the layout of the store, its burglar alarm system and all the doors.

"They probably knew about Miss Verna McCrystal's usual custom of collecting all the money downstairs and taking it up to the offices on the third floor just before the place was closed. They knew when and where to accost her, and the robbery would have succeeded only for the resistance of Axelrod and Toro."

The captain said every employe of the company was to be questioned about the suspicions they might have of the identities of the robbers. He believed one or more of them had worked for the Hillman company recently and present employes were to be asked to mention every ex-employe seen about the place in recent weeks or months.

Gun Is Seen as Clew.

The bandits dropped a sawed off shotgun on the second floor as they fled downstairs two floors to safety. No information was divulged as to whether or not finger prints were found on it, but Capt. Malone remarked that undoubtedly it had been used in other robberies. In each instance where a gun of that kind has been used recently the descriptions of the bandits were being compared on the possibility that in this way the Hillman bandits could be traced. A scarf dropped by one of the bandits was regarded as another clew.

Herbert A. Loeb, secretary of the Hillman company, who offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the bandits, ordered that no expense be spared in an effort to save the life of the wounded guard, Toro, and an emergency operation was performed yesterday afternoon at the county hospital. Mr. Loeb said he would make arrangements for the funeral of Axelrod.

Meanwhile police were ordered to furnish additional protection to loop stores.

Train and Ambulance Win Race with Stork

A train and a police ambulance ran a relay race with the stork yesterday and the stork lost. Mrs. Dora Thomas, 27 years old, of Emmett, Idaho, was on her way to Chicago on a North Western train from Florence, Wis., where she had been visiting her mother. Word of her condition was sent by the conductor of the train to a Travelers' Aid society attendant at the North Western station here. Patrolmen P. F. Kelly and Thomas Lawler met the train with the ambulance and set a speed record from the station to the county hospital, where a 7½ pound girl was born shortly after their arrival.

CANADIAN BOAT HIT BY SHELLING OF COAST GUARD

Surprised Unloading Off Sandy Hook.

New York, Jan. 25.—[Special.]—A shout from a lookout aboard the coast guard cutter 145, a hasty weighing of anchors among four vessels outlined in the glare of a searchlight and a rum chase was on in the waters of the lower bay. It ended when a one pound shell from the government craft tore through the pilot house of the Josephine K., a schooner of Nova Scotian registry, and brought her up short with her master, a citizen of Canada, dying, half buried amid the débris of the wrecked superstructure.

All this occurred Saturday night, but none of the story was told until today, when Capt. William P. Cluett, the skipper of the Josephine K., died in the Marine hospital on Staten Island. Soon afterward his ship, together with the tugboat Dauntless 6 and her tow, the garbage scow Brooklyn of Newark, was brought in off Red Hook flats with a prize crew of sixteen and a cargo of liquor said to be worth between $75,000 and $100,000.

Crews Held Incommunicado.

The crews of all the captured craft were held incommunicado, below decks awaiting arraignment tomorrow morning in Brooklyn Federal court. Their story of the five mile chase with its tragic ending will be told before an official board of inquiry at the custom house, when the commander of the government rum chaser will have to account for his drastic action.

Meanwhile, official reports of the incident held that the discovery of the rum laden ships, the chase and the shooting all took place within the 12 mile limit established by treaty with England. The reports held also that the Canadian vessel, schooner rigged and equipped with oil burning engines powerful enough to send her through the water at two knots better than the government could do, had disregarded three warning blank shells and three solid shots that whistled harmlessly above her forward yardarm.

According to coast guard officials here and in Washington, the Josephine K was notorious as a coastwise rum runner. She had been sighted often loitering suspiciously just outside United States territorial waters, it was said. This was the first time she had been caught in forbidden waters, however.

Scow Used as Sewage Dumper.

What the Dauntless 6 and the scow Brooklyn were doing in such company was not made clear. The tugboat and the scow left Newark Bay at dusk Saturday night on the lowly but respectable mission of transporting the sediment of northern New Jersey sewers to sea. The belief is that the liquor was being transferred aboard the scow. This recalled recent charges that garbage scows of New York City were being used by rum runners.

According to information given out at the Stapleton base, the searchlight of the patrol boat 145 picked out the Josephine K four and one-half miles southeast of the lightship. Bearing down on the schooner and the smaller craft clustered about her, the coast guardsmen saw men run forward to man the windlass. Lines were cast off and the vessels drifted apart.

The schooner started to run. The coast guard gave pursuit and fired three warning shots with a one pounder. As the schooner failed to halt—according to coast guard version—four "solid shots" were fired. The last shell struck the pilot house and carried it way. The Josephine K. hove to and a few minutes later, when the coast guard cutter came alongside the reason was apparent at once to the boarding party.

Captain Struck by Shell.

They found Capt. Cluett, a 39 year old seafaring man from Lunenberg, N. S., lying unconscious beneath the wreckage of the pilot house and the wheel he was manning when the coast guard shell struck his craft. The shell, deflected by the heavy timbers, had struck him in the right leg above the knee and shattered the bone. He died later in a Staten Island hospital.

After taking the schooner the coast guardsmen then captured the tug and scow. The coast guardsmen said they had found 1,200 cases of liquor of the same brand the schooner was carrying stowed away on the scow. There was no liquor on the tug.

The incident caused speculation here and in Washington regarding the attitude the Canadian government would take. It was recalled that the dominion government filed a note of protest through its legation in Washington after the sinking of the I'm Alone, by coast guard vessels in the gulf of Mexico in the spring of 1929 under somewhat similar circumstances.

Mild Weather Holds Land in Drought's Grip

BY PAUL POTTER.

Continued mild, snowless days that have delighted thousands of Chicagoans are bringing gloom to thousands of farmers and truck gardeners. Accumulating weather bureau statistics indicated yesterday that January would set a record for dryness and high temperatures unequaled for more than fifty years.

The Chicago region in 1930 was 9.52 inches short of its normal rainfall of 33 inches a year. W. P. Day, federal weather forecaster, revealed that this area so far this month has had only a little more than half an inch of moisture, compared with the normal January figure of approximately two inches.

Drought Keeps Its Grip.

The same record breaking arid conditions, the records show, are widespread over the country, prolonging last summer's disastrous drought.

Nor was there any prospect for immediate change in the forecast issued last night, which indicated that the partly cloudy skies and moderate temperatures predicted for Chicago for today and tomorrow would be general throughout the middle west.

Based on records of previous years, yesterday's average temperature should have been 24 degrees, the "normal mean" for the day. This is an increase of one degree over the previous day and also the first increase since winter set in, indicating that we have "turned the corner of winter" and that average temperatures from now on should show an upward tendency until midsummer. The actual mean temperature yesterday was 44 degrees, 20 degrees above normal.

Record for 51 Years.

So far this month, records show, the average daily temperature has been 6.9 degrees above normal. Not since 1880 has such a combination of dryness and mild climate occurred in this winter month.

Truck gardeners, whose vegetable producing acreages surround Chicago in Cook and nearby counties, saw themselves facing an unprecedented condition for the planting of spinach and other early crops normally started before the frost is fully out of the ground in late February.

The shortage of needed moisture also is regarded as detrimental to lawns, gardens and other dormant plant life. Veteran Chicago gardeners could make no estimate of the damage from alternate freezing and thawing without a blanket of snow to protest bulbous and other shallow rooted plants, but several of those interviewed said they believed conditions would retard normal spring growth.

Winter Crops Hindered.

According to observers in Illinois, Indiana, and other neighboring states wheat and other winter crops are suffering from drought and exposure, while some isolated cases have been reported in the last week of fruit trees being damaged by sunscald.

In other sections, notably in Kentucky and other south-central states, whole towns are suffering from failures of water supplies.

Crop specialists at the University of Illinois explained that the dry weather last fall had hindered and in some cases prevented germination of wheat and other crops planted for spring harvesting. They said that practically the only hope now for an early spring growth of these crops is heavy snows in the next 60 days which would partly make up for the shortage of moisture.

DIXIE DRY RAIDER AND NEGRO SLAIN IN GUN BATTLE

Scotland Neck, N. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Two men, a deputy sheriff and a Negro, were killed near here late today in a gun battle growing out of an attempt to search the Negro's house for whisky.

Deputy Sheriff J. E. Perry, 42, of Halifax county, died immediately when Grandill Sanders, the Negro, discharged a shotgun at him as he entered Sanders' home and displayed a search warrant. R. E. Allsbrooks, special deputy, shot Sanders to death after the Negro had fired once at him.

Less than three hours after the killings, a coroner's jury exonerated Allsbrooks of blame in connection with the Negro's death by returning a verdict of "justifiable homicide."

Police officials here said a small quantity of mash had been found on Sanders' premises, but no whisky.

Peery had been a deputy for two years. He is survived by his widow and eight children.

Hawks Hops from Ft. Worth to New York in 8½ Hours

New York, Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Frank M. Hawks, transcontinental air record holder, dropped into New York today from Fort Worth, Tex., after making the 1,400 mile trip in eight hours and thirty minutes. His time as near as could be learned, was a new record for the trip.

MYRTLE HIRES LAWYER; FARO MAY BRING SUIT

Mysterious Figures on Card Solved.

The $50,000 faro game scandal involving two leaders of the Deneen Republican organization, Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge and Edward R. Litsinger, entered a new phase last night.

MRS. BLACKLIDGE.

Mrs. Blacklidge, who resigned Saturday as internal revenue collector under Mr. Litsinger's charge that she participated in the swindle that cost him fifty $1,000 bills, engaged Attorney David D. Stansbury to "protect her interests." Mrs. Blacklidge declined to comment on her action.

Mr. Stansbury, when interviewed last night, refused to state exactly what course he contemplated, but indicated he would make an announcement within 24 hours and hinted at the filing of a lawsuit. The lawyer displayed keen interest in a photostatic copy of a penciled memorandum found in the Springfield hotel where Mrs. Blacklidge spent the night preceding the faro game.

Solve Placard Mystery.

Although Mr. Stansbury did not say so, definite proof was found that it was Mrs. Blacklidge herself who wrote out on a placard the simple arithmetical problems constituting the memorandum.

Springfield police had assumed on finding the placard in the Leland hotel room occupied by Roy Burgess, that Burgess, one of the three card sharps now being hunted as purloiners of Litsinger's $50,000, was the writer of the figures.

"This would be significant evidence in a lawsuit," Mr. Stansbury observed, noting the fact that the sums of addition, subtraction and division were all based on a total of $207,500. Mrs. Blacklidge, in relating the swindle story, has fixed $207,000 as the amount the swindlers led her to believe she won.

Wants Time to Study Case.

"Mark you, I'm not announcing any lawsuit," Mr. Stansbury said. "I don't file any suit unless I expect to win it. I was called into this case only late this afternoon and I want time to study it and get the grip of it before I take action."

Mr. Stansbury also had at hand a copy of Mr. Litsinger's six page statement published in the press on Thursday and gave particular attention to the last page, whereon Litsinger expressed his belief that "Mrs. Blacklidge entered into the plan to make this holdup and harbored the thought she could get away with the deal on the basis that I would be afraid to talk or, in other words, be blackmailed into silence."

"A strong statement," the attorney remarked, "and an ill considered one, coming from a man who should know the law."

Called Strong Evidence.

It was learned that Mrs. Blacklidge wrote the penciled memorandum of figures before seeking from Litsinger the $50,000 loan which she needed to get her $207,000 faro "winnings" and which the card sharps seized. Mr. Stansbury was asked whether, in the event of a lawsuit, he would be able to introduce as evidence the memorandum which apparently pertains to the $207,000.

"This is undoubtedly a strong piece of corroborative evidence," he said. "And I'd get it into the record, never fear."

Speaking from a police officer's viewpoint, Chief T. P. Sullivan of Springfield took a similar view. Chief Sullivan spent several hours yesterday studying and analyzing the figures on the memorandum.

"In my view this placard corroborates Mrs. Blacklidge's story," the chief said. "I've been convinced of her sincerity from the start, of course. What impressed me particularly was the fact that, as Mrs. Blacklidge related her experience, she mixed the food with the bad, not trying to gloss over incidents that might harm her.

"The crook, the perjurer, the one trying to hide something, always betrays his guilt by making his story conform too strictly to his own case," Chief Sullivan pointed out. "Mrs. Blackridge told a story that impressed me as coming from the heart. It was straightforward and open, every word."

Discussing other angles of the case, Chief Sullivan revealed for the first time the tale Mrs. Blackridge claims the swindlers told to lure her to Springfield. The yarn brought into the case the name of Col. E. R. Bradley, famous sportsman of Kentucky and Palm Beach and the owner of a racing stable and a Florida casino.

"When Burgess first came to Mrs. Blackridge with the story of the winnings she could get, he claimed the faro was to be played at a $200,000 gambling house four miles outside Springfield," said Chief Sullivan. "Naturally there is no such casino, but Burgess made the story convincing by the embellishment that Col. Bradley had opened the place under official protection for accommodation of the legislators."

Will Leave for Rest.

Tomorrow or on Wednesday, perhaps, Mrs. Blackridge expects to leave the Chicago Memorial hospital for a quiet country place, there to observe with detachment the progress of Mr. Litsinger's avowed purpose to have her indicted for conspiracy in the swindle. This was announced by her physician, Dr. M. L. Weinstein.

Latest indications are that Litsinger's move for prosecution will need to overcome considerable inertia, both in Cook and Sangamon counties. Mr. Litsinger was marking time yesterday while prosecutors of both counties were supposedly seeking to determine whether jurisdiction lay in Chicago or Springfield.

State's Attorney Swanson, to whom Litsinger had written an outline of his version of the case with a request for action, was to receive an opinion on the jurisdiction matter this morning from his assistant, Edward Wilson. There were freely given predictions among the prosecutor's staff that Mr. Wilson's report would place jurisdiction outside Cook county.

The Springfield prosecutor, H. E. Fullenwider, announced he would be unable to act for at least another week, if at all. The Sangamon county office is involved at present in an important murder trial, he said, and less pressing matters must wait. Furthermore there is the conference between himself and Mr. Swanson to be held before any steps can be taken, Mr. Fullenwider reiteraied.

Friends Offer Assistance.

Although her husband left no estate and her resignation deprived her of her $7,500 salary—a sole source of income—Mrs. Blackridge is not altogether without resources, Dr. Weinstein revealed. Since publication of her 1,500 word statement explaining her resignation and reiterating her innocence of the charges leveled against her by Litsinger, the widow has received hundreds of telegrams and letters from friends, offering her every manner of assistance.

"The messages have greatly helped my patient," said Dr. Weinstein. "This faro affair, coming on top of the deaths of her husband and son as well as her own ill health of six months ago, left her in a precarious condition. But the flood of expressions of loyalty pouring into her hospital room has buoyed up her spirits and I feel that with a little further quiet she will become herself again."

Lawyers Offer Aid Free.

The messages, Dr. Weinstein said, included expressions of sympathy from many whom Mrs. Blackridge knew only slightly or not at all, as well as substantial offers of assistance from friends and political associates. Lawyers wrote proffering her their legal services without fee, and a number of wealthy persons, knowing her financial plight, invited her to join their households for as long as she wished.

"To read these messages has been a tonic for her," Dr. Weinstein said. He added that Mrs. Blackridge might accept one of the offers of hospitality proffered her.

SMOOT LATEST SENATE VICTIM OF FLU ATTACK

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, who was 69 this month, has been added to the congressional list of sufferers from influenza.

The veteran legislator, who becomes dean of the senate after March 4 with the retirement of Senator Simmons of North Carolina, was stricken yesterday, and today was under strict orders of his physician to remain in bed until cured.

Senator Smoot went to his office yesterday, but soon found it necessary to return home. He has been working doggedly this session with other Republican leaders to get the necessary appropriation bills through to avoid an extra session.

CURB SPENDING OF POLITICIANS, PLEA OF STRAWN

Business Article Cites Tax Burdens of Trade.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Silas H. Strawn appeals to the cities of the country, in the forthcoming February issue of the Nation's Business, to curb the squandering of taxes and to bridle the professional politician.

SILAS STRAWN.

"Has not the time come when the taxpayer must have more concern about the manner in which his tax contribution is spent?" asks Mr. Strawn. "Have you ever contemplated the stupidity of our people in permitting our municipal machinery to be run by politicians?

"Frequently the source of our trouble in our municipal government is the system. Most of our citizens are content to leave the conduct of the affairs of our great cities, in many instances, to men who have no fundamental qualification for the job.

"The professional politician accepts the system as it is. He believes in 'getting his while the getting is good.' So long as the apathetic, or perhaps selfish, citizen permits the 'getting' to be 'good,' the politician will 'get his.'"

Shows Mounting Costs.

But he also emphasizes the growing cost of government. He quotes the U. S. Chamber of Commerce as reckoning that the "annual cost of government, federal, state and local, rose from three billion dollars in 1913 to 12 billion in 1927" and predicts that it will reach 13½ billion in 1930. The cost of local governments alone, Mr. Strawn says, jumped from two billion in 1913 to 6¼ billion in 1927; and that the bonded indebtedness hopped in the same period from 2 billion to 10¾ billion.

Where Will Burden Cease?

"In the 15 year period, governmental expenditures have increased more than four times, while the population has increased but 15 per cent," says Mr. Strawn. "How much larger can the tax burden become before confiscation?"

"In the past five years real estate has been boomed throughout the country. Loans have been placed on inflated valuations and buildings constructed at high costs. Now that the depression has come, owners cannot pay the loans or meet the interest. Taxes are delinquent. In Chicago this has meant failure for several real estate mortgage concerns and ruin for many small investors.

Burden on Business.

"If the average business man is a stockholder in a corporation he probably has not thought that 30 cents out of every dollar of profit goes for taxes.

Mr. Strawn, switching back to local affairs, devotes some space to "the fruit of incompetency" in public offices. One illustration cited by him of this incompetency is the fact that the unfunded debt of Chicago increased from $2,262,677 in 1915 to $17,261,993 in 1929.

"The problems of municipal finance in the future are real, not academic. Their solution cannot be left to the politician, the reformer, or the theorist. They demand the best constructive thought of experienced business leaders and wise financiers."

Singer Ill

MME. NELLIE MELBA.
[Keystone Photo.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Dame Nellie Melba, famous opera singer, was reported seriously ill today.

The singer, who is 71 years old, was so ill when she arrived at Freemantle, Australia, on Nov. 4 that the doctors forbade her to land. On the arrival of the ship in Melbourne, Nov. 10, she was removed to a hospital. At that time, however, it was stated her condition had improved and her speedy recovery was predicted.

Dame Nellie Melba [Helen Porter Mitchell] was born in Richmond near Melbourne, Australia. In recent years she has been making her home in Cold-Stream, Victoria.

She took the pseudonym of Melba after her debut as Gilda in Rigoletto in Brussels, Belgium, in 1887. Her success was instantaneous. She made her first appearance in New York in 1893 and thereafter sang frequently in the United States. She was created a dame of the British empire in 1918 for her war work.

STOP SPENDING, BRUENING WARNS GERMAN NATION

Urges Reparations Talk Be Forgotten.

COLOGNE, Germany, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, in some of the strongest language he has used since taking office, today admonished the German people to forget about reparations revisions for a while and concentrate on putting both public and private finances in order. He spoke here and also in Dueren.

HEINRICH BRUENING.

"It is not only through reparations burdens that we have fallen into financial misfortune," said the chancellor, "but to a very large measure through letting ourselves imagine that despite a lost war, despite huge sacrifices of blood and treasure, both state and individual could live better than in pre-war times.

"We have indulged in building projects everywhere in the reich, in states, and in communities—which we could not afford before the war, we have spent hundreds of millions of marks for things that later turned out impractical and unproductive.

"There is nothing left for us to do but to follow the fiscal example of other nations which have climbed back after a lost war—namely, to consider earnestly what a pfennig is worth."

The people themselves would have to see this through, the chancellor said, without leaving it to others.

"There is nothing more dangerous," he continued, "than the public belief that the state can and must bear everything."

Rebuking those who clamor for quick action on revision of the Young plan, Chancellor Bruening said they seemed to have forgotten everything that the nation had gone through.

ONE DEAD, MANY HURT IN GERMAN SUNDAY RIOTING

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Usual Sunday clashes between communists, Fascists and members of the republican Reichsbanner resulted in one death, between 30 and 40 injuries, and scores of arrests in various parts of Germany.

At Hahnheim, near Mainz, the burgomaster was injured when he attempted to settle a political fuss between Fascists and Reichsbannermen. He was thrashed by the Hitlerites. One policeman, was badly beaten in addition. Two Fascists were taken to the hospital, and 40 were arrested.

Ninety communists invaded a Fascist meeting at Kassel, with the result that chairs, table legs and beer mugs were hurled wildly. Four Fascists were taken to a hospital and 90 persons were arrested.

STRONG MAN ON STAGE SHOT TO DEATH IN STREET

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—James Caputo, 33, known on the stage as "Hercules the Strong Man," was shot between the eyes tonight and died in his tracks in the East New York section of Brooklyn.

Crying "Save me! Save me!" as he ran from the scene, Martin Sallarulo was taken into custody and questioned by police. He said he merely was passing by when a man shot Caputo and fled. An old fashioned revolver was found a block away.

Caputo has a wife and two children in Italy. He was a juggler and acrobat and weighed 225 pounds. Police could offer no theory for the slaying.

SERBIAN RULERS SCORN PERILS ON VISIT TO CROATIA

Capital Greets Them with Wild Acclaim.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EAGREB, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 25.—Braving the threatened peril of the Croat bullets and bombs, which have all but wrecked the trouble ridden kingdom of Jugo-Slavia in recent years, King Alexander and Queen Marie arrived here today and received an ovation more thunderous than even those who staged it had dreamed possible.

Against the pleadings of political leaders, the royal couple drove two miles through the streets of the Croatian capital, while 150,000 peasants attired in native dress roared their greetings.

For the first time since the creation of Jugo-Slavia as a nation twelve years ago the king has dared officially to visit the capital of Croatia. It is looked upon by diplomatic observers as a desperate attempt to convince himself, his country and the world that he, through the royal dictatorship, which he has enforced for many months, has at last welded the warring elements together and that the Croatians are willing to remain within the kingdom instead of insisting on full autonomy. He will remain two weeks.

Croat Leaders in Jail.

According to unofficial reports, all the troublesome Croat leaders, who might cause trouble, are resting temporarily in jail just as they did in prewar days when the Hapsburgs ventured to visit this proud capital.

King Alexander and his queen were received at the station platform by the governor of Croatia, many high officials, and three bishops.

"For centuries," the mayor of Zagreb said in an address of welcome, "Zagreb claimed the title of royal city as the capital of the former kings of Croatia. Today this historic claim is justified, for the king has come to exercise his rights as a ruler in our midst.

See King as Symbol of State.

"Let the whole world, including those who sneer at the idea of a future for our state, see that we want to remain a free and independent people until the end of the world. Let them recognize that we Croats, as well as the Serbs and Slovenes, see in Alexander our king the symbol of our state and nation."

On his arrival at the palace the king addressed the crowds from a balcony, thanking them for the enthusiastic welcome. Groups of peasants then danced the kola, the picturesque national dance, before the building. Later the king and queen motored for an hour through the streets of the city to show themselves to the people, who pressed forward, often endeavoring to kiss the king's hands. A torchlight procession of 60,000 marched around the palace tonight.

FLOWER DEALER SLAIN IN HOME; TROUBLES BARED

Vasios Denas, 41 years old, a flower seller and manufacturer of an orange drink, was slain yesterday in his home, 324 South Hermitage avenue. He had been shot in the back of the head some time between 12:20 p. m., when his wife left the home, and 1:15 o'clock, when she sent a boy there to call for him.

Mrs. Denas said her husband formerly had a flower shop at 1917 Harrison street and that he had trouble with another Greek florist, Gus Lagos, 1903 West Harrison street. The Denas store was burned down in December, she said, and since then she and her husband have been conducting the business from their home. She went to the county hospital to sell bouquets yesterday, she said, and when she left a friend of Lagos, whose name she did not know, was visiting her husband.

Papers in Denas' pocket indicated that he was being sued for violating some label or patent law in the operation of his business which he named the Pure Fruit Orange Drink company.

VELASCO BABY CHRISTENED AS AN EPISCOPALIAN

DAYTON, Ky., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The son of the Rev. Julius A. Velasco, rector of St. John's Episcopal church here, was christened into the Episcopal faith today. The child's name is Gilbert Arnold Velasco.

Mr. Velasco was the center of a controversy when he was wed to Miss Catherine Rogers, Ellicott City, Md., a Catholic. The Rt. Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, bishop of the Lexington diocese, carried out his announced determination to declare the Dayton church off his visiting list after the marriage. He insisted that Mr. Velasco promised as a condition of his ordination that he would not wed Miss Rogers.

Mr. Velasco admitted the promise but insisted the action later had been rescinded.

The vestry stood behind their pastor.

6 IN FAMILY DIE FROM MONOXIDE FUMES IN HOME

Five of Victims Overcome While They Sleep.

New York, Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Six persons, a dry goods peddler, his wife and their four sons, were killed today by carbon-monoxide fumes in their six room tenement in the Borough park section of Brooklyn. When their bodies were found this afternoon a gas water heater was burning and had consumed all of the oxygen. All the windows were closed.

The dead are: Jacob Cohen, 55 years old; his wife, Lutetia, 53; Isaac, 19; Joseph, 17; Abraham, 15, and David, 12.

Found Dead in Beds.

Five of the victims were in their beds and apparently had been overcome in their sleep. Isaac Cohen, a radio worker, was found half dressed on the floor near the bathroom. He was clutching a newspaper, and it was the theory of the police that he had returned home late, had decided to take a bath, and had been overcome while waiting for the water to heat.

Joseph Cohen was a cripple. Abraham, a student at the Montauk Junior High school, and David a public school pupil.

No Response to Rings.

Early this afternoon Samuel Levy a brother of Mrs. Cohen, went to visit his relatives. When there was no response to repeated ringing of the door bell, he made inquiries among neighbors, but could gain no information. After several efforts to break open the front door, Levy managed to break open a back door, but had to retreat when the poison gas struck him.

Levy informed the police and when the police broke in the heater was still burning, and a rapid examination of the bodies showed that they had all been dead for several hours. Efforts at resuscitation failed.

A VISIT TO DIXIE HOMES AS PINCH OF WINTER GOES

School Children Hungry; Congress Denounced.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jackson, Tenn., Jan. 25.—[Special.—The bluebirds are here. There is a touch of green along the roadside ditches and hens are cackling in the barnyards where thin cattle stand. The Negroes are laughing in the sun. Soon the farmers will borrow money and hire men for their new crops. Then this hard winter will seem like a forgotten dream.

But the lesson has bitten deep. This land along the Jefferson Davis highway in western Tennessee is a rich land, mostly planted to cotton and corn. It gives sweet wild odors in the softening sun. It is dotted, not with the big self-sustaining farm homes of the north, but with little weather beaten, unpainted shacks, a shelter from the sun, but not fit for bitter weather. The Negroes and the share-croppers live in them, and these have been the great sufferers in this winter of want.

Even Negroes Proud.

"The Negroes don't like to ask for food," said a Red Cross worker near Covington. "We visited one place where there was a family of thirteen, with only a few quarters of meal and a little sugar in the house. In another shack down the road a white woman gave birth to a baby without medical attendance and when we got there we found her in bed with the baby, smiling. Snow had drifted through the cracks upon the bed, but she said she was 'doing fine. We had not expected the baby so soon'."

In all the little towns along the way, where mule teams are hitched to the fence around the old court house, crowds of idle farmers and workmen are standing in the shadow of the tall gray Confederate monuments and trying to find out what is the matter with the world and how to circumvent a return of such conditions in the future. Many of them have decided to put in potatoes this year instead of so much cotton, and more corn. Then they can feed their children and cattle. This winter many children have been going to school hungry every day. State health officers and parent teacher associations have been forced to provide lunches at school.

Red Cross Doing Its Best.

The local Red Cross organizations are getting along without outside help on a basis of providing about 55 cents a head a week in food for those who are destitute. They are keeping them just above the starvation line and that is all.

"Malnutrition, as it may work out later in reduced resistance to disease, is our great problem," said Dr. E. L. Bishop, state health commissioner. "There is no darker commentary on our civilization than the fact that children are going to school without breakfast and with little in their lunch baskets."

Farmer Lane, a weather beaten, blue eyed old man, lives along this highway on a place of his own, and while he lost money in cotton this year he has enough corn and other things to keep going. He is a type of the small, independent farmer and he has his own ideas about things. They are not gained from newspaper reading, for he sees only the farm papers and his county weekly, which is filled chiefly this week with religious food.

"I wish," said Farmer Lane, as we rolled along the highway, "that those lawmakers down in Washington would get good and hungry once. I wish they would feel like eating that corn fodder out there. Then they would know what it is all about.

A Farmer's Philosophy.

"These dad-gummed lawmakers are eating up our earnings in taxes. They don't know how hard the money comes. They ought to tip their hats whenever they meet a farmer. Instead of that they are grinding us into slavery—the lawmakers and the gamblers in New York and Chicago.

"They say there is overproduction. That is a lie. Where is there overproduction when people haven't enough to eat and wear? Suppose I have a barn full of corn and only give my mules two ears a day? Call that overproduction, I suppose, while the mules starve. Well, that's the United States now. Wheat and food stored up and rotting and people and cattle slowly starving to death.

"It costs between 5 and 6 cents a pound to raise cotton. We are getting 3½ cents for it. How is a man going to make a living on that? A lot of this land along here has gone back to the government on mortgages. See that piece out there? You couldn't raise a good bull frog on it, and some cropper has been trying to raise cotton.

Some Lazy; Others Have No Chance.

"There are a lot of lazy farmers, fellows that don't know how to take an opportunity, or won't do it, but most of them haven't a chance under the present system. The owner forces them to put in all cotton. It's right up to the doorstep. When that fails all is gone. Few have been able to pay out this year.

"It's this machinery that is ruining us. They force one man to do the work of four. What are the other three going to do while the machine owner gets rich?

"I saw in the paper the other day where a good Christian man offered to give away his horses and mules to any one that would feed them.

"And those lawmakers will spend thirty million dollars for a new street in Washington. Talk about slavery. This is universal slavery."

Sizes Up Young America.

Farmer Lane was on his way to Memphis to visit his married daughter.

"You know the young 'uns don't know how to manage these days," he said. "Now they get $258 every month and don't save a thing. Talking about moving again. Know what rent they pay? It's $53 a month for what they call an apartment. It has a bedroom about ten foot square and a trick dining room. I don't care much for it, but if mother and I had that much money we would get along fine."

1,500 to Aid in Drive for Completion of Relief Fund

A more intensive effort to complete the campaign to raise a minimum of $5,000,000 for the care of needy and destitute in the Chicago area is to be made this week. Philip R. Clarke, head of the Cook county emergency relief campaign, yesterday completed organization of the drive through 1,500 of Chicago's leading citizens.

PHILIP R. CLARKE.

"We have just grazed the $4,000,000 mark in our long campaign for the specified minimum relief needs," Mr. Clarke said. "We have experienced enough during the last two months to proclaim this drive the toughest since the hard spots of the world war and in subsequent drives for funds.

"Because the greater part of the widespread suffering among our people is hidden from the public view, the campaign naturally lacks the spectacular. Nevertheless, the urgency has never been more pronounced than in any other charity drive.

"Our mercy drive can be successfully completed only through the full cooperation of our well to do people, only relatively few of whom thus far have opened their hearts and purses to the cause which is of moment to every person who has the welfare and future of the community at heart. If there ever was a time for the city's heart to speak, that time is now."

Mr. Clarke released a supplementary list to that recently announced containing contributions from $2,500 to $60,000. The new list includes gifts ranging from $500 to $5,000. The $5,000 contributions were made by the Sprague institute, Mrs. P. A. Valentine and E. G. Seubert.

John Stuart contributed $2,500 and Silas H. Strawn, John P. Wilson and H. H. Porter, $2,000 each. Gifts of $1,000 each were made by Miss Florence Bartlett, Robert F. Barr, Mrs. R. W. Cox, D. M. Cummings, Charles G. Dawes, Thomas E. Donnelly, Throne E. Donnelly, William E. Elliott, Harold Foreman, Oscar Foreman, George B. Everett, Walter W. Head, J. M. Hopkins, Morton Denison Hull, Mary Blair Keep, Edith Rockefeller McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Payson, Daniel Peterkin, George M. Reynolds, R. H. Ripley, Joseph T. Ryerson, and Walter B. Smith.

Contributions of $500 came from each of the following: Laird Bell, E. C. Crossett, J. M. Hopkins Jr., A. G. Leonard, Mrs. F. Lillie, W. E. Long, Marvin B. Poll, George A. Ranney, Earle H. Reynolds, Robert M. Roloson, Mary C. Russell and B. E. Sunny.

Average Drought Victim's Meals Cost 3½ Cents Each

Marked Tree, Ark., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Three and a third cents a meal is what the average destitute drought sufferer is living on.

The Red Cross gives each family $2 a week, plus 50 cents for each child, up to a maximum of $4.50 a week. In the larger families, some running as high as fifteen, they get less than that.

PRESIDENT MAY YIELD ON FEDERAL RED CROSS AID

Public Slow to Respond in Raising 10 Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—With hearings on the $25,000,000 Red Cross appropriation scheduled to be held this coming week before a subcommittee of the house the impression is growing that the administration will be forced to modify its opposition to the measure's passage.

In view of the statement of John Barton Payne, Red Cross chairman, that his organization would soon have 1,000,000 needy persons on its rolls, and in view of the slowness with which contributions to the Red Cross' $10,000,000 fund are coming in, sheer need of the money will, it is held, require President Hoover to withdraw his objection to federal aid.

Up to today only $2,125,400 of the $10,000,000 for which the Red Cross issued its recent appeal had been subscribed.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde is expected to be the first witness called to testify before the subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, to which the Red Cross appropriation was sent. With Dr. C. W. Warburton, director of the department's extension work, he will be asked to report on the progress made in handling the $45,000,000 recently appropriated by congress for seed, feed, and fertilizer loans. Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, will be asked to explain the effects of the recent additional appropriation of $80,000,000 for the acceleration of highway construction. Red Cross officials will follow on the list of witnesses.

LYLE PROMISES BUSINESS RULE IF HE IS MAYOR

Trade Leaders Indorse His Candidacy.

Judge John H. Lyle responded yesterday to reports that his candidacy for the Republican mayoralty nomination is winning the support of business and professional leaders with a pledge to put the municipal government on a business basis if he is nominated and elected mayor.

JUDGE JOHN H. LYLE.

"I won't be able to do much alone, but I am going to surround myself with the biggest, most public spirited and ablest men in this city," he declared. "If they can make financial success and millions out of their private businesses I think they will be willing to sacrifice the time to help me put our city on a paying basis."

The judge emphasized the bearing of crime on the city's prosperity on the ground that where illicit business flourishes legitimate business suffers.

Judge Lyle counts among his backers Julius Rosenwald, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Franklin MacVeagh, former secretary of the treasury; W. T. Alden, former president of the Chicago Bar association; William N. Jarnagin, the president of the Central Manufacturing District bank; and Louis M. Harvey, the president of the Illinois Hotel association.

While the Lyle campaign centered on the crime and business situation, the Blackridge-Litsinger faro game scandal was causing agitation in the mayoralty camp of Ald. Arthur F. Albert, who is the candidate of the Deneen Republican faction.

Although Albert, emphasizing that he had no connection with the matter, denied that it would hurt him, some of his friends were said to have advised him that it is bound to react upon him politically in view of his close association in the past with Edward R. Litsinger, a Deneen leader.

Litsinger has been Albert's principal sponsor both as a candidate for president of the county board and for mayor and also has been a heavy contributor to his campaign funds.

Not Hurting Me, Albert Says.

"This affair isn't hurting me," Albert said. "I have had nothing at all to do with it. I am, in fact, the only candidate who is absolutely independent, unpledged, and in the clear."

In a speech at the Lincoln Turner hall last night Ald. Albert renewed his attack on Thompsonism. The political "bosses," he said, naming Harding, Snow, Barrett, Brundage, and Robertson, are supporting Lyle in the hope of perpetuating their own organizations.

The Hillman's Pure Food store holdup in the loop on Saturday night, during which a guard was shot to death and another probably fatally wounded by three masked bandits, gave to Judge Lyle a starting point in his statement on crime and business conditions.

"The Hillman robbery and murder, as well as other shootings of innocent citizens," he declared, "illustrates how little criminals fear the present administration of the police department. This city can be cleaned up and crime reduced to a minimum.

"I am going to be elected mayor, and instead of spending my time in a lot of puerile talk about busting King George on the nose, I will spend my time busting criminal gangs and such murdering outlaws as Moran, Capone, Barker, White, Druggan, Saltis and McErlane.

Plans Quick Cleanup.

"We won't have much trouble with criminals when I am elected. They won't tarry long in Chicago. So I can turn my attention almost immediately to the big financial problem.

"That will not be so easy. But with the help of our leading business men and bankers, who have loaned the city money to tide it over, we will be able to pay back their loans and then shape the city's financial program in such a way that there will not be a recurrence."

Julius Rosenwald in a letter commending Lyle's bench record asserted that the judge has set a "fine example for such judges who are inclined to interpret the law in a manner more favorable to criminals with a previous record."

Eames MacVeagh, in making it known that he and his father, Franklin MacVeagh, will support Lyle, said he had faith that if elected mayor the judge "would have the courage to withstand the temptations that beset that stupendous job" and would appoint to his cabinet "able and fearless men."

Isaac Fish, president of the L. Fish Furniture company, took the view that Judge Lyle's anti-crime fight means much to business.

"Crime is costing us millions of dollars," Mr. Fish said. "It is driving business away from Chicago. Judge Lyle has demonstrated that he is the one man who can drive criminals out of our city and from his experience in the city council, in the legislature, and on the bench he can work out the city's tangled financial affairs."

"I am a Democrat and unfortunately can't vote for Judge Lyle in the primary," said Attorney Alden. "I hope he is nominated. I believe him to be absolutely honest, fearless, and thoroughly competent."

Other typical comments from business and professional men follow:

William N. Jarnigan, president of the Central Manufacturing District bank—I have known Judge Lyle since he was in knee trousers. We were boys together in Tennessee. No one in our home town will be surprised at any of his achievements. I am for him for mayor and I find practically none who are against him. I suppose the gangsters and criminals are all against him, but good citizens are for him.

Dr. Henry L. Baker—As an independent in politics interested in honesty and decency I am glad to see Lyle's hat in the ring. No man of the old "system" can be elected. They cannot beat Lyle.

E. A. Smith, vice president of the American Enameled Products company—I am heartily in favor of Judge Lyle's nomination for mayor.

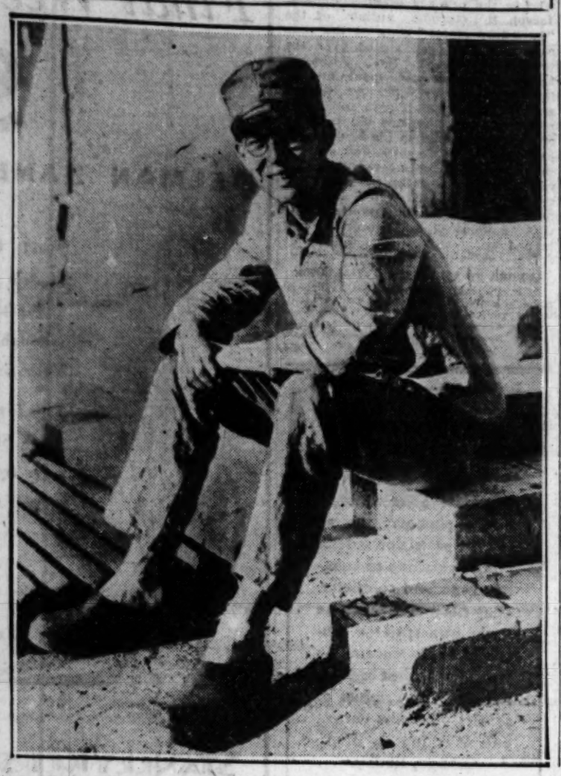
B. G. Earl, president of B. G. Earl & Co.—I will use my influence with all my friends to secure their votes for Judge Lyle.

J. A. Berry, president of Blue Seal Food Products, Inc. — I am very strongly of the opinion that Lyle should be Chicago's next mayor.

John J. Downey, president of John J. Downey & Co.—I deem it an honor to be included among the supporters of Judge Lyle.

Dr. Frank G. Douglass—I want to become a member of Judge Lyle's business and professional men's committee and deem it a duty to help make him mayor.

PRINCE MAY WED COMMONER



Prince Lennart, 21 year old grandson of King Gustaf of Sweden, giving proof of the democratic tastes which are said to have led to his engagement to Karin Nisswandt, daughter of an industrialist, whose family is of Dutch origin. It is reported that the marriage will cost him his right of succession to the throne.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Reports of a royal romance, involving a grandson of King Gustaf of Sweden and the daughter of a prominent industrialist, are intriguing all Sweden.

The newspaper Dagblad said today announcement was imminent of the engagement of Prince Lennart, 21 year old son of Prince William, second son of the king, to Karin Nisswandt, daughter of a Stockholm industrialist whose family is of Dutch origin.

Court circles deny the truth of the report. It is pointed out such a marriage would entail renouncement by the prince of his right of succession.

FARWELL DECLARES MAYOR AND GAMING ARE CRIME CAUSES

Arthur Burrage Farwell last night told an audience at St. James Methodist Episcopal church, 4611 Ellis avenue, that Mayor Thompson and gambling are basic causes of Chicago's gangland. Mr. Farwell spoke before the St. James forum in behalf of the repeal of the Illinois racing law.

"When Mayor Thompson in 1927 shouted to the world, 'Chicago's a wide open town—come in,'" said Mr. Farwell, "they came, and that is the cause of the crime wave and the reason why gangs practically control city politics."

Mr. Farwell condemned the press of Chicago and other cities for publishing daily racing reports. He declared the corrupt masters of the gambling fraternity could not operate without the aid of the press.

RADICALS DON'T CONCEAL LIGHTS UNDER A BUSHEL

They're Clever and Busy with Propaganda.

This is the fifth article of a series by Mr. Henning on the senate radicals, their political philosophy and their activities.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.] — With periodical organs and propaganda agencies financed by contributions from their followers and sometimes by millionaire angels, and with the publicity, research and inquisitorial agencies of the federal government they are able to invoke, the senate radicals promote their cause which, in general, they conceive to be the warfare on special privilege and corruption.

At present the radicals are both suffering and benefiting from the business depression. To the extent that hard times invariably breed radicalism, the insurgent group is recruiting support in the country at large. But hard times also have seriously impaired the financial support of the group. The contributions, particularly of labor unions which have been the mainstay of the principal radical research and propaganda agency, the People's Legislative Service, have fallen to a small fraction of their former volume.

Two Big Contributions Lost.

Then, too, the radicals have lost two millionaire angels, one by death, the other by desertion. For many years the late William Kent, originally of Chicago but latterly of California, from which state he came to congress, was a heavy financial contributor to the support of the activities of the radical group. He died two years ago.

The other millionaire ex-angel is William T. Rawleigh of Freeport, Ill., patent medicine manufacturer. He also contributed heavily to the People's Legislative Service, the executive committee of which he was a member. In addition he established the Rawleigh tariff bureau which employed economists and supplied the radicals with the ammunition they used in fighting the tariff revision bill in this congress. For many years he has been an ardent political and financial supporter of the La Follette family, having served as treasurer of the La Follette third party in 1924.

A few months ago, however, Mr. Rawleigh broke with the present management of the People's Legislative Service. He pulled out and established the Rawleigh foundation under the direction of Basil Manly, formerly director of the People's Legislative Service. The foundation specializes in propagandizing reforms of various kinds, its first product having been the recent memorializing of state legislatures to shift the tax burden from the farmers.

Near Parting Once Before.

Once before Mr. Rawleigh and the radicals nearly came to the parting of the ways. That was in the La Follette campaign for President in 1924, when the labor union leaders discovered that Mr. Rawleigh is an adamantine opponent of the closed shop. They demanded that he be thrown out of camp, but the late Senator La Follette saved him and his money to the cause for a while longer.

The People's Legislative Service was founded by the elder La Follette early in his senatorial career. The institution, with headquarters across the street from the house office building, is now headed by Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], leader of the radical group. Its budget, which was formerly about $25,000 a year, has now declined to $13,000.

The service specializes in researches of matters which the radicals are at the time exploiting and issues a monthly publication, The People's Business," which gives publicity to the activities of the group and disseminates its propaganda. Just now it is devoting itself particularly to muckraking the so-called power trust, of which it accuses President Hoover of being the willing tool.

Contrary to general supposition, Governor Elect Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, though a millionaire and affiliated with the radicals, is not and never has been a financial contributor to their activities. Although his chief representative in Washington, Harry Slattery, is an officer of the National Popular Government league, a radical propaganda organization which devotes itself to fighting the power interests, and although he himself is an arch foe of the power interests, Mr. Pinchot never has contributed to the league. One reason is that the league stands for public ownership of power plants, while Mr. Pinchot stands not for public ownership but for more stringent regulation.

The National Popular Government league, which is under the direction of Judson King, furnishes the ammunition used by the radicals in their onslaughts on the power interests. It prepares their power trust speeches which, when delivered in the senate, are mailed broadcast throughout the country under senatorial postage frank. The league has an annual budget of approximately $10,000.

Incidentally, the senatorial frank enables the radical group to procure distribution at the expense of the government of tracts on a multitude of subjects. Articles by radical authors are inserted in the Congressional Record by radical senators and then mailed widely, postage free. The radicals, however, are not the only members of congress who indulge in this practice.

Railroad Weekly Used.

Another propaganda agency of the radical cause is the People's Lobby, the head of which is Prof. John Dewey of Columbia university. It has headquarters across the street from the capitol.

One of the principal organs of the radical group is "Labor," a weekly supported by the railroad brotherhoods which is issued from a publishing plant opposite the capitol. In elections this publication is issued in special editions in support of radical candidates or in opposition to conservatives the radicals are seeking to defeat. In this form it is given wide spread free distribution in congressional districts and states. Another organ is the "Progressive" published at Madison, Wis., successor to La Follette's Magazine.

These privately supported agencies of research, publicity and propaganda, however, are as nothing in the scheme of activities of the radicals compared with their employment of the power of the national government to promote their interests.

Trade Commission Aids Them.

One of the principal public instruments the radicals make use of is the Federal Trade commission, that agency for regulating the conduct of business which was brought into being largely through their efforts. The majority of the investigations of big business conducted by the trade commission have been undertaken pursuant to resolutions of congress put through by the radicals. Notable of late have been the bread trust and the power trust investigations. The latter which has been in progress two years and is still going strong has furnished the radicals with millions of words of speeches portraying the iniquities of the power trust which have been delivered with the purpose in part of working up a paramount issue for the presidential election of 1932.

The radicals made powerful use of the senate lobby investigation committee to harass big business executives and others accused of manipulating tariff and other legislation. One of the results was the censuring by the senate of Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] for placing a tariff lobbyist on the senate pay roll as his secretary. Another was the involuntary resignation of Claudius Huston from the chairmanship of the Republican national committee, following revelations of his Muscle Shoals lobbying activities.

Lobby Committee Stacked.

This lobby committee was stacked four radicals to one conservative, four drys to one wet, and four pacifists to one champion of adequate national defense. In order to bring about this situation the radicals provided in the enabling resolution that the investigation should be conducted by the judiciary committee or a subcommittee thereof instead of by a committee named by the Vice President, as ordinarily is the procedure.

The resolution, passed by the coalition of Democrats and Republican radicals, thus placed the appointment of the committee in the hands of Senator Norris, chairman of the judiciary committee and leader of the radical group. He stacked the committee. And the reason the radicals exercised this power through Senator Norris is that the regular Republicans have retained him as chairman of the judiciary committee, despite the fact that he voted for La Follette for President in 1924 and supported Al Smith in 1928. The lobby investigation cost $23,500.

Nye Campaign Investigators.

Another powerful instrument in the hands of the radicals is the Nye campaign fund investigating committee, which has expended $100,000 up to date and has just been allotted $50,000 more. This committee was appointed by Vice President Curtis, who named Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], a radical, chairman. With Nye and the two Democratic members acting together the two regular Republican members are in the minority.

In the hands of the radicals this committee entered upon a scope of activities far transcending that of any of its predecessors. As Senator T. H. Caraway [Dem., Ark.], who is a near radical himself, put it, the Nye committee "went up and down the country while the election was pending and had its secret agents traveling through the states, supervising and superintending and influencing, or attempting to influence, how the citizens of the states should cast their ballots."

It sent its agents into numerous states to watch over senatorial primaries. Though similar committees heretofore have confined themselves to investigation of the expenditures of senators already elected, or at least nominated, the Nye committee probed the activities of the unsuccessful primary foes of Senator Norris, radical leader, who reelection was powerfully aided by the uncovering of the plot to beat him by placing the name of another George W. Norris, a Broken Bow, Neb., grocer's clerk, on the ballot. The latest fruit of this line of inquiry is the uncovering of the secret effort of Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican committee, to compass the defeat of Mr. Norris.

Especially Active in Illinois.

In Illinois, however, the Nye committee passed rapidly over the expenditures of the defeated candidate, Senator Charles S. Deneen, and concentrated upon those of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, the committee going so far as to demand that she open her books to its auditors for two years back. Some persons have been so unkind as to attribute the tenderness for Mr. Deneen to the fact that it was his vote which enabled the radicals to prevent confirmation of the appointment of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina to the Supreme court by a vote of 39 to 41. Had Mr. Deneen voted for Judge Parker the result would have been a tie resolved in favor of the administration by Vice President Curtis.

In Pennsylvania similar tenderness was manifested for James J. Davis, who in the primary defeated Senator Joseph R. Grundy, author of the "backward states" fling at the radicals who had been seated over the protest of Senator Nye. Although about $1,000,000 was spent by the forces backing Mr. Davis for senator and Francis Shunk Brown for governor the Nye committee did not call on Mr. Davis to open his books as it had on Mrs. McCormick and shelved the investigation until compelled to review it when a newspaper reporter discovered that $1,000,000 had been expended instead of the less than half that amount the committee had turned up.

Norris Foe Held

George W. Norris, Broken Bow., Neb., grocer, who was indicted for perjury in connection with the placing of his name on the ballot as an opponent of George W. Norris, Republican senator from Nebraska, who was re-elected last fall.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—The Christie ten ton tank, a civilian built machine manufactured as a pilot model for the army, successfully negotiated two days of testing by a special war department board last week but broke down on the third day. The tank will be ready for further tests within a few days according to Walter Christie, veteran racing driver and inventor of the machine.

During the first two days the tank, according to officials in attendance, passed tests which no other American tank ever has attempted. On the first day the machine, operating on rubber tires, traveled forty miles in fifty-six minutes. On its second test the vehicle traveled across country on tracks for one-half hour at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

In the third day the tank was assigned the task of traveling 120 miles across country in six hours. After fifty miles the tank was forced to stop for repairs. World war tanks had a speed of three to six miles an hour.

THE YELLOW KID MAKES DEFENSE OF HIS CALLING

Paraded Before Crowd at Police Showup.

KID WEIL.

A bedraggled Yellow Kid Weil shuffled into line under the glaring lights on the police showup stage at the detective bureau yesterday. His suit was a mass of wrinkles, his white shirt was soiled, and the end of his tie drooped out of a sagging overcoat pocket.

But despite his shoddy appearance there was a hint of the distinguished mannerisms of a master of the con game. Frequently during his appearance he tugged at his soiled shirt collar in an attempt to impart a Byronesque flare. With him stood his boon companion, Fred Buckminister, no less ill-kempt.

"And here, ladies and gentlemen," Lieut. Walter Storms rolled out to the audience in the manner of the circus barker, "we have no less a distinguished personage than the Yellow Kid, back from a jaunt to Rockford. You will remember him from last Wednesday. The reappearance is by popular request."

The Kid bowed.

Accused of Stealing Eggs.

"And didn't they treat you right in Rockford?" Storms asked.

"Shamefully," Weil sighed. "Shamefully. They exhibited me to a farmer who had lost two cases of eggs valued, I was informed, at $8.50. I have never been so humiliated. Me, Joseph Weil, some time Yellow Kid, to use the vernacular, accused of stealing eggs."

"Perhaps they were golden eggs," Storms volunteered.

Weil snorted. Storms displayed Weil's record, which dates back to 1905, including operations involving six figures. He asked the Kid whether he had ever been arrested before.

"Twice," Weil snapped. "Each time when I was seeking refreshment through the foaming glass, barred by immutable bigotry. A sad state of affairs."

Defends His Operations.

Weil was asked about his business.

"Sure I am a con man," he declared. "The best, I have been told. But I've always taken from those who can afford to pay for education. And I have given them full value for their money. I've left them with a laugh. Merriment is cheap at any price. That is more than a lot of smug hypocrites who have robbed the poor and sit in church pews, revered by their victims, can say."

They were taken back to their cells, where Weil found his brother, Ike Weil, former Superior court bailiff, awaiting him with a change of clothes and a razor. The Kid expressed regret that his brother had not arrived before he was made to parade his shabby appearance.

Weil and Buckminster are to be charged with swindling Joseph Kindelberger, former president of the Kalamazoo, Mich., Chamber of Commerce, out of $15,000 in a deal involving a mythical copper mine and two Chinese. The warrants were procured here by Kindelberger last April. He later indicated he would not press the charges because of the unfavorable publicity he received in the transaction. If Kindelberger does not appear the Kid and his pal are to be arraigned on charges of vagrancy.

ENDS LIFE WITH POISON.

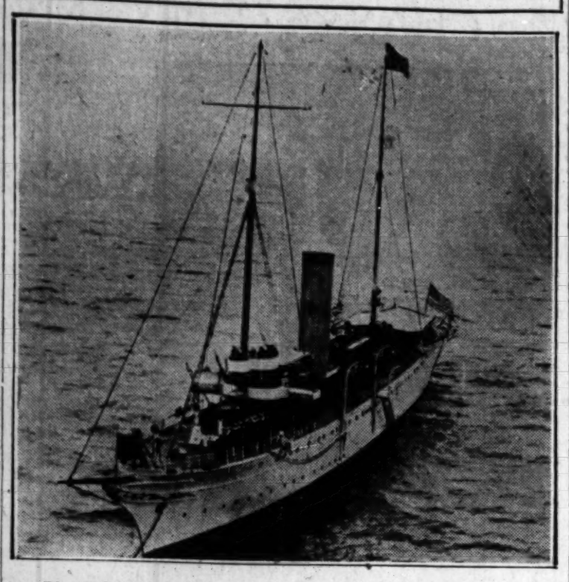
PRESIDENTS' BOAT BURNS



The U. S. S. Mayflower, which was used as a yacht by five presidents, but which ceased to serve as such under President Hoover. It burned at its pier in the Philadelphia navy yard.

Future in Doubt

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The former presidential yacht Mayflower, on whose decks have walked many world figures of its day, lay today fire scarred and sunk in 20 feet of water at the Philadelphia navy yard. The once proud presidential yacht was swept by fire last night.

The presidential suite and officers' quarters where the flames raged are ruined as are other quarters in the stern of yacht. Whether it will be worth while to reconstruct the interior for further useful service remains for naval experts to determine when the vessel is raised.

Ordered de-commissioned in 1929 by President Hoover as too expensive to maintain as a presidential pleasure yacht, the Mayflower last month was ordered recommissioned when no satisfactory bid for sale was received. The vessel was to be conditioned as a gunboat and assigned as a flagship of the special service squadron in central American waters. The work of reconditioning was under way.

The fire was discovered in the officers living quarters by sentries and a yard alarm was turned in. Despite the efforts of navy yard and city fire fighting forces, the yacht lurched and touched the river bottom. Two enlisted men, J. J. Gordon and A. R. Kelly, of the U. S. S. Niagara, lying alongside the Mayflower, were slightly injured in fighting the fire.

Give Oxygen in Effort to Save Life of County Interne

In an effort to save his life, pure oxygen was being administered at intervals last night to Dr. Charles Boylan, 27 years old, a senior interne at the county hospital. He was stricken with influenza on Jan. 15, but continued on duty to Jan. 22, when he was compelled to go to the internes' infirmary, where it was found that pneumonia had developed. Dr. Boylan is married and lives at 5434 Winthrop avenue.

RICH TREASURES FOUND IN ANCIENT EGYPTIAN TOMB

CAIRO, Egypt., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The tomb of an ancient queen, containing magnificent treasures, was bared today at the Raouer tomb enclosure by Prof. Selim Hassan, noted Egyptologist.

The queen has not been identified, but the tomb consists of two chambers, one containing her sarcophogus and the other furniture and such objects as toilet requisites in pure gold. Alabaster figures and a bed also were found, the design of the latter resembling some modern European styles.

EMERALITE KIND TO EYES

Want to Look Young?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young. To do this you must watch your liver and bowels. There's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

features a grim, ghost like appearance. Invariably he sleeps out of doors.

When the official release documents came to the prison late tonight from Bombay, officials who had been unaware that Gandhi was to be freed issued orders feverishly and the administration quarters of the prison buzzed with activity. The prisoners slept on peacefully, but there was no more rest for those in charge of the great walled institution.

Start Packing His Effects.

Officials entered Gandhi's quarters tonight to begin packing his effects. In these are hundreds of secular and sacred books, including the Hindu scriptures, the koran, the Bible, the talmud, a large number of manuscripts of Gandhi's own works, and thousands of letters from all parts of the world.

And by time another twenty-four hours elapses Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, who was jailed May 5 under an act of 1827, which permits the internment of any one adjudged a menace to public order, will be out under the Indian skies.

The wizened little Hindu leader was arrested in the dead of night on May 4 in his camp at Karadi, near Jalalpur, Bombay, one month after he had arrived at the end of a 100 mile march from Ahmedabad to the Gulf of Cambay to break the British law establishing a salt monopoly. The law, however, was actually broken by Gandhi on April 6, when the mass civil disobedience campaign began.

Viceroy Orders Release.

NEW DELHI, India, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The unconditional release from prison of Mahatma Gandhi and other members of the Nationalist congress working committee was ordered today by Viceroy Lord Irwin. The viceroy also issued an order establishing the lawfulness of the congress working committee.

In his statement the viceroy said:

"In order to provide an opportunity for consideration of the statement made by Prime Minister MacDonald on Jan. 19, my government, in consultation with the local government, has thought it right that members of the congress working committee of the all-India congress should enjoy full liberty of discussion between themselves and with those who have acted as members of the committee since Jan. 1, 1930.

Awarded Unconditional Liberty.

"In accordance with this decision and with this object and in order that there may be no legal bar to any meeting which they may wish to hold, the notifications declaring the committee to be an unlawful association under the criminal law amendment act will be withdrawn by all local governments and action will be taken for the release of Mr. Gandhi and others who are members of the committee or who have acted as such since Jan. 1, 1930.

"My government will impose no conditions on those released because we feel that the best hope of restoration of peaceful conditions lies in the discussions being conducted by those concerned under the terms of unconditional liberty.

"Our action has been taken in pursuance of a sincere desire to assist in creation of such peaceful conditions as would enable the government to implement the undertaking given by the prime minister that, if civil quiet were proclaimed and assured, the government would not be backward in its response."

Robbed Again

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

The Hyde Park police are seeking a Negro bandit who held up Miss Alice Lewis, cashier of the Piccadilly theater, 1443 Hyde Park boulevard, Saturday night and escaped with about $105 in bills. Hundreds of patrons were leaving at the end of a performance as the bandit, who kept his hand in his pocket as if it held a gun, robbed the cashier. Two weeks ago Miss Lewis was robbed of $14,000 by two men, who are believed to be in custody in Tennessee. In April, 1927, the theater was robbed of $7,800. Miss Lewis, who is 22 years old, lives at 7542 Stewart avenue.

GAMBLING CZARS OF FRANCE SEND OUT S O S CALL

Hit by Hard Times, They Ask Tax Relief.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 25. — The proprietors of gambling houses are experiencing hard times and unless the French government takes immediate measures to relieve them from the heavy burden of taxation all gambling houses may close down in France.

Claiming that taxes on gambling profits, which were increased in 1929, are too high, while profits are steadily decreasing with the world's economic depression, the syndicate representing the 169 gambling houses legally authorized by the state has addressed a letter of protest to all the deputies and senators.

Would Mean Loss to Nation.

According to the letter the situation is grave. It adds that if the government does not take steps in reducing the taxes the proprietors of casinos on the Riviera and other resorts as well as gambling houses in Paris and other cities will be forced to go out of business.

Such a decision, it is pointed out, would mean a net loss of more than $6,000,000 a year for the state. Taxes on gambling profits amounted to $8,496,000 in 1929 and $6,552,000 in 1930.

Gambling Profits Drop.

The 169 licensed casinos showed a decrease in revenue of $2,720,000 in 930 as compared with gambling profits for 1929, according to official figures.

Nevertheless, the chamber of deputies recently adopted a project for reopening the famous casino of Enghien, near Paris. The casino in pre-war days was the gathering place of the smart set of the city and one of the social centers in the world.

DR. CARL D. CASE, FORMER OAK PARK PASTOR, IS DEAD

Succumbs to Heart Disease at Quincy.

Dr. Carl D. Case, former pastor of the First Baptist church at Oak Park, died yesterday at Quincy, Ill., where for the last three years he has been pastor of the Central Baptist church. Dr. Case was 63 years old and his death was the result of heart disease from which he had suffered for many years.

He was born in Plainview, Minn., and received his education at Colgate university, where he was graduated in 1891, and the Chicago Divinity school, where he received his degree of doctor of divinity in 1896.

Before coming to Oak Park he held pastorates in South Bend and Terre Haute, Ind., Mont Claire, N. J., Brookline, Mass., and Buffalo.

Dr. Case served as pastor of the Oak Park church for seven and a half years and was credited with bringing about its tremendous growth.

Church Gains Members.

In his farewell address, delivered before the congregation on Sept. 14, 1925, he reviewed the progress of the church which had but 325 members and $26,000 in assets when he took charge, as follows:

"I have unbounded pride in the development of this church. During my pastorate we have received 845 new members, making a total of 1,006. Since a year ago last Thanksgiving we have received 214 new members. We have raised $567,000 during the pastorate. Our congregations are larger and during the last three months have been unusually large for vacation season."

A great sorrow, which friends said aggravated his heart ailment, came into Dr. Case's life in January, 1924, when he was named as co-respondent in a divorce suit filed against Mrs. Charlotte Leland, one of his parishoners and wife of Albert R. Leland.

Court Fight Lasts 2 Years.

The trial court held that Mrs. Leland's "confession" implicating Dr. Case was the result of hallucinations, but on Leland's appeal this decision was reversed and Leland was granted a divorce.

Throughout the trials which continued for nearly two years and afterward, Dr. Case enjoyed the support and confidence of his congregation, members of which still contend that he was done a tremendous injustice. But his failing heart was unable to withstand the effects of the litigation and the increasing duties of the church and in September 1925 he resigned, later accepting the call to Quincy.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Glenn D. Prentiss and Mrs. C. Russell Warren, both of Oak Park.

ASKS POLICE TO ARREST HIS PAL; JAILED HIMSELF

Seeking the aid of the police for the arrest of his alleged partner in crime proved a boomerang yesterday to Nicholas Sloianowski, 20 years old, of Mount Clemens, Mich.

For some time Sloianowski and his associate, Joseph Kellanowski, also 20 years old, had been sought by Mount Clemens authorities on charges of passing worthless checks amounting to $250. The youths were traced to Chicago. Yesterday Sergts. Phil Bergen and John Shanahan trailed the suspects to 706 West Madison street, where they were told that Sloianowski and Kellanowski had had a falling out, and that the former might be found at the detective bureau.

Bergen and Shanahan hurried to the bureau. They found Sloianowski at the sergeant's desk, swearing out a warrant for the arrest of Kellanowski. Kellanowski, it appeared, had fled with $125 belonging to his friend.

Fire Sweeps Pop Factory and Spreads to Dwelling

Fire, preceded by an explosion, swept the plant of the Chalmingo Pop company, 96th street and Exchange avenue, early this morning and spread to a three story flat building on the south, driving out several families. Fire Marshal Corrigan estimated the loss at between $25,000 and $30,000. According to the marshal, the fire was caused by an explosion on the second floor, rear, of the pop plant. The cause of the blast was not learned.

COLDS
and throat infections are prevalent now!

Adopt Science's Newest Protection, a "10-Second" Penetrating Antiseptic that Reaches the Hiding Germs!

Germs are active and vicious during the Winter months. Every exposure to crowds exposes you to infection. Attack usually comes through the mouth and throat. Take no chances. Be safe when you mingle with the crowds in—street cars, theatre and church. Rinse your mouth and gargle every morning and night with one part McKesson's Extol and two parts water. That will keep your mouth and throat clean and protected.

The "Ounce of Prevention"

Extol kills germs faster than any ordinary preparation yet known. And it reaches parts that other antiseptics miss. It penetrates the mucous membrane and reaches the germs that lie hidden underneath the outer layer of mucosa. Hence its action is complete and thorough. Extol is the best "ounce of prevention" you can use; but if you have already caught a cold or sore throat, it will relieve it in fast time. Extol is utterly harmless and most delightful to use. Also, it's economical. Costs less than other preparations and, as you can dilute it more liberally, goes further. All McKesson Service Druggists and all independent drug stores sell Extol. Get a bottle today and be forearmed against Winter ills. Note the name, EXTOL—a McKesson & Robbins product.

You must not ignore
RHEUMATISM

Even moderate twinges in joints or muscles are warnings—signs that your tissues are carrying trouble-making poisons and noxious agents. This condition may be either the result or cause of infections and lowered vitality. Neglect may spoil your life. Mountain Valley Mineral Water, with its beneficent action on all natural channels of elimination, should be one of the first things to invoke. It helps in the control of harmful agents—and in removing the waste products of cell metabolism and faulty digestion. It thus aids in relieving some of the causes of pain. Phone for booklet today.

RECORD CROWDS SEE NEWEST AND BEST IN AUTOS

Three Hundred Models Under Inspection.

BY HAL FOUST.

Favorable weather over the week-end brought record crowds to the 31st annual automobile show at the Coliseum. The spring temperatures also sent a large portion of the metropolitan area's half million cars on pleasure drives over the city's boulevards and onto the rural highways.

Those who visited the show, which will continue daily from 10 a. m. to 10:30 p. m. until Saturday night, saw the 1931 motor car, a faster, safer and more reliable vehicle than any of its predecessors. They read price tags reflecting the economies inaugurated by manufacturers during the 1930 business lull.

Get Chance to See New Roads.

Motorists who drove out of the city for a holiday on country roads found that the pleasure derived from car ownership has been enhanced materially through the construction in the last year of 105 additional miles of four lane pavement.

It was the first opportunity of many of the drivers to enjoy these new highway improvements that make for fast and safe travel. The roads were under construction and barricaded with detour signs through the summer and late into the fall. Snow came early in the winter, discouraging pleasure driving.

The ice and snow were melted from the concrete yesterday. Apartment dwellers, city workers with their wives and families were on the road, viewing woods and fields and breathing fresh country air, making the most of America's favorite recreation, motoring. They saw spots of green where a slope exposed grass to the sun at a favorable angle, green grass that harbingers the passing of winter and the approach of spring.

New Cars Take the Road.

On the road and on the boulevard there were 1931 automobiles, distinctive not alone for their appearance but also for their performance, their quiet, prompt and easy operation. Each year, since the horseless buggy of little more than a quarter of a century ago, the manufacturers have produced a better car and at prices that give greater value per dollar. The year of 1931 is no exception.

At the automobile exhibition in the Coliseum visitors are being shown and told the details of these mechanical improvements. There are 300 models produced by forty makers displayed under one roof for convenient comparison.

In Chicago's hotels this week the executives of the automobile industry are convened. They represent America's biggest business, employing a tenth of the nation's salaried population. They are planning and launching their 1931 production and merchandising efforts. They are working with the conviction that this year will witness a return of normal prosperity.

Bandits Routed in Attempt to Rob Realty Office

Two robbers were routed last night when they tried to hold up Philip Bulfer and his wife in their real estate office and home at 2518 Jackson boulevard. One of the men was armed with a sawed-off shotgun. The second was unarmed. Mrs. Bulfer reached a desk telephone and called the police. The armed robbers fled.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW NOTES

While the public is viewing the 1931 motor cars in the Coliseum, executives of the automobile industry are meeting with dealers and distributors in Chicago hotels, organizing the new year's merchandising campaigns for their companies.

Hupmobile, Franklin, De Soto and Pierce-Arrow groups are meeting at luncheons this noon. This afternoon, the National Automobile Dealers' association will be in session at the Palmer house. Tonight, Studebaker is holding a banquet.

Five men prominent in the automotive industry joined yesterday in complimenting Robert O. Lord, president of the Guardian-Detroit group of 23 banks throughout Michigan, for his statement last week in which he urged all corresponding banks to give local automobile dealers help in preparing themselves for the anticipated business revival in 1931. The automobile men who joined in saying Lord's statement was the greatest contribution to the return of prosperity were C. W. Nash of Nash Motors, L. J. Reuter of Oakland-Pontiac, William J. McAneeny of Hudson, Joseph R. Graham of Graham-Paige, and Paul J. Hoffman of Studebaker.

The new Auburns boast not only a free wheeling transmission but also helical gears designed for quiet operation.

The De Vaux automobile, a new low priced six, is on display this week for the first time. A stock model may be seen at the Auditorium hotel. Norman De Vaux, president of the company, said the new enterprise is being launched at this time because he and his directors believe that business conditions are such as to award aggressive initiative.

MOVE TO END TRAFFIC TIEUP ON LOWER DRIVE

Capt. Joseph J. O'Connell of the police traffic detail yesterday moved to eliminate traffic tangles in the lower level of Wacker drive in a report to Acting Commissioner Alcock. He appealed for more men to prevent careless motorists from pushing out cars to block traffic.

In parking in the lower level small lanes are left for cars to get through. Ordinarily the lane is sufficient. When a parked car is driven out to get into the traffic lane it is often necessary to push cars in front out of the way. Occasionally motorists push such cars back but more often they leave it to block the lane.

This practice has resulted in frequent traffic tangles to try the temper of motorists and policemen. The situation is made more acute by impatient motorists who leave their cars against a lane blocking automobile, hoping to find them in the same position when they return.

Uses Unloaded Gun to Rob 2; Seized in Police Chase

Using an unloaded revolver, Steve Sadlon, 23 years old, 1719 South Morgan street, last night held up Mark Hrscic, 1144 West 18th street, and Anton R. Sykora of La Grange in front of the former's home, took 50 cents from Hrscic and $1 from Sykora and walked away. Policemen John Lamb and Conrad Lettere caught Sadlon after a short chase. In his flight, Sadlon threw his revolver away. It was recovered and found to be unloaded.

SAVED BY INHALATOR SQUAD.

Joseph Natros, 42 years old, 1432 Komensky avenue, was overcome by gas fumes yesterday when a pot of coffee boiled over on the kitchen range of his home, while he was asleep, but an inhalator squad revived him.

RUSSIA DECIDES IT NEEDS 13,000 FOREIGN EXPERTS

Fails in Plan to Develop Own Specialists.

MOSCOW, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The soviet government will continue to look to the foreign specialist for the necessary technical skill in putting the five year industrialization plan across.

Government officials estimated today that 13,000 additional foreign engineers, technicians and skilled workers would be needed in 1931 if the scheduled construction is to be carried out.

At present there are more than 4,000 foreign specialists employed under individual contracts by the soviet union in addition to the 2,000 or more employés of 124 large foreign companies having technical aid contracts with the government.

Russian Schools Fail.

Efforts to develop native talent by intensive training methods have met largely with failure. Technical schools generally cut their courses from three years to six months, with students working day and night in order to qualify in the various technical professions. But a majority of the students were found unable to stand the strain and large classes were reduced greatly before completion of the courses.

Of the 12,000 additional men needed in 1931, 2,000 are engineers, 3,000 foremen, and 7,000 skilled workers. Europe is expected to supply about 2,600 of the engineers and the same number of foremen and about 5,000 skilled workers. The remainder is expected to be obtained in America.

Try to Please Foreigners.

Practically all foreigners are under contract whereby they receive part of their salaries in the currencies of their countries and part in rubles. The government has been trying to do everything possible to make the foreign employés satisfied. Shops have been opened in the various industrial centers for foreigners only where they can buy food and other commodities at lower prices than in the open market.

SENATE'S ATTACK ON POWER BOARD REVIVES OLD ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Special.]—When the senate judiciary committee meets tomorrow to begin consideration of the Walsh resolution which aims to determine the right of Federal Power Commissioners Smith, Draper, and Garsaud to hold office it will be passing not only on the present dramatic controversy between President Hoover and the senate's radical-Democratic coalition but upon a new phase of a question as old as the United States.

The debates between President Hoover and the senate over the power to remove appointed officials is one which has stirred many presidents and invoked many ringing senate speeches. It was settled after more than a century when the Supreme court in the Myers case, in 1926, decided in favor of the chief executive.

But this new case of the three federal power commissioners who angered the senate coalition by ousting two subordinates supposed to have been friendly to the "people" and against the "power trust" presents a brand new contingency and the Supreme court may have to pass again on a matter it had hoped it had seen the last of.

The present controversy came about when the senate two weeks ago voted to reconsider the three nominations and asked for their return, and President Hoover refused the demand.

CHICAGO ENTERTAINS THE LEAGUE.

The League of Nations association held its meeting and dinner in Chicago this year admittedly to get into the enemy country. This region seems to have that honor and esteems it as such. To be enemy country to the riper enthusiasms of international endeavor is not in midwest opinion a condition of turpitude. The enthusiasts may think that the light has failed to reach into the interior and that a state of grace will follow when it does. That is unlikely.

The leaguists in the after dinner speeches said that there was no other spot where the newspapers were so benighted on the subject of Geneva. Here they were responsible for an abysmal ignorance because of their conspiracy of silence. This also is improbable.

The league has been treated very kindly. When it scoots away from the Liberian slave question, from the complaints and pleas of minorities in its custody, and of mandated countries under its jurisdiction nothing much is done here to emphasize its sins of omission. Possibly this is because the custodian so inevitably fails the ward that it has ceased to be news of any importance even if it is tragedy to the peoples under the trusteeship.

It is natural that enthusiasms for the moral structure in Geneva should be less in the interior than on the Atlantic seaboard. There is less social contact here with Europe and consequently less desire to earn a good rating by colonial behavior and thought. Americans who have foreign connections desirable to them find inspirations which are not likely to occur so intensely in normal American life where it is away from the smell of salt water and the sound of the tide. It is not an evil that this is so.

The midwest is not persuaded as to the league and probably never will be. It has not heard an argument for American participation in the league proceedings revealing where any advantage would be gained for the United States. Certain advantages are inherent in the position of the United States and good judgment concludes to preserve them. That seems to be the case in a nutshell, and it would seem to be the first right of a people to keep immunities which their forefathers sought and acquired. The abandonment of them should be upon better evidence and sounder forecasts than have been given.

It may be flattering to assume that Europe cannot be restrained from folly unless the hand of the United States is laid upon it, but this is not credible. The American participation in the world war is given as evidence of the inevitability of future concern in affairs which Europe may start and cannot finish. The Napoleonic wars finally dragged the United States in, but it returned to its predisposition against such occurrences and survived a hundred years without further disturbance originating in European habits. It may do so again.

WIRE TAPPING.

The opinion of the federal Supreme court in the wire tapping case which held that the tapping of wires for procuring evidence did not prevent the use of the evidence obtained at the trial suggested that congress might forbid its use. Representative Schafer of Wisconsin has acted upon this intimation and introduced a motion providing for an investigation of the practice by the department of justice, although the chief of its bureau of investigation reports that wire tapping has been discontinued for the last two years.

It would seem that a measure to forbid its use as an invasion of privacy would be the better way of dealing with the evil and an investigation unnecessary. But perhaps Representative Schafer believes that the dry influence would defeat it, unless supported by a disclosure of the practice. Certainly congress ought to have acted promptly after the decision of the Supreme court in the case referred to. There were four dissenting judges in this case, whose opinions, notably that of Mr. Justice Holmes, were powerful protests against the practice. The facts of the case, which involved the breaking of a state statute by the agents of the federal government, indicated the need for legislative correction in default of judicial. Wire tapping is a felony in the state of Washington, where the offense took place, and the agents of the government broke this law. Mr. Justice Holmes declared that "decency, security, and liberty alike demand that government officials shall be subjected to the same rules of conduct that are commands to the citizen," and Mr. Justice Brandeis pointed out that "if the government become a lawbreaker it breeds contempt of the law."

But, even in cases where no statute is broken, considerations of public policy will strongly support legislation to give effect to the guaranties of the fourth and fifth amendments in such cases and prohibit what in any liberal interpretation is an improper invasion of private right.

THE HILLMAN TRAGEDY.

The desperate attempt to rob the Hillman store emphasizes the fact that the suppression of organized criminal violence is the overshadowing issue of this mayoralty campaign. We think it gives new force to the candidacy of Judge Lyle, the outstanding fighter against crime in Chicago. The Hillman robbery is typical of the ruthlessness and insolence which the weaknesses of the community's defenses have bred among criminals. It does not stand as an exceptional event, but illustrates a general condition which the community must face and destroy. It is a condition our citizens are now beginning to understand, representing the widespread activities and increased resources of the underworld and progressive demoralization of the administration of the criminal law. There are many factors in its composition, defects in the laws themselves, weaknesses in their administration, inefficiency, slackness or complicity in officials, the acquisition of new sources of revenue for corruption. To meet all these phases of present day criminality courageous leadership of the kind which Judge Lyle has been giving is the first requisite.

ABOLISHING NATIONAL DEFENSE.

The process of reduction in national defense which has taken place after all our wars, weakened our international influence and exacted heavy and unnecessary sacrifice of lives in succeeding wars is again under way. It has the aid of an urge for retrenchment intensified by business depression and of organized pacifism, drawing upon our experiments in diplomatic alternatives for war for its ammunition.

The latest step in this process is the reduction in the appropriation bill passed by the house in the pay of retired officers serving as instructors in military training in the schools and in recruiting. Its effect will be in the reduction of this training wherever local contribution does not make up the deficiency. The pacifists have been trying to abolish military training in the schools, and this, as the American Legion protests to congress, is one of the means of doing it. It is estimated that this alleged saving will compel the resignation of 48 officers who have under them 41,000 students throughout the country. The saving to the taxpayers, proposed at a time when congress is voting hundreds of millions for dubious experiments in collectivism, is negligible in amount and represents a policy which will be paid for eventually, if the past is any guide to the future, in the lives of American youth fighting the battles of the republic. What it saves is blood money.

To support the destruction of the modest measures for the training of a small proportion of our youth in the schools the pacifists stress the Briand-Kellogg treaty to outlaw war as an instrument of policy. Yet no less an individual than Mr. Kellogg himself in explaining the scope and intent of the treaty has told the American Society of International Law that "there is nothing in the American draft of an anti-war treaty which restricts or impairs in any way the right of self-defense. That right is inherent in every sovereign state and is implicit in every treaty. Every nation is free at all times and regardless of treaty provisions to defend its territory from attack or invasion, and it alone is competent to decide whether circumstances require recourse to war in self-defense. If it has a good case, the world will applaud and not condemn its action."

As an opponent of pacifism has pointed out, if the Briand-Kellogg treaty had been in force throughout our national history "not a single war in which we have participated would have been a violation of the pact, or in any wise affected by it." Yet pacifists are determined that American youth shall be unprepared even for the defense of our land from invasion, and must go into battle as into the shambles as they did in France. This is asked of them on behalf of callow expectations of a millennium of universal peace, which are negatived by experience of the past and the conditions of the present. We ourselves have fought five major wars in our brief history, the latest of which would have been declared impossible by the individuals who are now inviting us to found our national policy on their assumption that war is abolished.

Editorials of the Day

HARVARD AND PRINCETON.
[Boston Herald.]

Essential to a healthy rivalry in amateur athletics is a feeling on both sides of confidence in the other's good sportsmanship. To say that such a sentiment existed at either Princeton or Harvard in 1926 would be untruthful, for a series of hard fought football games, in which injuries to contestants played an important part, had built up a whole book of malicious stories regarding the athletic policies of both institutions. Students and alumni of each college told and retold them among their fellows, and in each telling they became more blood curdling and more slanderous. Whether Princeton was actually more at fault than Harvard or Harvard more than Princeton didn't matter much. What mattered was that representatives of the two colleges could no longer play together without distrust and suspicion. It was just as well, then, that competition was ended.

In the five years since then more than a generation of college men has passed, and today's juniors and seniors know little of the animosities which their recent predecessors bore. It is natural and commendable therefore that they should want to resume athletic relations and that they should ask Mr. Bingham at Harvard and Dr. Kennedy at Princeton to do so. But these gentlemen, well conversant with the situation and good friends, will probably move slowly. A triangular crew race with M. I. T. acting as host this May, and perhaps two or three other meetings next year. But probably not football for several years. It is better that mutual confidence be built up again gradually, rather than have it perhaps destroyed permanently by some unfortunate episode in a grand "get-together" contest.

IN PRAISE OF RITCHIE.
[Rock Island Argus.]

Writing in the Baltimore Sun, H. L. Mencken says of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland that of all the supposed candidates for the presidential nomination he is the most attractive. "Unlike the Hon. Owen D. Young," says Mr. Mencken, "he has no inconvenient strings tied to him, and is not open to attack by demagogues. Unlike the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, he is not saddled with Tammany and did not wait until the last minute to turn wet. And unlike the Hon. Mr. Buckley of Ohio and other such aspirants he is already well known throughout the country and does not have to be hawked like a new corn cure. He stands for a body of ideas that is coherent, sensible, and fast making converts. He has had long experience in the public service, and shows a high capacity for it. He is a frank, intelligent, and honorable man, with enough courage and color to make him dramatic and interesting. Moreover, he is a very skillful, practical politician."

ANGINA PECTORIS.

One of the greatest physicians of all time was Dr. John Hunter. Dr. Hunter became subject to angina pectoris when in the midst of his most useful years. He had work to do and he wanted to live to do it. He knew the power of the emotions to bring on an attack of his disorder. He once said, "My life is in the hands of any rascal that chooses to worry me." Pretty good words for a man, or woman, either, subject to angina pectoris to remember. If he will use them to keep himself emotionally stable, free from excitement, anger, worry, and anxiety, he may live to complete some of his undertakings, just as did John Hunter.

Angina pectoris is a neuralgia of the heart. It comes on because, for the moment, and for one cause or another, the heart muscle does not get as much blood as it needs. It cries out in protest and the cry takes the form of three symptoms, of which all may be present in a given case, or any one may be absent. These are: Pain starting behind the breast bone and often shooting down the arm, a feeling of constriction and weight on the chest, and a sense of impending catastrophe.

It may be confused with pains around the heart due to rheumatism of the chest wall, or to neuralgia, or to introspection. It may also be confused with an even more serious related disease, coronary embolus, concerning which there will be a paragraph further down this column.

A man who is subject to angina must cut his cloth accordingly. Above all, he must avoid indulgence in emotions. Such are too rich for his blood. Henceforth, emotionally, he must sing a slender song. Likewise, he must live within his muscle strength, and within his wind and his endurance. Heavy meals, slow digestion, reverse peristalsis, flatulence, and belching contribute to his life hazards and should be treated accordingly. A man subject to angina pectoris should be taught by his physician how to treat himself for relief from pain. And he should never go anywhere without being equipped to give himself quick relief.

In coronary thrombus and embolus there is a clot in a branch of a coronary artery. This is a more serious condition than its kinsman, angina pectoris. Up to recent years it was regarded as invariably fatal, but physicians now know how to diagnose it, how to treat it, how to cure some cases, and some things that can be done to prevent it.

It is highly important that the pulse and other symptoms be studied to discover whether a given heart case is one of angina pectoris or of coronary thrombosis.

TOOTHPICK AND SNORING.

C. V. M. writes: 1. I pick my teeth with a wooden toothpick thoroughly after each meal. Is there any harm to the gums in this practice?

2. Each morning when I get up my tongue is coated and my breath foul. My teeth are all right and I am not constipated.

3. I have several gold fillings. Might these cause a bad breath?

4. Could infected sinus be the cause?

5. My nose becomes very dry, causing me to want to pick it.

REPLY.

1. I don't think so.
2. I suspect you sleep with your mouth open and snore.
3. No.
4. No.
5. Maybe the air in your bedroom is too warm and dry. Do you ventilate your room? Ozena is possible.

MAY BE RHEUMATIC.

Miss L. G. writes: I have severe headaches, mostly across the left side of my head. If I touch my forehead it feels very sore. Do you think this is neuralgia?

REPLY.

A headache that is accompanied by considerable tenderness when the scalp and upper neck are pressed is very apt to be rheumatic. Particularly is this true if the headache is relieved by one of the salicylates. If your headaches are rheumatic there is a fair chance that treatment for rheumatism, including some change in your habits, would cure you.

AIR MINDED.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am interested in purchasing an airplane, but am informed because I am not a citizen I can not register a plane in my name as personal property. I have my first papers. I am 22 and have been twenty-one years in this country, having been born in England. Can you advise me? V. C. O.

We know of no limitations on the mere ownership of a plane. In order to operate it you must, of course, comply with strict requirements.

FLOODING LOTS FOR SKATING.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—Every year we seem to have difficulty getting the vacant land at the corner of Kesler, Argyle and Kedvale flooded for ice skating for the children of the neighborhood. This year some one succeeded in getting it partially flooded but not enough to be of use.

Will you kindly advise who to get in touch with so that the children can make use of this pond? E. M.

It is necessary that the written permission of the owner of the vacant lot be filed with the mayor, who in turn is authorized under the city ordinance to grant permission to the water pipe extension division of the department of public works to use the hydrant and the necessary water without charge.

After this procedure has been followed, the water pipe extension division forwards the permission to the fire department, and as soon as possible thereafter the lot is flooded by this department. A. W. GOODRICH, Fire Commissioner.

CLUB CHARTER.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there any state or city charge for a club charter? 2. If so, what is the price of the state and what is the price of the city charter? T. O.

1. The charge for organizing a corporation not for profit is $10 plus certain incidental expenses. You can secure printed forms and instructions from the secretary of state, Springfield, Ill.

2. The city has nothing to do with it.

A DAY AT A WASHINGTON EMBASSY.

"Contrary to the law and the constitution persons of diplomatic status in Washington annually bring in hundreds of thousands of quarts of liquor."—Sen. Howell of Nebraska.

Young Percy Goldbraid, one of the brightest of the many bright young attachés of the embassy of Googlevania in Washington, awoke with a yawn and lazily stretched out his arms in delicious relaxation. He immediately pulled in both his arms, for in each hand was a glass containing a good stiff slug of brandy placed there by the faithful valets waiting at his bedside.

Humming an old Googlevanian love song, Percy sprang lightly into his bath of Extra Dry champagne, and then as he dressed he paused now and then to sip sparkling Burgundy or a very delightful Moselle from the Rhine.

"I'm all dressed, Jinkins," said Percy, pleasantly, "my breakfast, damn you, and make it snappy!"

"Quite so," said the faithful Jinkins, and leaving the room he soon returned with a tray containing three glasses of Scotch whisky, which Percy downed quickly and then called for his mail.

"No more breakfast?" asked Jinkins, solicitously.

"I've eaten enough, I think," said Percy. "I must take my morning constitutional with the other members of my riding club."

Going downstairs Percy turned into a room off the great main hall of the embassy, which was crowded with all sorts of Washington people, for you must remember that in these dry days an embassy in Washington is most popular. In the rooms were diplomats, statesmen, society folk, and here and there a western millionaire, rough, bluff men, but with hearts of purest gold.

"Hello, fellow equestrians!" shouted Percy, joyfully; "three cheers for our riding club!"

The cheers were given with a will and grew louder and more enthusiastic as Percy shouted, "Jaxsky" (an old Googlevanian name), "bring in the ponies and we'll all have a ride."

Jaxsky immediately appeared with a great tray full of ponies of brandy, which were passed around with renewed cheers and cries of "Whoa, whoa!"

"And now for another merry canter," cried Percy, and again the saucy ponies were brought in on a tray and tossed down to cries of, "They're off!" "Gittup, horse!" and other merry quips.

"And now," said Percy, "come into the reception hall, where a surprise awaits you."

They stepped into the reception hall, and there in the center stood a great white fountain of purest marble reaching to the very top of the twenty-four foot ceiling. The guests gazed at it silently and somewhat disappointedly.

"Them things are for water," said a statesman, pointing with his silk hat at the fountain. "Let's go back and have another ride."

Percy stepped to the wall and pressed a button. Immediately from a hundred or more little nozzles cunningly buried amidst the marble fauns, maidens, and fishes composing the fountain group burst streams of vivid color.

"The green stream," said Percy, proudly, "is crème de menthe, the red is bourbon whisky 20 years old, the tawny yellow is Château Yquem, and the purple is a new cocktail I have invented myself. You will find goblets on the table back of you, gentlemen; help yourselves and remember that the fountain plays at any hour of the day or night by simply pressing this button."

There was great cheering and then the great crowd of other Washington people who had been impatiently waiting outside were admitted and many of them jumped into the fountain and drank eagerly from the bubbling streams without waiting to fill their glasses.

And thus it went, all day long. It takes great ingenuity to dispose of hundreds of thousands of quarts of liquor.

TO MEMORY.

O Memory, my comrade, come with me
Across yon barren field, in swift retreat,
By youth traversed with tireless, truant feet,
Let us go back, O faithful Memory—
There is a grove, there is a certain tree,
Awaiting, where the woods and meadow meet,
Whose shadow falls as tender and as sweet
As twilight dreams descend in Arcady.

And in the forest is a grottoed nook,
Steeped in the shadows of the dusk and dawn,
Where, all unvexed and vague, a lethal brook
Flows ever to and from Oblivion.
There I shall linger, learning to forget,

EOLUS.

TWO of Senator Norris' enemies out in Nebraska have been indicted, but the Democrats are praying that no steps of any kind will be taken against Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the G. O. P. national committee. They are thinking of giving Mr. Lucas a gold medal and something nice on his birthday, and if he only keeps the job he's got with the Republicans the Democrats are willing to do something pretty handsome for him after the national election in 1932.

LAGNIAPPE.

A LARGE PART of the men put back to work in the Ford factories have been set to work building new flivver and tin lizzie jokes. The Austin is proving so much funnier than the Ford that Henry's losing lots of publicity.

THE VICTORIAN REVIVAL, which is now on us like an avalanche, has brought back another old game, badminton. Anyhow, we can't mix our more modern sports up with badminton because it isn't played with dice and there is no temptation to forget Victoria and begin to shout, "Come on, you snake eyes!" "Mamma wants a new dress!" "Come seben, come elebben!" "Shoot 'er all!" And other vain things like that.

A CHICAGO MEDICO says various sorts of food cause asthma, eczema, hives, gastric bronchitis, and a chronic cough. We venture to say that the starving farmers in Arkansas, Kentucky, Oklahoma, and points west are perfectly willing to take a chance. R. H. L.

PROHIBITION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 26, 1915.

BERLIN.—An official statement by the admiralty asserts that a British battle cruiser was sunk in the North sea fight on Jan. 24. The name of the British vessel is not given, but the press and public are rejoicing as it is assumed that the vessel sunk was larger than the Bluecher, the armored cruiser lost by the Germans. Rear Admiral Hipper commanded the German squadron.

BERLIN.—All stocks of wheat have been seized by the German government, according to an official statement, in order to safeguard the bread supply until the next harvest.

WASHINGTON.—The most authoritative condemnation of President Wilson's ship purchase bill by any public man to date and the gravest warning of the dangers involved in the proposed legislation were uttered in the senate by Senator Root of New York. Mr. Root asserted that the purchase of ships from the nationals of belligerent powers would be held invalid by Europe and would almost certainly precipitate the American republic into the foreign conflict.

ROME.—The committee of the radical party has unanimously adopted a motion declaring that Italy's participation in the war is indispensable to the protection of the nation's interests. It is rumored at Venice that an Austrian dreadnaught has struck a mine off Pola and sunk.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 26, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Fire which started in Pitkin & Brooks' china and art ware store, Lake and State streets, at midnight, destroyed the building and contents. The loss was $350,000.

LONDON.—King Edward sent his first message to parliament. It was read in both houses and expressed sorrow at the death of Queen Victoria. Eulogies of the dead monarch and congratulations to the new one were pronounced in the houses of lords and commons.

WASHINGTON.—A report of the Taft Philippine commission sent to congress by President McKinley says the insurrection is dying out rapidly since the United States elections. Tens of thousands of natives have sworn allegiance and good progress has been made with industries. Passage of the Spooner civil government bill is urged by the commission.

NEW ORLEANS.—Ashea Waba, an actress, attended the matinée at the Crescent theater and would not remove her hat. She was arrested and fined $15. This is the first arrest under the high hat law.

ROME.—A special dispatch to the Patria announces that Verdi, the composer, is dead.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 26, 1881.

DUBLIN.—The government coercion bill has created something akin to consternation and wholesale arrests are expected here as soon as the bill passes. The authorities have taken the greatest precautions to preserve order. Mr. Parnell left Dublin by steamer for London to take up his fight in the house of commons against the measure.

LONDON.—The remains of E. A. Sothern, the comedian, were interred at Southampton in the same grave with his sister, Mrs. Gwynne Boucicault. Edwin Booth and a few personal friends attended the funeral. Robert Windham, also a friend of the dead comedian, led the burial service.

CHICAGO. — Miss Mary Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Ryan, and J. G. McCarthy were married in St. Columbkille's church, Indiana and Paulina streets, by the Rev. Father Thomas Burke.

FRANKSVILLE, Wis. — Morning trains from Chicago and Milwaukee brought to this village about 200 sporting men who sought the retirement and quiet of the country for the purpose of fighting chickens. The good townsmen here were shocked by the character of the excursion, but the visit, however, proved an event of financial importance to the hamlet. The cock fights took place in a two story wooden building just across from the depot. The betting was heavy between the Chicago and Milwaukee sports.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

OUR HIGHLANDERS.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Mr. Phillip Kinsley's vivid stories of the plight of the Kentucky mountaineers call public attention to one of the most unique portions of our population, a primitive people, living practically the same lives as did their revolutionary ancestors, 100 per cent American and harboring a reservoir of pure blood the republic should have a great pride in possessing and protecting. They are, generally speaking, small farmers living away from the main traveled roads, and because of the severe drought of last summer they are now left even without the barest necessities of life.

In his delightful book, "Our Southern Highlanders," Horace Kephart describes these mountaineers of the south as "marked apart from all other folk by dialect, by customs, by character, by self-conscious isolation. . . . No one can understand the attitude of our highlanders toward the rest of the earth until he realizes their amazing isolation from all that lies beyond the blue hazy skyline of their mountains."

There are 46 peaks rising 6,000 feet above sea level in these highlands. Does one wonder that they are a sequestered people, not only cut off from the outside world but separate from each other?

Fifty years ago Charles Egbert Craddock first wrote her entrancing stories of the lives of these people and the wonderful beauty of their surroundings. Following her, John Fox wove a web of romance about them, and since then other writers have been attracted by the singular lives they lead. As a race, says Fox, they are "proud, sensitive, hospitable, kindly, obliging in an unreckoning way that is almost pathetic, honest, loyal, and in spite of their common ignorance, poverty and isolation, they are naturally capable, eager to learn, easy to uplift. American to the core, they make the southern mountains a storehouse of patriotism."

President Frost of Berea college, who has worked among them for nearly a lifetime and has helped to educate their young folk by thousands, says: "It does one's heart good to help a young Lincoln who comes walking in, perhaps a three days' journey on foot, with a few hard earned dollars in his pocket and a great eagerness for the education he can so faintly comprehend."

They have taken part in every war from the revolutionary war to the great war. In the civil war they were to be found in both armies, but mainly were unionists, and furnished 180,000 riflemen to the federal armies. Alvin York lives across the divide in Tennessee from these people and is one of them.

If one of our cities of 250,000 people should by some fate be cast into the dire condition now existing in these mountains there would be a great flow of funds for the alleviation of its inhabitants. Shall we not also respond to the mute appeal of these true Americans? R. L. B.

FOR BERGDOLL.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—I would like to comment on this Bergdoll business. That poor fellow in my opinion has been punished enough, and should be given a "break." He should be given every opportunity to redeem himself in the eyes of the world. I am not pro-German in any sense of the word, either. I was as patriotic as the next man was and still am. RICHARD H. HOLZER.

A TEACHER OF ADULTS.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—In answer to Mr. Thomas Jewell's letter, I, one of the youngster teachers in the night schools of Chicago, wish to state my side of this situation. Although I am only 23 years old, I do not consider myself an untrained or unprepared teacher of foreign adults. I was graduated from the Chicago Normal college in 1929. After leaving school I became interested in the education of foreign adults. I took a course in the teaching of adults at the Normal college in the summer of 1930. I toured the countries of Europe and gained first hand knowledge of the characteristics of the many different nationalities one meets in the night schools of this city.

I have been teaching since September. At the present time I have a class of 30. My extreme youth does not decrease the membership. The experience of a teacher in the day schools of Chicago does not guarantee a success as a teacher of foreign adults. Neither youth nor inexperience hinders a person who is human. Ask any of the teachers in the night schools if they were ever trained to teach foreign adults. The answer will, no doubt, be in the negative. The training of teachers for foreign adult work is a comparatively new phase in education.

All that the young unassigned teachers of Chicago ask for is a real chance to prove what they are worth. We are not getting that chance. I understand that there are 6,000 married teachers in the day schools. There are about 1,200 substitutes who get little or no work. A SUB.

ALD. CROWE.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—The report of the Municipal Voters' league concerning the qualifications of our aldermen may be proper enough, but in my own judgment I think it does not do Ald. Dorsey Crowe justice. Representing very valuable property in his ward, it has become necessary for me on several occasions to ask his assistance in handling the problems, and I have always found him very efficient, very prompt and very courteous. In my own personal opinion I think he is an exceptionally good alderman, and think it is only fair to him to so advise you. GEORGE P. MANAGO.

OIL.

Oak Park, Ill., Jan. 19.—Your article, "Wishful Thinking in the Oil Fields," leads one to feel quite sure you own considerable stock in one or more of the five groups who control about 85 per cent of the refining capacity in the United States, and who import practically all the oil into this country—free of any tariff. You have neglected to state that while the price of crude oil is lower than it has been for years, consumers of gasoline and motor oil pay practically the same as when it was high. C. ROWLAND.

THE PRICE OF CANDY.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Yesterday I purchased ten pounds of sugar for 49 cents. No doubt it is cheaper in larger quantities. However, the price of most of the candy remains 70 cents or more per pound. My husband and I allow ourselves a small budget for luxuries. He gets his favorite brand of cigars a little cheaper, but my favorite brands of candies are still at "pre-war" prices. I'm sure many of us would buy more candy if prices would come down. ANXIOUS.

STIMSON SENDS FOR U. S. ENVOY IN NICARAGUA

Minister and Commander of Marines Take Plane.

They expect to reach Miami at 9:15 o'clock Tuesday morning. Both refused to make any statement regarding whether the visit might lead to the withdrawal of United States marines from Nicaragua, but Mr. Hanna said that he were going to Washington to confer with Secretary Stimson on matters affecting the country's material wealth.

"The world-wide depression and unrest," he said, "have made the solution of Nicaragua's problems more difficult. President Moncada has been remarkably successful in carrying out his progressive program and is determined to continue it despite difficulties.

Want Support of U. S.

"He is keenly aware of the necessities of the situation, refusing to give way to discouragement, and intends to keep on his work during the remaining two years of his administration.

"The president and I have discussed matters in the frankest manner and at his request I will lay them before the government to the end that its cooperation may be of maximum assistance.

"The Nicaraguan government, the people, and the president want the moral and material assistance and support of the United States. In response to their request we are helping them, and the president hopes my conference in Washington may bring this about.

"No Need for More Marines."

Before leaving, Col. McDougal was asked if he believed more marines would be brought to Nicaragua. He replied there was no necessity for that the guard were made stronger.

"I believe that the most efficient way of putting a stop to bandit activities," he said, "is to augment the present from its present personnel of 1,000 up to 2,500."

DAISY DE BOE WILL BE SENTENCED TODAY; BARS ALL VISITORS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25.—(AP)—A Sunday of rest—preparatory for tomorrow's appearance in court for sentence for grand theft—was the choice of Daisy De Boe today. From behind her county jail cell bars she sent the request, "No visitors wanted." Miss De Boe explained she had had too many visitors since Friday, when she was convicted of an $825 theft from Clara Bow.

The ex-secretary of the flim "it" girl will ask for a new trial, and if that is refused will file a notice of appeal from the conviction.

"If both of these efforts fail I still can ask for probation," she explained. "But I'm going to fight to a finish. I am not guilty. Miss Bow signed that $825 check herself."

Jurors who convicted the blonde ex-secretary after being deadlocked more than 48 hours acquitted her on all but one of 35 grand theft counts. One juror, admitting the conviction was a compromise verdict, said the one guilty count was "selected at random." The verdict carried a plea for leniency.

INQUEST TODAY ON BERWYN'S POLICE TRAGEDY

Lieut. John Marshall last night was in temporary command of the Berwyn police force while arrangements were being made for the inquest today into the killing Saturday night of Lieut. John Cihak by Patrolman Frank Hejl. Lieut. Cihak was shot to death while seated at the police switchboard by Hejl, who was released recently from the Elgin State hospital for the Insane.

Acting Chief of Police James Mikes, who is a brother-in-law of Hejl, praised Lieut. Cihak's efficiency as a police officer. He was 45 years old and lived at 1525 Kenilworth avenue, Berwyn, with his wife and four unmarried children. A fifth child, a daughter, is married.

CUBAN OFFICIALS PLAN TO TIGHTEN GRIP ON PRESS

Three Big Dailies May Be Allowed to Reopen.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Jan. 25.—The strangle hold which President Gerardo Machado now has on the Cuban press is possible only because of the sweeping authority of the suspension of constitutional guarantees. Under the normal law the president, if offended by the press, would have to take his grievances to court and pursue his case through personal appearances. President Machado is too busy a man for any such quibbling routine.

So on next Monday, according to reports, Senator Diaz Pardo will introduce in congress a bill designed to give the president a greatly simplified control of the press, not unlike his present prerogatives under the suspension of constitutional rights.

It is reported that Senator Pardo's bill contains 55 articles, but the main provision is that the police may confiscate any edition of any paper printed in Cuba which contains news or articles objectionable to the government. The bill also provides, according to an announcement by the senator, that none but Cuban citizens may be "directors" of papers. It is not the plan to impose prison sentences, but fines may be imposed for effrontery to the administration.

May Reopen 3 Dailies.

Backed by this new and detailed weapon against the press, it is said to be probable that the administration again will permit the publication of El Mundo, Diare de la Marina, and El Pais, the three big dailies recently closed by arbitrary order of the president. There is even a chance that the Havana American will resume if it is willing to submit to the curbs provided by Senator Pardo's measure.

While Senator Pardo is getting his bill ready for introduction, however, Representative Carmelo Urquiaga has taken a hand in press regulation. Señor Urquiaga has succeeded in having attached to the emergency tax law just returned to the senate a rider which provides that "no publication in Cuba shall use the terms king, queen, count, lord, duke, or any other royal title."

Passed by House.

The house passed the rider by unanimous consent, and when passed by the senate and enacted into law the government will be empowered to fine editors who use the terms. The urgency of such a law has not been made quite clear, but the deportation decree recently issued for the editor, John T. Wilford of the Havana American, took violent exceptions to Mr. Wilford's implications that President Machado was seeking to establish Cuba as a monarchy. Press references to "King Gerardo," either in words or pictures, obviously would be quite offensive to the president, as would the use of other royal terms applied to other members of the official family.

The three American dailies now publishing in Havana—the Havana Post, the Evening Telegram, and the Evening News—have no intention of incurring the ire of the infernal censorship. Their reports on all government matters are mild and perfunctory, and editorial comments and opinions on Cuban matters are not printed. The News gets brave enough to make a subtle wisecrack once in a while, but the publication is of restricted circulation and size as compared with the Post, a morning paper, and the Telegram.

Withhold Praise.

On the other hand, the American papers refrain from praise of the administration and its aims. They steer a safe course by reciting all the tourist doings, their coverage on personal items and pictures being especially thorough and painstaking.

In the last few days the papers have taken on the California journalistic technique, said to be a rare procedure here. News that Miami has been in the clutches of winter weather, with record low temperatures, ruined crops, and shipwrecks, has received the top headlines here for several days. The bad weather news from Florida has had a rival in prohibition news from the United States, however.

Cuban officials, who recently have attributed sugar cane fires to causes other than unrest and vandalism, today were confronted with the task of determining the source of fire which has destroyed some 2,000,000 pounds of cane within the last 48 hours. Growers in Matanmas province were the victims of the latest fires. The biggest blaze occurred on the Capitolio farm, owned by Mrs. Caridad Fraga, where 250,000 pounds of cane were destroyed. The next largest blaze was on the farm of Dr. Enrique Ramirez, where 175,000 pounds were destroyed. The rural police has been ordered to make an immediate investigation.

SURVEY OF NAVY SHOWS DECLINE IN U. S. STRENGTH

Fails to Build Up to Treaty Quota.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—The rise of Japan as a ranking sea power and the gradual decline in relative strength of the United States navy since the inauguration of the naval limitation era in 1922 is graphically outlined today by the Navy League of the United States in a consolidated summary of the modern combatant vessels of the five major sea powers.

Tables accompanying the league summary disclose that the United States was 153,698 tons short of the combatant naval tonnage, built, building and authorized, permitted on Jan. 1, 1931, by the London naval treaty. On that same date Great Britain was 20,874 tons below its allowed quota, while Japan was within 2,723 of the maximum figure permitted by the pact.

Ratios Not Maintained.

At the Washington arms conference a ratio in battleships and aircraft carriers was set up of five for the United States, five for Great Britain and three for Japan. The navy league tables show that the present ratio of strength in all combatant ships, counting vessels built, building and authorized, is five for the United States, 5.8 for Great Britain, and 3.6 for Japan.

Summaries made public by the navy league state that whereas the United States fleet is made up largely of vessels rapidly reaching the age limit where they must be replaced, Japan has practically a new navy. The summary points out also that while the United States has not passed authorization legislation starting this country on the way to a treaty navy since the pact was ratified, both Great Britain and Japan are pushing ahead along this line.

Attention is directed to a section of the summary which points out that all American destroyers will be over the age limit prior to the expiration of the London naval treaty in 1936. The fact that no replacement of destroyers has been appropriated for by congress is also commented upon.

Far Behind Quota.

"As among the three principal powers," states the summary, "the United States is farthest from its quota in aircraft carriers, farthest from its quota in large gun cruisers, and farthest from its quota in small gun cruisers. Looking ahead six years to the end of the treaty it will be seen futher, if we consider vessels now built, building and appropriated for, which will not have passed the age limit at that time, the United States will be farthest from its quota in destroyers and in submarines unless a replacement program is promptly gotten under way.

"This situation is the result of the meager building undertaken by the United States since 1921. While others have been building we have been saving to the point that we now find ourselves far short of treaty totals or with vessels that are about at the end of their useful life. A replacement program is imperative if the American navy is to achieve not parity but a sufficient number of auxiliary vessels to permit the fleet to continue its training as a fleet.

"A birdseye view of the warships of the principal navies," the summary continues, "shows that today the United States is 154,000 tons, or 13 per cent, below the strength permitted by the treaties, counting all vessels built, building and appropriated for. The British empire, in the aggregate, is 21,000 tons below its quota, and the Japanese empire is virtually up to treaty strength.

"Japan's position is fortunate in that she has practically a new navy, whereas the United States and the British empire, to a considerable extent, have older vessels many of which will become 'over age' in the next few years."

ROBBED AND LOCKED IN ICEBOX.

Isadore Marx was robbed of $193 by three bandits yesterday morning a few minutes after he had opened his grocery store at 1853 Lake street. Two of the robbers were Negroes. They locked him in the icebox.

SO. SIDERS OPEN 103D STREET AT CELEBRATION

Residents of the far south side marched across 103d street yesterday afternoon to celebrate the impending settlement of their dispute with the Nickel Plate railroad over the closing of 103d street to provide switching yards. Negotiations for compromise, through which the street will be developed, are under way.

Approximately 500 residents east of Lake Calumet assembled at Torrence avenue. An equal number met at Cottage Grove avenue. At a signal both divisions marched to meet at Stony Island avenue, near the tracks. Miss Veronica J. Powers, 10234 Calumet avenue, led the united group across the tracks and was hailed as the Joan of Arc of 103d street. The demonstration was followed by a picnic and barbecue. A meeting was addressed by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th].

Dangerous Gassy Stomach Torture Ends Quick

"I am pleased and glad to say and tell you that a package of ACIDINE helped me quicker than anything else I ever tried," says William Ronts of Windgap, Pa. "I will tell you there are a good many people killed with this gas in the stomach. If you have a weak heart it is dangerous. I tell others about this—to get ACIDINE and try it."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, gassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

Avoid Half-Cured Colds!

Half-cured colds are a sourse of great danger! Many a case of Flu grows out of them. When you catch cold take steps to get it out of your system quickly and cleanly. That calls for something more than your old-fashioned cold "cures." It calls for a treatment such as McKesson's Darol. Darol acts with double speed and effectiveness. Change the system from an acid condition to alkaline condition, in which cold and grippe germs do not thrive. Two tablets every three hours with a full glass of water will usually stop a cold in 6 hours and drive it completely out of the system in 12. No bad effects for headaches and the pains of neuralgia and neuritis. Get Darol at all McKesson Service Druggists and other independent drug stores with guarantee of satisfaction or money back. MEXICAN TARIFF RUNS BACKWARD; HURTS INDUSTRY

Gives Protection Where None Is Needed.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 25.—Mexico's protective tariff has begun to have effects, some of which are not favorable to the Mexicans. The tariff was intended to protect home industries and to encourage the growth of others not yet well established in the country. A heavy duty was put on eggs without its having appreciably increased the native output, with the result that eggs are now thirty per cent higher than they were before the tariff came into effect, and prices threaten to go still higher.

So far no one has taken to putting eggs into cold storage or built a factory to convert them into egg-flour, as powdered eggs are called here. Nobody likes to overwork here and the hens took a fit when they learned they were expected to do what the American hens had been doing for them.

Price of Buttons Sky High.

Another inconsistency of the tariff is the tax on buttons. The raw material from which buttons are made is not produced in this country, and no factory to make buttons or raw material for them has come into existence.

Lead pencils, which used to be notably cheap in Mexico, are now so costly that it is a hardship to the school children, who are, on the average, poor. Many schools have gone back to the slate.

Building material, very little of which is manufactured in Mexico, with the exception of structural steel and its accessories, has been subjected to a heavy additional tax which has considerably increased the cost of building wherever imported materials are used, as is necessary in larger edifices.

Bulbs Up 100 Per Cent.

The duty on electric bulbs has been increased 100 per cent and people are now buying the inferior grades made in the country. Chemicals, patent medicines, drugs, and cloth of all kinds have also been taxed from 10 to 50 per cent over the duties of a year ago. As a result American, French, German, and Belgian factories have begun manufacturing in Mexico to avoid the payment of customs duties.

BANDITS SEIZE $9,000 ON GAMBLING TABLES IN MIAMI AND FLEE

Miami, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP)—While Miami Beach police were raiding the exclusive Palm Island club today, two bandits armed with sawed off shotguns invaded a gambling house in Miami and escaped with $9,000.

Police reported that the bandits entered while play was high and lined eighty players against the walls.

The bandits calmly made the round of the tables, taking all the money in sight, and escaped. The patrons were not robbed.

At the Miami Beach club police, armed with warrants charging gambling, started to clamp down the city's recent ban on games of chance. The place was crowded with wealthy winter residents, but none was arrested.

Fred Aubeck, who told police he was the proprietor, was booked on charges of operating a gambling establishment.

The raid was said tohave been the result of notice by city council last week that the lid on gambling at Miami Beach "has been, is, and will continue to be kept on." The statement was made by Mayor Val C. Cleary after members of the financially and socially exclusive committee of 100 demanded illegal forms of entertainment be banished.

FUMES FROM HEATER FATAL.

John Smith, 65 years old, 818 Milwaukee avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital. He was found unconscious in his home on Jan. 20, overcome by gas from a heater which had become disconnected.

LEGION CHIEFS URGE IMMEDIATE BONUS PAYMENT

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The national executive committee of the American Legion meeting in special session here today gave its indorsement to the principle of immediate cash retirement, on application of veterans' compensation certificates.

The Legion's national convention at Boston last year tabled a resolution which favored payment of 80 per cent of the compensation certificates. A growing demand among veterans for cashing the certificates prompted the calling of the executive committee to settle the dispute over the organization's position taken at the Boston convention.

Becomes Insistent.

Before adopting a resolution on the cash payments of the certificates the executive committee adopted a subcommittee report declaring the policy of the executive committee as to its right to interpret action of a national convention.

This report held that in tabling the resolution at Boston for payment on the certificates the convention had declared itself "unwilling to consider, duscuss, or initiate action in that direction." It added, however, that "since such question has been initiated elsewhere and has been broadly discussed and has become an insistent question, it is now appropriate and necessary for the executive committee to state plainly the opinion of the American legion on this subject."

Does Not Choose Bill.

The resolution calling for the cash payments said that the national committee "endorses the principle of immediate cash retirement on application of the adjusted service certificates, without choosing as between any of the specific bills now pending before congress. It was added that the committee is of the opinion that such legislation would benefit not only the veterans themselves but the citizenship of the entire country."

LAVAL CABINET SEEMS ASSURED; HELP IS PLEDGED

PARIS, Jan. 25.—(AP)—The formation of a cabinet by Pierre Laval, youthful Independent Socialist senator, appeared assured tonight when the Radical Socialist party, controlling 135 votes in the chamber of deputies, voted its support. The decision of the party, among whose leaders are Herriot, Daladier, and Chautemps, came after a three hours' caucus.

The Laval cabinet, it is expected, will be composed of many elements of the former Steeg and Tardieu cabinets, dropping the Socialist support and seeking a majority in the center and moderate right elements. Tardieu is expected to be offered a portfolio.

Take Detroit! I took it . . . or rather OLD GOLD did . . . in stride. Greeted the Mayor. Met Detroit Clubmen. Stood in the middle of the International Bridge. Raced all over town, with four leading brands of cigarettes with names concealed to be sampled by Detroit's busy populace.

And what happened? The same OLD GOLD story! The same OLD GOLD win! This time by a 33% margin!

Of course there's a reason! OLD GOLD was tailored to the American smoke palate. Picked by taste-tests before this brand was ever placed on the market. That's why it appeals to American smokers more than any other brand of cigarette.

Still . . . it takes an exception to prove a rule . . . and I am still looking for that exception. Isn't there some city that won't pick O. G.?

THE LONG LOOP

BY B. M. BOWER

SYNOPSIS.

Simon Larrabee, head of Whistling Creek ranch, was swindled in an oil well frameup by Owen Gray, neighboring rancher and banker. Everything he owned, except the home ranch, was mortgaged. Dix, an orphan, keeps from his grandmother and his young brother, Chuck, the true state of affairs. Gram has her heart set on seeing Chuck a doctor. Chuck has expensive tastes and his indulgent older brother has a hard task paying for his college tuition and material demands.

Mart McGuire tempts Dix with the idea of changing the brand of the cattle from Gray's O T ranch to a coffeepot, symbol of Dix's own.

Tim, an Indian helper, discovers a lost valley with a geyser on the Coffeepot ranch. But one passage leads to it, through what seems to be a blank cliff wall. It is an ideal summer for cattle.

INSTALLMENT VII.

PITILESS TAUNTS.

Dix had no dreams good or bad that night, because from bedtime until 7 o'clock in the morning he lay blinking into the dark, his fine, strong hands clasped under his head. Then he got up, pulled on his wool lined moccasins and a heavy quilted bathrobe Chuck had sent him last Christmas, and pulled down the window blind before he lighted his lamp. He sat at his desk and began to cover sheets of tablet paper with figures over which he sat frowning like a schoolboy, rumpling his hair with one hand while he thought.

At 4:30 he gathered up all the sheets of paper save the last one where he had copied an orderly sum in addition, multiplication and subtraction, and stuffed the discard into the stove, adding kindling and wood which he lighted. He stood there rubbing his numbed fingers until the fire was burning steadily, closed the drafts, blew out the lamp and crawled into bed, bathrobe and all.

The lines of his face relaxed as his eyelids slowly dropped. For the first time since the oil bubble burst he slept quietly, in utter relaxation.

A ray of sunlight was shining on his head and revealing a sprinkle of white amongst the brown when he woke to find Gram shaking him by the shoulder. Dix did an unusual thing; he caught her hand in his, held it while he grinned boyishly up into her face bending over him, and kissed the hand before he let it go.

"For pity sake, Dixon! Get up and get yourself ready for breakfast!" But Gram's wrinkled mouth was smiling when she turned away and went bustling briskly out of the room.

Mart had eaten and gone. Minny was chanting a high, wailing Indian song over the dishpan, and Gram sat by the window in the sun, sorting carpet rags. The smell of coffee boiled too long filled the warm kitchen. Dix cracked an egg with his knifeblade, his thoughts on other things, though he was conscious too of the snug comfort of the room, of the palsied fingers plucking bright strings from the tangled heap in Gram's blue checked apron, of Minny's nasal chanting. He knew the words she sang. The Indian maiden stands on the hill, the hunters ride after the buffalo. Dix used to sing the song himself in Indian when he was little. Minny had taught him, holding him on her broad lap.

At 4:30 he gathered up all the sheets of paper save the last one.

"What do you hear from the Graypoint Oil folks, Dixon? Any likelihood of anybody getting their money back?"

"Yes, there is. It's not supposed to be known, but Owen Gray's going to start paying it back next fall. On the quiet, Gram. Don't say anything to anybody, will you?"

"Nobody ever accused me of being talkative, Dixon. Is he going to pay Minny and Tom back their money?"

"Sure is, if they'll wait till after shipping. They'll get their money back with interest."

"Well, that's better than I expected of a Gray."

"He can't do that with everybody—that's why there can't be anything said about it. Owen's going to pay us back every dollar."

Gram held a red flannel string in her shaking hand while she stared at Dix over her glasses.

"Dixon, what did you do to Owen Gray? You've got some hold over him—you can't fool me."

"Just a private arrangement is all."

"Did you threaten him, Dixon? I know that temper of yours, remember. I've spanked you too many times for holding a grudge till you saw a chance to pay it off. And I know the Grays." she added grimly. "Owen's like his father, smooth as butter to your face, making any kind of a promise you want, just to pacify you. Are you sure he'll keep his promise to pay?"

"Tolerably sure. Sure as I can be of anything that ain't happened yet." Dix pushed back his chair and got up. "Just put it outa your mind, Gram. If the neighbors got to hear of it, the stuff's off and we'll never get a cent. Keep it under your hat, both of you." His glance went to the huge bulk of checked gingham that was Minny's back.

"Don't you go and get into any more mixups with Owen Gray. He may look plausible enough, but he won't pay a dollar that he can get out of paying, mark my words, Dixon."

"He will this time. You just forget it, Gram. Let me run this."

"Mind what I tell you, you look out for Owen Gray. Don't you place any dependance in his paying next fall. Shipping time's a long ways off for a thing to remember a promise."

"Never you mind, Gram. Wait till shipping time comes before you start fussing."

"Is it some scheme of his where you put up more money?"

"No, I don't put up a dime."

"I warn you, Dixon, I've known the O T outfit longer than you've been born into the world. We never had any dealings with 'em that we didn't get the little end of the horn. Old O T was always palaverin' around our faces, and stealing behind our backs. If it could be proved on him, he branded many a critter that didn't belong to him."

Gram pushed her glasses up on her forehead and waggled a finger at Dix. "What do you s'pose your gran'father had his brand changed for? We started in with the Quarter-circle Bar, and old Gray moved in with the O T. We got to losing cattle right and left. Then your gran'father changed his brand to the coffeepot to protect himself—but there isn't any doubt in my mind but what the O T could tell you why your calf crop is always shorter'n it ought be."

"It won't be from now on," Dix threw in unguardedly.

"It's easy to talk, Dixon, but you look out. What do you s'pose the bank was put in my name for? Because your father was gullible as you are, Dixon, and let O T Gray just about talk him into a big irrigation scheme that would have swallowed every cent we had in the world. Your gran'father had sense enough to see what would happen when he was gone, and he deeded every foot of land we had to me. Your father would have made a pauper of us all, letting old Gray wrap him around his little finger. Now here you come, swallowing young Owen's harebrained schemes and handing over money to him for his own use. Oh!" The old woman snorted unutterable contempt. "Oil! Oil the whole country is full of it! Oil in your pockets so they'll slide into his all the easier—that's all the oil you'll ever get outa him. What will become of you and Charlie when I'm gone, I don't know. If Charlie doesn't learn in college how to take care of your money, you'll be working for wages when you oughta be able to spend your winters in California. You'll die in the poorhouse, Dixon, just as sure as you live—letting Owen Gray bamboozle you with his smooth talk. Oil! Oil on his tongue, is the only place there's oil in this country—"

She was still haranguing him on past troubles and future possibilities when Dix walked out of the house. No use being polite and staying to hear the old lady out, for he had neither the time nor the inclination to listen to a tale he had heard all his life.

On his way to the stable Dix opened the bunkhouse door and looked in, though it was not likely Mart would be inside at that hour of the morning. As he expected the cabin was empty. No one was around the stable corrals, and Mart's saddle was gone. Dix's favorite saddle horse, Cuaty, was missing in the corral, silent proof that Mart knew pretty well what would be Dix's first desire that day. He saddled and rode to the upper pasture and straight on to Whistling Spring and the hidden crevice nearby.

Tolstoy's Story "Resurrection" on Screen Again

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Again Tolstoy's famous story has been screened. This time it's an altalker—and a splendid one.

You're going to be surprised at the emotional power displayed by Lupe Velez, the little Mexican spitfire. In "Resurrection" she is, really, a great tragedienne. She submerges herself in her rôle and is Katusha Maslova as, I imagine, Tolstoy thought of her.

John Boles as Prince Dimitri is—magnificent. As the joyous, carefree student making ardent, innocent love to his aunt's ward—and servant—Katusha—he is handsome and engaging. As the elegant soldier of the czar's imperial guard, who returns home with eyes and soul muddied by experiences in St. Petersburg to ravish the girl he had once truly loved, he is devilishly fascinating. As the seasoned man of the world who, years later, finds himself on a jury that must decide the fate of Katusha Maslova, prostitute, charged with murder, he is a real and compelling personality. As the prince who sees the wrong he has done and turns his face toward a life of atonement, he emerges as a fine and Christlike character—capable of sending the girl he had wronged on her sad way with a white face of exaltation—singing!

Mr. Boles sings a couple of songs thrillingly. He and Miss Lupez make a great team, and they have had the best of direction.

The story's locale is Russia in 1876, at a time when Russia and Turkey were daring each other to knock chips off of shoulders.

The production is gorgeously costumed, finely staged, and atmospheric. Supporting players were cannily chosen. Excellent photograph and lines poignant and well delivered combine to make "Resurrection" a film that should be witnessed by lovers of good cinema fare.

See you tomorrow.

Chicago Jews Asked to Give More for the Chicago Poor

An appeal to Jews of Chicago for emergency contributions for the relief of needy members of their own race was issued last night at the annual meeting of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, in the Standard club. More than 350 persons attended the meeting.

Albert K. Foreman, banker, and president of the Jewish Charities organization, told the meeting that during the last year $1,528,000 had been expended against receipts of $1,409,000. The deficit of $119,000, he said, exceeded the organization's entire reserve fund by $1,500. As a result the present relief work is limited to the amount of current receipts.

Samuel A. Goldsmith, executive director, said that rigorous budgetary control had been instituted and had resulted in savings which would permit some reductions in the budget for the current year.

Seek Palestine Fund.

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Jewish leaders here today decided to launch a campaign at once for $2,500,000 for reconstruction activities in Palestine.

Morris Rothenberg was named directing chairman with Nathan Straus Jr., with James Marshall and Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland on the committee. Judge Walter M. Lewis of Philadelphia was selected as chairman of the committee on quotas. July 1 is set for the end of the drive.

Dr. Cyrus Adler, chairman of the American branch of the Jewish agency, said the agency and the British government would reach a satisfactory agreement in the revision of the Passfield white paper restricting the entry of Jews into Palestine.

He said he was certain the British government was sincere in its efforts to help rehabilitate the Jewish home land.

Emil Ludwig, at 50, Enjoys Cold Baths, Writing Biographies

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Emil Ludwig, German biographer, observed his 50th birthday anniversary today.

The man who made Napoleon and Bismarck best sellers on two continents declined, however, to reveal his next task, although it generally was assumed some other biography is contemplated.

He is an ardent tennis player and also takes pleasure in driving his automobile through the surrounding countryside and his motorboat on Lake Maggiore.

His wife and their two sons, 17 and 8 years old, make up the household.

In addition to his books on Napoleon and Bismarck, he has written biographies of William II. and of Lincoln. He also is the author of a number of plays.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An item in yesterday's TRIBUNE said that John Fair, 17 years old, of 2825 South Harvey street, Berwyn, was arrested Saturday night in connection with an automobile accident in the suburb. Fair was not under arrest but was at the Berwyn police station as a witness.

The mass meeting of the Chicago Woman's club on the mayoralty primary will be held at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street, this evening instead of Thursday evening, as stated in THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

'Colleges' Job Differs from Factory Goal'

Varied Output Called Aim of Former.

Winter Park, Fla., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Educational experts who attended the Rollins college conference here expressed the opinion that colleges of 30 years hence will place more emphasis on the cultural education of each student as an individual.

Arthur E. Morgan, president of Antioch college, and John Palmer Gavit, editor and journalist, agreed there already is a tendency to escape from present separation of higher education into liberal arts and vocational schools and that in the future colleges will stress individual cultural education.

"Cultural subjects on the one hand and vocational subjects on the other," Mr. Morgan said, "will be carried on together rather than be separated in different schools as at present."

Mr. Gavit said there were two forces at work in higher education. One is propelled under impulse of the vast development of machinery and mass production, which tends toward standardization of the student as a product. The other tendency is that represented by progressive schools, which, he pointed out, "is equally bad when it is carried to such extremes as building curriculum upon whims and adolescent interests of the students."

Dr. Wilder D. Bancroft, professor of chemistry at Cornell, said:

"There is need for colleges which [illegible] no time for research or special professions."

The primary purpose of the university should be research and that of the small liberal arts college should be teaching, he argued.

Anderson Castle Offered for Siam's King in U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—All of the luxury of a royal palace will be afforded the king of Siam when he pays an official visit to the capital in April.

The American government has accepted an offer by Larz Anderson, former ambassador to Japan for the king to use the massive castle-like Anderson home on Massachusetts avenue.

With no official residence for distinguished visitors, the American government borrows homes in Washington for their housing. The Anderson home was used once before for foreign visitors, in 1918 by the Belgian war mission.

Earl Carroll's Latest Sketch Book Opens with Flashing Scenes

Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" opened last night at the Grand Opera house with a full and appreciative house in attendance.

The "53 glittering scenes" promised in advertisements, glittered. The "56 of the most beautiful girls in the world" wore lots of pretty costumes and appeared in scenes ranging from what was called a Grecian garden to a ship's deck. After the Grecian garden, in which they speak in cultured accents of moonbeams and love, follows the scene called "Crescent Moonbeams," when the moonbeams fall on some of the world's most beautiful girls in costumes less elaborate than usual.

Will Mahoney captured the house. He's a really funny comedian. Dorothy Carroll's song, "Crashing the Golden Gates," with an effective chorus following, was one of the high points in real entertainment. Borrowing from the Negro spirituals in manner, it was jazz of a primitive and stirring nature.

Seeks Anglican Clergy's O. K. for "Green Pastures."

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 25.—[Special.]—As a last resort for the English production of "Green Pastures," which the censor banned, an attempt will be made to obtain the sanction of the highest church dignitaries.

After a private reading of Marc Connelly's Pulitzer prize play tonight by the American actress, Ellen Van Volkenburg, Maurice Browne, the holder of the English right to "Green Pastures," said he did not intend to take issue with the judgment of the lord chamberlain, Lord Cromer. His only hope, he said, lay in obtaining church influence. Consequently, in the near future, he will seek a reversal of the censor's decision.

When Madame Has 101st Birthday, It's Just One of Work

PARIS, Jan. 25.—Mme. Helene Delpierre, employé in a Paris book bindery, was startled the other day at suddenly becoming the center of interest of all Paris.

To be sure, it was her birthday. But she had had many of them before, and no one but her immediate factory companions and a handful of neighbors in her modest neighborhood ever paid any attention to them.

However, somebody happened to remark before a bunch of newspaper men that "Mme. Delpierre over in our shop is having a birthday today. Her 101st."

Within a half hour her workroom filled with journalists and Mme. Delpierre, after she had asked and smilingly received permission from her foreman, stopped work and proceeded bewilderedly to answer the questions fired at her.

JOHN M'CORMACK AND YEDUHI MENUHIN ON SUNDAY'S CONCERT LIST

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Although the opera company has gone on its annual post-season gadding way, the Civic Opera house did double duty yesterday, which was more than it was in the habit of doing while the company still was here. Yehudi Menuhin, the famous boy violinist, in the afternoon, and John McCormack, the more than famous tenor, in the evening, made two high spots in a day that was comfortably filled with music.

It has been two years since Mr. McCormack last sang here. Too long a time, for this man is all things to all songs. He is a great artist in the aristocratic, sustained phrases of ancient music, a great artist also in modern mood painting, in the humor and pathos of the songs of Ireland, or in a children's ballad. His programs vary only in detail. In pattern they are always the same, covering a wide range of emotion and style, and in them he is always not only a singer of extraordinary ability and charm but the great story teller of the world. And to hear English sung as he sings it is to know what a wonderfully expressive language it is. He was assisted by Edwin Schneider, his accompanist over many seasons, and Walter Brauer, a pleasant young cellist. The audience filled the house, also the stage.

Young Yehudi continues to be the marvel of the juvenile violinists. One can hardly say that he is troubled with an excess of temperament—he would seem to have less now than when he started—but he has an astonishing gift for putting the right note into the right place and doing it with the ease and tone of a master. The Brahms sonata in G, which he played with Hubert Giesen, was played with a perfection of studious refinement which means first class Brahms playing. This was followed by one of the Viotti concertos, Corelli's "La Folia," and a group of short numbers.

The other side of the loop presented music of various kinds. The Civic orchestra of Chicago gave its first concert of the season under the direction of Eric De Lamarter. It is now in its twelfth season as an association of young musicians who through its means are being developed into symphony players, and in this, quite as much as in past years, it is doing a marked and successful service. A beautifully transparent string tone was greatly in evidence during the performance of the Moszkowski suite in F. The soloist was Ruth Gangursky, harpist, who played the solo part in Widor's Choral and Variations.

This would seem to be the season for meritorious chamber music organizations, and the Budapest String quartet, playing at the Studebaker, assisted in keeping up the high level of the form of musical entertainment. Four fine individual tones that combine into one fine composite tone, great flexibility of phrasing, and expert team work are some of the virtues of this quartet, and these were amplified by the choice of a program that included works by Ravel, Smetana, and Schubert.

Winifred MacBride's piano recital at the Playhouse was visited during one of its more serious items, the Liszt sonata in B minor. As was fitting, it received a serious performance, one where tonal contrasts had received earnest study and technic had been polished to the artist's highest powers. A later section of the program took up a more modern point of view, including among others works by Prokofieff, Otterstrom, and Ravel.

Hamburg Radio Concert.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Radio has claimed a new musical recruit in Dr. Karl Muck, formerly of the Boston Symphony orchestra, who conducted the first European radio concert by the Hamburg Philharmonic orchestra.

The occasion was the opening of the new Hamburg radio hall, and it was the first appearance of Dr. Muck before a microphone. The program was devoted entirely to the works of Johannes Brahms, a native of the great seaport city.

In the broadcasting room sat Dr. Muck's only conductor-pupil, Antonia Brico, of San Francisco, one of the three women symphony conductors in the world, who made her debut in Berlin last year. Later in the season, she plans to conduct one concert with the Hamburg orchestra and one with the Berlin Philharmonic.

Among other musical events of the season was the piano recital of Anton Biliotti, New York pianist now residing in Paris. The event at the Berlin Bechstein hall included some of Biliotti's own compositions.

To Talk of Allenby.

Col. Edward Davis, U. S. A., will speak tomorrow evening before the Military Intelligence association, at the Sherman hotel. His subject will be "Lord Allenby's Campaign in the Holy Land."

Ex-Kaiser to Revive Pomp at Twilight

Begins 73rd Year Jan. 27 as Retired Junker.

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 25.—(AP)—William Hohenzollern will observe his 72d birthday anniversary on Tuesday with only the faintest reminder of the pomp and ceremony which once surrounded him as emperor of Germany.

For the most part, the observance will be that of most any retired country gentleman. In the morning he will attend divine services, later receive the congratulations of his immediate family, and at noon preside at a family dinner.

During the afternoon and evening, however, the day will take on a bit of glamor and glitter which once surrounded his throne. Delegations of German monarchists will be received. In the evening there will be a formal dinner. At that the former kaiser will don the uniform of a German field marshal and the decorations of that rank.

With the exception of his fourth son, Prince Oscar, who is recovering at Potsdam from an operation for appendicitis, all members of the former emperor's immediate family are expected to be here for the anniversary.

While the day will not be observed as pretentiously as was his seventieth anniversary, it will be a more festive occasion than last year when the anniversary was shadowed by mourning for the former emperor's only brother, Prince Henry, and his sister, Victoria Zoubkoff.

The approach of the anniversary finds the one time kaiser in better condition, mentally and physically, than any time since he quit his fatherland thirteen years ago. This he attributes to his woodchopping exercise, now a part of his daily routine, rain or shine.

Among the gifts to be presented is a threefold one from the "Verein Kaiserdank" [Gratitude to the Kaiser society] brought here by Dr. Kracker von Schwartzenfeld, former German minister to Columbia and head of the society. It consists of a fund collected for distribution by the former emperor to needy cases, especially disabled veterans; a list of persons willing to provide free room and lodging to destitute persons recommended by him, and a collection of letters of congratulation from monarchists throughout Germany.

Work as Usual Is Birthday Program for Gen. Foreman

Maj. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, retired, will observe another birthday tomorrow. He will report for work as usual at his law office. No celebration of any kind is planned, he said, except the annual custom of an evening call at his apartment, 1347 North State street, by friends. "I'm old enough to be retired from the army," the general said, "but too young to give interviews on my birthday.

"And how old is that?" he was asked.

"O, well—if you must know—I'm to be 68 years old."

Haven't Time to Beautify? Take the Time, Then

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"O, I haven't the time."

That's the battle cry of women who haven't the pep or the interest, or both, to tend themselves.

The truth is that there is no such thing as not having the time, unless it is for things our hearts are not in the doing of. If you will note, the things that are left undone, except for the beauty things we are talking of, are the things we would rather put off until tomorrow because there is no enthusiasm about doing them at once. The letters we do not write, the people we do not see, the house improvements we do not make, et cetera. We haven't the time to do them because we do not feel like doing them, that's all.

Now, it is the same thing with appearance measures. The day that we get an invitation, when it is imperative that we do some fixing up, we do find the time and we find it in addition to extra duties on that very same day. In other words, if we have the enthusiasm we have the time. If our jobs depended upon it we'd find the time. And, apropos, think of the crowded hours of a girl who has to report to work in a store. And think of the high standard of grooming she has to maintain every day, week in and week out.

I am told on good authority that there are what might be called "personal appearance" detectives, though the trade may not name them as such, whose business it is to happen upon saleswomen unnotified and check up on their general grooming. If hair, nails, dress are not according to demands, the girl is made quickly aware that she had better find the time or her services are no longer required.

The same high grade of efficiency, with the personal self as its outer indication, runs throughout all business women's activities today. These are all women bound to more or less restricted hours. But if they can find t time, certainly the woman at home has it, even though she may have a couple of children and a husband to look after. There's that last half hour of the evening for refurbishing complexion, nails, hair, and teeth.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

H. N.: IT IS ADVISABLE TO have two tooth brushes and alternate their use, so as to have them thoroughly dry. To keep the brush sterile and sweet shake common salt on the bristles and back and hang it up to dry.

D. R.: TWEEZING EYEBROWS will not cause the eyelashes to fall out. Eyelashes fall out as a result of eye strain. Here is a tonic you may use: Yellow vaseline, 2 ounces; oil of rosemary, 15 drops; oil of lavender, 15 drops. Mix thoroughly and apply with a tiny brush.

Accept Last Minute Invitation? Doris Says, "Yes, Of Course"

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Is it wise to make a last minute date?" Bobbie asks. "I did, the other night, and I felt rotten sorry afterward. But it's better than doing nothing, isn't it? And so many girls are doing it."

An eleventh hour bid better than no bid? Yes. Why not?

A marriage was performed within the last month. The bride in the case was the envied girl, if ever there was one. She met the man about six months ago because she had the grace to accept a last minute invitation. A frenzied hostess rang her up at five-thirty and begged her to come to fill in a dinner place, the previously invited guest being too ill to appear.

She was not told that her dinner partner would be a charming youth, with money. She put on her best new dinner frock and made such a hit with the boy next her at the table that now she has a permanent place at a table with him. And, believe it, it is a table one wouldn't mind sitting at! But that's one of those true story fairy tales that do not come up as often as one would have them.

However, the wonder is that the question of a last hour invitation comes from a girl who writes like a modern. Are we elders deluded on the younger womens' actual feelings about such things? We had an idea anything went—so long as it got the girl where she wanted to go. But you see we aren't properly informed on some things.

Still, there is something agreeable about a social code that lets its barriers down to include such acceptances as late invitations. Naturally, it is nicer to be given time to prepare for the event, such as having the proper marcel, manicure, and so on. On the other hand, last minute events so often turn out to be such fun that it is foolish to pass one up just to observe a cold formality.

The point is that nobody cares if you are left at home—and a number may care if you join the group where fun is to be had. One, indeed, may come to care deeply. He may not be the one who extends the invitation, but there's always the opportunity of meeting somebody else to be considered. And girls must get around where their charms and graces may be observed.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"As Quiet as Can Be" Is No Ideal for the Baby Girl

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I have a baby girl just ten months old. She has caused me unending happiness in her health and is all smiling and laughing. She stood up in her crib at eight months and is as happy as can be from morn until night and has never been sick, except for teething.

"But now that she creeps and holds on to furniture and knows what 'no' means I realize that even as early as this her character will begin to form. I am most conscientious about her moral, mental, and physical welfare. Can you aid me? Perhaps she will be as you wrote, a 'little Indian,' but I want her as quiet as can be.

"My child is my life, and I want her to be everything that I have in mind."

Do you see the danger to a joyous baby girl in this letter—in this point of view?

The answer has been sent recommending certain reading to help this intelligent and loving young mother with the "moral, mental, and physical welfare" of her child.

But I'm wondering if I warned her enough of the mistake she will make if she goes forward with the idea of making the baby girl "as quiet as can be" and of trying to fit her to the pattern of everything she has in mind.

You see, it isn't the mother who decides everything her child shall be. It is the child's nature which decides that. It is those qualities of mind, the physique, the individual glandular system, the endowment of native talent, the emotional capacity—that decide what a child shall be.

All the mother can do is to guide her in such a way that she realizes her own potentialities to the full.

A child must conform to its own pattern—to no one else's in the whole world. A child must be active. A great deal of unhappiness has resulted to people both in childhood and maturity because their individuality was thwarted, or trimmed and shaped to fit an arbitrary ideal of quietness and good behavior.

Activity — motion — expression are life.

Personality is sacred.

Let us remember these two things from the beginning.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Our little niece from the city was visiting us. One day, as she watched the men spread a stack of hay out to dry, she could no longer contain her curiosity and asked very politely, "Is it a needle you're looking for?" B. D. G.

Father took four year old Bobby with him on a friend's yacht one day. "This boat makes sixteen knots an hour," the man said boastingly.

Little Bobby then asked, "Who unties them, papa?" M. B.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A Sad Case.

"Both my wife and I have been out of work for some time and have been unable to find anything to do. We had to send our child to my wife's family because we could no longer support her, and now we need clothing which we can't buy. If you could get me some underwear, size 38 or 40, and some wearing apparel for my wife, size 14 or 16, and shoes, size 3½, it would be a great help to us. "J. C."

These people have searched everywhere for employment, are willing to do anything, and thus far have met only with failure. If we can give them the clothing they need they'll be more comfortable, at least, and perhaps their chances of finding jobs will improve with a better appearance.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Answering the Roll Call.

My most embarrassing moment occurred in the gymnasium at high school. I had been to a dance the previous night with my boy friend, John, and the joys of the evening were still lingering in my mind.

Upon answering the roll call, instead of the usual "Here," I replied, "Yes, John."

Was I embarrassed? I have not lived it down to this day, although many years have passed since that fatal moment. M. R.

California and Arizona Call Chicagoans

BY THALIA

NOW that the fashionable population is scattering here and there for winter holidays, it behooves us to look ever and anon across the map to keep up with our townsfellows.

Recent arrivals at Santa Barbara are Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman [Mrs. Craig Heberton gave a luncheon for her at El Hogar, her residence on Middle road at Montecito, one day last week], and the Robert G. McGanns are at their home in Cold Springs road, also in Montecito. Their daughter, Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr., and the latter's infant son accompanied them.

The Burridge D. Butlers of Hinsdale have a recently completed place outside of Phoenix, Ariz., and from its picture it looks most entrancing. It's of the pueblo type of architecture, low and with native adobe walls, plastered inside and out, and has concrete floors, a fireplace of Indian design, a pergola, a roof garden, and patio, and other semi-tropical features.

Stage Magic Turns Chow Pup to Lion for Boy.

Notes on "Pinocchio" . . . husbands and children of several of the league actresses were in the audience, among the most interested being Philip B. Maher and his two small sons, who watched Mrs. Maher from the second row . . . the audience was practically a capacity house—one of the largest that ever attended a Junior League opening . . . one little boy thought the show puppy that was carried out during the intermission was a lion cub . . . the children apparently recognized Doris Winterbotham under her tricky disguises as a fox and then a cricket, probably because her voice recalled the star rôles she's played in other happy shows.

Dr. William Beebe, who is—oh, you know who he is—arrives tomorrow to speak tomorrow night before the Geographic society at Orchestra hall. He's to be the guest of the Burt A. Massees, as also will the Kenneth Parkers who are coming down from Janesville for the lecture. When Dr. Beebe wrote to his hostess to tell her about the time of his arrival, he said: "I'll only be in Chicago for 2 days, but there are 4 things I want to and have been told to see. They are [1] the new planearium [2] the Shedd aquarium [3] the new green room at the Casino [Mrs. Scott Linn adjured him to see that] and [4] the new portrait of Mrs. Barney Goodspeed by Boutet de Monvel." He is to dine with the directors of the Geographic society at the Cliff-Dwellers, and after his lecture the Massees are giving a supper party for him.

Personal . . . the Barney Goodspeeds are going to Castle Hot Springs the end of this week . . . Luther S. Hammond Jr. is badly bunged up from a spill he took last week while he was ice skating . . . Mrs. Cudahy McCormick has gone to Aiken from New York . . . Mrs. Arthur Bendetari, Miss Betty Scriven and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson are giving dinner parties before the opening of "Rebound" at the Goodman tomorrow evening . . . the Winter club skating carnival for the children is to be next Saturday afternoon, and Exmoor is having a carnival the same day, afternoon and evening . . . Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is to be guest of honor at the Wednesday meeting and luncheon of the Friends of American Writers at Fields' . . .

Just learned . . . that Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert P. Lamont are to be guests of honor at the meeting tonight of the Illinois State society in Washington, and that Mr. Lamont is to be the principal speaker . . . that Mrs. Everett Wyman of Lake Forest is leaving some time soon to be with Mrs. Howard Peabody in Palm Beach . . . that a striking trophy for the Chicago Yacht club, in memory of the late Commodore George Owens Clinch, is now being shown in the metal work exhibit at the Art institute [it was done by Oren John Wallace, an Art institute student] and is the gift of Archibald M. Olsson . . . that Mrs. Willing Kirk and her daughter, Janet, are departing in a week or so for a European trip [Janet recently returned from visiting Mrs. Frederic J. Moon in Indianapolis] . . .

Largely Concerning Chicagoans in Indianapolis; Wedding, Too.

Speaking of Indianapolis, I hear that they're having quite a few other Chicago visitors there these days. Elizabeth Smith, the Harold Smiths' daughter, is expected down there tomorrow to visit Miss Anne Ayres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic M. Ayres, and Miss Margaret Dawes of Evanston has been the guest of Miss Betty Brown, daughter of the Raymond D. Browns. Also, John Dern II., Jean McLeish's husband, is to be one of the ushers in the Valentine's day wedding of Miss Elizabeth Jane Hasler and Conrad Ruckelshaus, to take place at 88. Peter and Paul cathedral in Indianapolis, with a reception following at the Woodstock club.

Events for the day and this evening include the eleventh annual meeting of the Central Council for Nursing Education at the Foreman bank, the Woman's City club tea for Mrs. William J. Calhoun, John Erskine's lecture at the Latin school this evening, and the Playwrights theater's program of three one act plays at the Goodman.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover had a group of personal friends dining with them tonight. Yesterday they were hosts at luncheon to Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, son and daughter-in-law of the late William Taft. Mr. Taft, who was graduated from Yale toward the end of his father's administration, married Miss Martha Bowers, daughter of the late Lloyd W. Bowers, who was at one time solicitor general.

Vice President Curtis was the guest for whom Mrs. Loose, widow of Jacob Leander Loose of Kansas City, gave a dinner tonight at the Mayflower in celebration of the 71st anniversary of his birth. A huge birthday cake was cut by the vice president. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Gann, Secretary of Interior and Mrs. Wilbur, various diplomats, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark L. Bristol, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Q. Ashburn, and others.

Tales of Woe, Told to Sally, Here for You

A FLOOD of letters voicing appeals for jobs poured into the office of Sally Joy Brown of THE TRIBUNE yesterday. One woman told of making underclothing from old aprons. Another had only one waist to wear. She washed that nightly to be clean when she went out the next morning in her futile search for work.

Sally Joy Brown can only refer these persons to the Illinois Free Employment service, 116 North Dearborn street. But she appeals to TRIBUNE readers to create jobs when they can do so which will provide work for those who haven't it. All offers of jobs submitted to her are turned over to the Dearborn street agency.

Mrs. J. B., wife of a shoemaker who also has worked as a punch press operator, writes that he has been out of work eight months. Last May, she said, they gave up the home they owned and now live in three rooms. They pay $8 a month. There are four children, 8, 7, 5 and 2 years old. She obtains county food rations, but is unable to provide milk for them. Her husband, she wrote, returned to a government hospital last May with tuberculosis. Since September, when he was released, has been unable to find any work other than an occasional job washing windows and peddling bills.

"We are now in very bad shape," she writes, "as we owe three months' rent and our little ones need clothing, especially the two oldest, who must go to school. My husband would be glad to find any kind of work to do. He needs it badly."

A letter from a girl, C. M., whose father works intermittently in a coal yard and whose chief desire is to make enough money to buy his family some coal, follows in part:

"My sister goes to school with torn and ragged clothing. Her shoes have holes in them. I have hardly any clothes decent enough to wear when I am looking for a job. I am 17 years old. Our coal is at an end. We owe a milk bill, the rent and for a quarter of a ton of coal. We need coal so bad. Do you think you could get me a job? Please do."

A neatly written letter from two sisters, the Misses G., says in part:

"Day after day, week after week we have sought employment, but our efforts have been in vain. We have our aged parents and two nephews to support. We are experienced as hotel maids, grocery store saleswomen and elevator operators. Our educational qualifications are: One of us is a high school graduate with two years of college training; the other had two years of high school."

Mr. L. B. writes: "I am not married; thank God for that. My mother is a widow and my sister and five children are living with us. She has been apart from her husband six years and has received no help from him. So you see it actually is mean when I am not working. I am 27 years old and am an ex-cavalryman. I understand horses and can train them or instruct riders. I have an excellent discharge. I can also paint. I have driven for officers in the army and can drive a truck."

BRITISH WOMAN FLYER DROPS U. S. FLAG ON MOTHER'S OLD HOME

New Albany, Ind., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred Bruce, 29 year old British aviatrix, fulfilled the purpose of her round the world air and sea journey today when she dropped an American flag here on the Manx, birthplace of her mother, before pointing her tiny biplane Bluebird III., homeward.

The flag was given her by her mother, Lady Jennie Williams Petre, last Sept. 25, when she left London on her globe circling journey. Mrs. Bruce traveled 17,000 miles and over three continents to carry out a pledge to her mother that the flag would be dropped on the Manx.

After this dramatic gesture, Mrs. Bruce headed her plane towards Columbus, O. There she was to stay overnight. From there she will fly to New York. Thence she will go by ship to London, arriving there about the middle of next month.

ENGAGEMENT

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. George Page Ely has announced the engagement of her sister, Miss Dorothy Weir of Park avenue, to Mahonri Young, painter, etcher and sculptor.

Miss Weir is the daughter of the late J. Alden Weir, artist, who died in 1919, and the late Mrs. Weir who died last month. Mr. Young is a grandson of Brigham Young.

The engagement of Mr. Young's daughter, Miss Cecelia Young, to Oliver Ingraham Lay, was announced recently.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. A. Duer Irving will leave early next month for South Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Dodge have left for Palm Beach.

Notables Hail Young Singer in Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Representative Ruth Bryan Owen tonight heard a protégé, Benjamin De Loache, make his bow in concert.

About 300 of the capital's official and social leaders listened to the singer and their applause called him back five times.

Mrs. Owen became interested in De Loache four years ago through her son, John Bryan Owen. John came to the debut from New York, where he spent this season playing Shakespearean rôles with Fritz Leiber's company.

The young baritone faced Secretaries Hyde, Wilbur, and Hurley, Justices Stone, Butler, and Roberts of the Supreme court, dozens of senators and representatives, as well as the envoys of several nations.

Robed in black velvet, Mrs. Owen was a stately impresario. She presented her protégé and Miss Elizabeth Westmoreland, blonde accompanist.

Most of the songs on the program were operatic—in Italian, German, French, and English. They were followed by Negro spirituals.

Smiling, another son of the Florida representative—Reginald Bryan Owen—stood beside De Loache afterward. The two share rooms in Philadelphia. There Reginald is preparing for college. While singing with the Philadelphia Opera company, De Loache is continuing his studies at the Curtis Institute of Music. There Miss Westmoreland, an Oklahoma girl, coaches singers while studying piano.

Before returning to Philadelphia, De Loache will give three other concerts—one in his home town of Camden, S. C. De Roache won a national award in the Atwater Kent radio audition three years ago.

SUBDEB'S FROCK.

The bolero of this pretty party frock shows the Directoire influence and is one of the latest designs. The shirred waistline, which has a large bow placed at the left side, provides becoming fullness to the hem. The kimono cap sleeves are cut in one with the bolero, and they, with the neck, are quite untrimmed. Pink or blue taffeta would be adorable for parties.

The pattern, 3458, comes in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 27 inch contrasting.

Year's Million in Sight for Miss Bennett

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Constance Bennett's desire to earn a million dollars should at least approach gratification this year.

The starring contract she recently signed with Warner Brothers for $300,000 for two pictures to be made during her vacation of ten weeks sets a new high water mark for movie "pin money," this being entirely apart from her regular weekly stipend from Pathe, where she is under contract. And this stipend in itself is no small matter—it can be taken for granted—although like most stars Constance isn't telling what it totals.

Add to that her percentage from loans of her services made by Pathe to Fox, Warner Brothers, and Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer, and you have a tidy sum representing Miss Bennett's personal earnings over and above the independent fortune she received from her former husband, the wealthy young Phillip Plant.

Constance Bennett is Hollywood's prime example of the child born with a silver spoon in its mouth. The eldest of three daughters of Richard Bennett, stage actor, she is the only one of the trio who has ever appeared on the stage. Samuel Goldwyn took her from a society ballroom for his picture, "Cytherea," and she subsequently came into demand for other silent films.

As a free lance player she appeared in several notable features and her work in "Sally, Irene, and Mary," for M-G-M, brought her a starring contract with that studio. Then her elopement with Phil Plant was followed by retirement from the screen.

When the Plants agreed to disagree Miss Bennett accepted Pathe's offer to return to the screen which had gone talkie during her absence.

Bad Stomach Cause of Bad Skin

Undigested food sends poisons through your whole body, pimples appear in your face, skin grows sallow and muddy and loses its color. Your tongue becomes coated, breath most unpleasant. But these troubles will end quickly and skin clear up if you will start today taking that simple herbal compound known to druggists as Tanlac.

Tanlac contains nothing but herbs, barks and roots which have a cleansing, healing effect on a poor upset stomach. Just a teaspoonful before each meal stimulates the digestion naturally so that you eat what you want without fear of distress. And when your stomach is in good shape again see how much keener your appetite is—watch how quickly skin begins to grow free of disfiguring eruptions. The cost of Tanlac is less than 2c a dose. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

Paris Feet Flit Along in Two-Color Effects

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Shoes are coming into the two color epidemic that is raging all through women's fashions. Hellstern is featuring shoes for all occasions that have contrasting heels, as a pastel colored shoe with a navy blue heel, a light green shoe with dark green heel and a black shoe with a red heel. They are pretty, but not too striking. This house is also making a hit with evening and formal afternoon slippers in two kinds of satin—that is, dull and ciré satin, divided about half and half to make the shoe. A smart walking shoe from this house is shown at the lower right of the sketch. It combines brown crocodile with lighter brown calfskin and laces over the instep.

Perugia is all for strapping up the instep in his spring shoes and the two at the top are so harnessed. They're pastel blue kid.

Food Talk.

So far as foods are concerned we need never wish for spring to come. Our city vegetable markets are full of green, turgid things that seem fresh enough to have just been gathered from some lovely May or June garden.

Shell enough of the peas to fill three cups. Wash and drain. Then toss the peas in as much flour as they will pick up. Melt a level tablespoon of butter in a stew pan and toss the peas in it until they are well covered all over. Add 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 medium sized head of lettuce, washed out but not pulled to pieces, and enough water to come half way up to the top of the peas as they lie in the pan. Cover the pan and simmer peas gently until they are tender—¾ to 1 hour, according to their age and size. Now I know this is not the rule for cooking green vegetables [they are cooked in an open kettle], but the lettuce and the slow cooking make up in flavor for what is lost in color.

American cooks sometimes put mint in peas, but those celebrated European cooks famous for their vegetable cookery never think of such a thing.

Some cooks always put soda in with any green vegetable, but don't in peas. A little soda gives a nice green color, but it contributes an alkaline flavor and spoils the taste. Don't strain the peas before you serve them. Serve them in the sauce that they have made for themselves. It is a sort of green cream, sweet and smooth and very good, indeed.

PINEAPPLE SAUTE.

DATE AND NUT BARS.

—then I saw my Teeth Whiten
3 shades in 3 days

"Years ago I started seeking a way to remove the ugly yellow from my teeth and keep them sound.

"Nothing I used could lift the veil of ugliness. Stain and tartar shamed me. Decay caused pain and dentist's bills. I decided to try Kolynos with its Dry-Brush Technique. A revelation!

"After the first brushing my teeth were whiter. Then I saw them whiten—3 shades in 3 days!"

If you want whiter, sounder teeth, switch to Kolynos. This double-strength dental cream does what no ordinary dentifrice can do... It removes the cause of stain, discoloration, tartar and decay—Bacterial-Mouth. That is why it whitens teeth so quickly.

Everyone who breathes has Bacterial-Mouth. Germs swarm into the mouth and attack teeth and gums. Kolynos gently removes this condition by killing the germs that cause it.

As it enters the mouth, Kolynos multiplies 25 times and becomes a surging, antiseptic foam that permits the famous Dry-Brush Technique.

You can feel this foam work. It gets into every pit, fissure and crevice. It kills germs... neutralizes acids and dissolves tartar ... purifies the entire oral cavity and quickly restores teeth to their natural whiteness, without injury. For 3 hours after each brushing this foam continues to clean teeth and combat germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth.

Make This Convincing Test

Try Kolynos. A half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Within a few days teeth will look whiter. Gums will look pinker and firmer. Your mouth will tingle with delightful freshness. Get a tube from any druggist.

SCHROEDER RACES TO SILVER SKATES TITLE

CHICAGO'S WIN CHAIN BROKEN AFTER 6 IN ROW

Riels Stewart Scores Winning Goal.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Chicago Blackhawks' string of straight National Hockey league victories snapped before 14,000 howling paper throwing patrons last night on the Stadium ice. But the string didn't break until the Hawks, after scoring two sensational goals in the final period, were nosed out by their rivals from Montreal's Maroons, in a five minute overtime session. The final score was 3 to 2.

The finish of the Hawks' hope of clinching the decision into their own goal, came after the extra session had 3 minutes and 20 seconds old. Dennis Ward, the Maroons' right wing, snaked the puck from the Hawks in his own territory and carried it along the ice until within 15 feet of the Chicago goal.

Stewart's Score Wins.

Then Nels Stewart, the Montreal center, who had been busy all night breaking up the Hawks' attack, swept in from the left, gave the puck a jab and sailed it into the net waist high. In the few remaining moments of play the Hawks tried to bring about another tie by sinking long passes from the center of the arena, but all were fanned off Goalie Kerr.

The Hawks started off in exceedingly ambitious fashion. Twice in the first minute of play they bounced hot, bullet like passes off Kerr, the Maroon goalie. Gottselig, Ripley and Bostrom followed with long shots from the middle but the attempts were without profit.

It was an instant after the last of the above mentioned free shots that the Maroons rallied for their first goal in 195. They took the puck off the rebound and passed to the opposition right end. Ward batted to the right side, where after a brief scramble Stewart aimed it into the net.

Ingram's Shot Falls.

As soon as the Maroons had registered Ingram skimmed up the ice and was within a few feet of the net for a terrific shot, but the puck only bounced off Goalie Kerr's shin. Montreal's second point, at 10:45, came after a melée in front of the Hawk net. After a rebound on one shot Stewart passed to Smith and the latter gave it a six foot push that did the business. The shot caught Gardiner on the wrong side of the stable.

Shortly after Montreal had acquired this 2 to 0 lead the spirit of competition rose so high that the boys forgot their hockey manners. Trottier and Abel, who had been ragging one another, got into a face-off and as Referee Wagner dropped the puck, the Canuck forward charged Somers. The chase was chased. A moment later Trottier was put in the penal colony for charging Smith. March also was banished for tripping.

Maroons Play Safe.

The Hawks provided Trottier, the former star right wing, with some chances he hadn't anticipated in this game. He made a dash up to the Maroon net and was dumped so effectively that he dove against the iron goal, injuring his shoulder. A minute later he bounced off the wall and into the Hawks' goal.

The Maroons continued their safety first tactics when the third period got under way. They contented themselves with long wild shots devised to carom the rubber in Hawk territory as much as possible.

Because of the banishments of Trainer Northcott, and Gallagher, the Maroons were embarrassed by a lack of man power, and it was during this time that the Hawks brought the roof with their two tying goals. The first was counted with only four Maroons and a full quota of Hawks on the ice.

Cook Scores First.

The first Hawk point at 11:40 included Cook and March. In one of the wild stampedes in front of the Montreal net March's short pass was rushed in by Cook. The Hawks continued their dizzy skating and finally scored successfully on the Maroon goal. In the close range action Cook passed to Gottselig, whose short flick was driven in by Miller in 14:00. Then the overtime period was staged.

TONIGHT.

SATURDAY.
Chicago at Minnesota.

The annual semester examinations, which now provide a rest period for the basketball teams of the Western conference, find Northwestern the undefeated leader of the 1931 race. Chicago, previously unbeaten in two games, although its victories were each registered by a single point, fell Saturday night before Michigan's quintet, 41 to 15.

This crushing blow to Maroon hopes is discounted at the Midway. Sid Yates, Coach Norgren's best offensive player, and around whom the Chicago attack is built, did not play against the Wolverines. Yates was taken to a hospital six hours before game time, ill with influenza.

Buckeye Offense Fails.

Ohio State may be a more dangerous team on its home floor, but the Buckeye offense collapsed Saturday night at Patten gymnasium after making a championship fight in the first period. Ohio trailed only 14 to 12 at the intermission, but lost, 35 to 22. The intermission was probably the longest on record in conference basketball. Capt. Bert Riel's goal in the final five seconds of play broke a basket, and 45 minutes were required to install a new backboard.

Northwestern may be defeated in the return games with Ohio and Illinois. If not, Minnesota, Iowa or Chicago remain on the Wildcat schedule. A victory by any of these quintets possibly must be classified as an upset on the basis of Northwestern's performances in four Big Ten games. So far, Northwestern has been content, in its offensive play, to use Riel and McCarnes breaking from the corners, and Joe Rieff stationed near the free throw line. Northwestern possesses two natural abilities—height and speed—and these assets have eventually carried them to triumph.

Rely on Speed.

The team does not use block plays to break up opponents' man to man defenses, since sheer speed is sufficient to produce scoring opportunities, or cause rivals to foul.

Three teams—Chicago, Indiana, and Minnesota—have lost only one game each, and of these, Indiana would be the greatest threat to finish on top or at Northwestern's heels, if the Hoosiers did not have a difficult schedule. Chicago hardly can be expected to bear up successfully through nine more hard game, even if Yates is available all that time, while Minnesota, a well balanced team, does not have sufficient power in its defense to come through a champion. However, the Gophers are expected to conclude the 1931 campaign in the first division, in itself an almost unheard of accomplishment.

Illinois continues in the tenth position without a victory. The Illini have lost five games. Wiconsin taking a second conquest Saturday night at Madison, 30 to 20. The Badgers are out of the race with three defeats by Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota.

Ed Chmielewski, Wisconsin captain, finished his college competition Saturday night. The former Lane Tech High school star has been one of Dr. Meanwell's most consistent performers for three years and the Badgers will be hard pressed to finish in the first division.

Denton	2	3	5	225
Scoville	1	4	6	143
Jacobs	1	4	4	153
Jordan	0	5	5	195

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.
1:30—Scoville vs. Jacobs.
3:30—Jordan vs. Denton.
8:30—Hall vs. Reiselt.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The plot thickened into almost a melodrama at the sessions of the world's three cushion billiard tournament yesterday.

Johnny Layton scored the most sensational victory of the meet when he beat Art Thurnblad of Chicago, 50 to 49, in 50 innings. Tiff Denton, the old poker face of the Kansas City cue industry, scattered the contents of the dope bucket in all directions when he defeated Allen Hall of Chicago, 50 to 47. It required 53 innings for Denton to roll up his triumph.

Another hairlifter took place when Dave Jacobs of St. Louis came from behind and nipped Charley Jordan, the Pacific coast champion, 50 to 49, because Jordan was too much of a sportsman to play a safety shot. But these fellows are far down in the second division and the outcome of their match, except for the spectacular finish, doesn't mean much.

Reiselt Still Unbeaten.

So from out of all the turmoil Otto Reiselt, the Philadelphia Dutchman, and not a youngster by any means, will read this morning as he indulges at the breakfast table in fresh stewed rhubarb and his toast and coffee that he is the only undefeated player in the battle for the world's crown.

Layton and Thurnblad played brilliantly when they came together. During a greater part of the match Thurnblad was leading, but his advantage was by the narrowest of margins. He had the greatest opportunity to eliminate Layton entirely from the championship fight when he was leading in the 45th inning by 49 to 45. The crowd stood and cheered for him, but Thurnblad became nervous. The demonstration did not affect Layton. He clipped off five billiards in the last five innings to win by one point. Here's the way the battle was fought:

1 0 0 1 2 1 0 0 1—50.

THURNBLAD — 0 0 0 0 2 0 3 0 2 1 0

Denton's victory came at the end of another stubborn struggle. It was scored on a brilliant shot, after Hall, the favorite to win the title, who at times had trailed far behind, crawled up point by point until he was within 4 points of victory in the 51st inning.

Denton, his ancient green eyeshade tilted at a roguish angle, had a score of 49, and he shot for the winning point.

Hits Four Cushions.

It was a brilliant play. The cue ball clicked on four cushions before it rolled up toward the object ball. The crowd was shouting "Denton wins!" But Denton didn't win on that shot. The cue ball stopped within a sixteenth of an inch of the object ball. For just an instant Denton lost his "poker face." To one close to the playing arena it seemed that Denton said, "O hell! There goes another game!"

When Hall scored on his next shot the count was 49 to 47, with Denton leading. Then Hall played a safety. But, tough as he left them, Denton smashed away at the ivory balls, and

Oimen Wins Ogden Dunes Ski Tourney

Casper Oimen, United States skiing champion and member of the Sioux Valley Ski club of Canton, S. D., yesterday won the fourth annual Ogden Dunes tournament before 14,000. He jumped 168 feet. It was his third victory of 1931.

The champion's first triumph of the season came at Berrien Springs, Mich., while training for the United States championship tournament. He leaped 111 feet, with Guttorm Paulsen of the Norge Ski club of Chicago a close second.

Then came the national contest at the Cary slide, with the title Oimen had won from Strand Mikkleson in 1929 at stake. Oimen jumped 147 feet to retain his crown against a selected group of class A riders.

Move Take-off; Prevent Record.

Oimen's jump yesterday was a foot less than the slide record he established last year. However, a new mark would have been made, but the take-off of the new steel slide was moved back 12 feet to avoid accidents.

Guttorm Paulsen, with jumps of 163 and 157 feet, took second place, with Roy Mikkleson, youthful rider of the Norge Ski club, third. Harald Sorenson of the Norseman Ski club of New York placed fourth.

Strand Tops Class B.

Hans Strand of Berrien Springs, Mich., soared 139 feet to win the class B event against a field of 32 riders. Ole Besseberg of the Ogden Dunes club took second place, leaping 125 and 141 feet in his two attempts.

The point standings:

CLASS A.

Casper Oimen, Canton, S. D.	18.875
Guttorm Paulson, Chicago	18.013
Roy Mikleson, Chicago	17.563

Puzzle: Find the Guest of Honor at This Garden Party

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Quite the most brilliant social affair of the current season in the smart cauliflower set was the dinner at the Madison Square Garden club in honor of James Londos, one of the heavyweight champion wrestlers. That is to say, the dinner was intended as an honor to Mr. Londos. Due to some misunderstanding, Mr. Joe Humphreys, the toastmaster, inferred that the occasion was arranged as a testimonial to himself.

The sumptuous rooms of the Madison Square Garden club were appropriately decorated with sprigs of cauliflower, the guests entering the scene of splendor and extravagant beauty trod on a carpet of rubber checks and, in keeping with the general motif of the occasion, the only eating utensils laid beside the plates were cold chisels.

Mr. Curley Receives.

Mr. Jack Curley, the promoter of wrestling contests, stood at the head of the receiving line, counting the guests with an experienced box office man at his side to double check the tally, as the repast had been supplied on a basis of so much per head. Mr. Tammany Young was thrown out four times, a new world record.

During the evening, at such periods as Mr. Humphreys paused to fortify himself with the costly vianda, there were enthusiastic demands from the far end of the table for a speech by that peerless statesman, Senator Wild Will Lyons, which were presently traced to none other than that peerless statesman, Senator Wild Will Lyons.

At one juncture Senator Lyons reached into his flask pocket and whipped out his pearl handled pistol, a weapon which shoots missiles as large as nickel dill pickles and, flourishing the same, demanded attention.

Hecklers Boo Senator.

A group of hecklers assembled in the entrance then burst into enthusiastic cries of "Boo!" and the senator stalked the length of the table shouting insulting remarks at the hecklers.

After some time the senator yielded to the dirty, rotten, ignorant bums and sat down for a moment. At this the uproar subsided and the senator then whipped up again, yelling, "My friends and fellow members of the great Democratic party."

But an alert cheer leader, perceiving this move, danced before the disorderly element waving his arms and crying, "All right, now; all together, fellows; he is coming out for the second half. I want nine loud rasberries for Senator Wild Will Lyons, the peerless statesman."

They were given with extraordinary cordiality and the senator yielded the floor again to Mr. Humphreys, still brandishing his pearl handled pistol.

Hear Mr. Humphreys.

Mr. Humphreys said, in very small part:

"My friends, wrestlers, members of the six hundred millionaires, sporting writers, and gentlemen, it is a wonderful tribute that you are gathered here to pay to a man than whom I can say without fear of contradiction and I want to tell you right here and now without fear or favor it reminds me of a time when dear old Tex Rickard, God rest his soul, was alive and there, my friends, you can say whatever you want to about him, even if he was a four flusher and a conniver, but he was the world's greatest promoter next to ——.

A voice—He's a liar.

"I see," Mr. Humphreys went on, passing a refined glare in the general direction of his own gaze, which was wavering over a wide area, "I see that we unfortunately have the misfortune to have with us tonight some undesirable characters who do not know how to realize the solemn occasion that we are gathered hers tonight.

Not Like It Used to Be.

"Unlike the days of old, when men were men, and I often think back to those times in the old Garden when the incompar—the infidictumous—the, if I may be permitted to say so—there has never been his equal either as a man or as an evening which we will all remember with a tear in our eye for my friend, Jack Curley, always the same through thick or thin, and I am proud to honor him with my presence on this festive occasion, for which, needless to say, I thank you one and all, as a fitting tribute to my forty years of fearless sportsmanship, square dealing, and integrity, bar none."

Orchestra Helps Out.

At this point, there was a diversion of the slum quarter of the table where Mr. Izzy Kaplan, the photographer, was assembled. Mr. Kaplan had drained a cask of near beer and was now playing the same like a flute with attendant sounds not unlike those which ill-bred persons create in sucking the pith out of a hollow T-bone.

When the last sad strains of this piece ware yet vibrating through the

Eddie Schroeder, 19 year old s of the Walton Arrows, raced to a d cisive victory in THE TRIBUNE'S fi teenth Senior Silver Skates Derby yes terday afternoon at Garfield park More than 60,000 lined the banks o the lagoon, or thronged the vantag points on the park's buildings whe the concluding event of the two da program was held.

Schroeder, after holding back fo eight of the 12 laps, came on to vic tory with a stamina which could no be denied. His triumph completed th 120 points the Walton club scored i the seven Derbies and secured posse sion for one year of the Walter J Eckersall Memorial team trophy.

The Norwegian-American skati finished with 110 points, while the La View A. A. of Elgin, Ill., Byrne Fie and Orr playground of Chicago tied i third position with 90 points each.

Weather Conditions Improve.

Weather conditions, while not pe fect, were superior to those on Satu day when 1,186 boys raced in the pr liminary heats of the three age divi sions under 16 years. A crew of park workmen scraped the surface of the ice yesterday morning. At noon the wind shifted from the south to northwest and clouds obscured the sun Lower temperatures prevented formation of pools of water, and although the ice was soft, the course presented a true test for the competitors.

Schroeder's conquest in the unlimited division, the goal of all skaters, marks him No. 15 in the succession of champions crowned yearly since 1917. He was the best in the field. Frank Stack, probably his most dangerous opponent, was forced from the Derby by an attack of influenza. Art Peters and Ray Wondra also were unable to compete. Peters' knee was injured last week at Minneapolis. Wondra's nose was broken in a collision while training.

Reed Wins Lap Prize.

Schroeder skated in fourth position during the early laps of the two mile race. Bob Reed, who has competed in every senior Derby, set the pace, and with four laps to go led by 150 yards. Then Schroeder swung into a faster stride. Coming in closer to the inside of the track, he pulled up and passed Reed with a lap and a half remaining. He won by 75 yards but Reed, who already had taken the lap prize, held on to earn second place and was rewarded with silver plated skates.

Al Kucera of the Henry A. A. won the bronze skates. Dick McCarter [Majestic S. C.] finished a foot ahead of Harry Littlefield [Cullen A. C.] for the gold medal fourth place award.

Thrilling Intermediate Race.

The one mile boys' intermediate Derby was the best race of the afternoon. Len Larson [Northwest S. C.] and Eddie Stundl [Majestic S. C.] came down the stretch side by side, matching stroke for stroke. With the cheers of thousands spurring them to impossible effort, it seemed they would finish in a dead heat. But in the final spurt, Larson pitched headlong over the finish line and won by as narrow a margin as ever decided any event.

Thus Stundl failed to win his third pair of silver skates. He had captured the 1927 juvenile and the 1929 junior Derbies. No contestant ever has won three pairs of silver skates.

Alfred Oskilanec (Tilden Tech High school) was third, with Wallace Fee Jr. fourth and A. Anderson fifth. Oskilanec won the gold prize for leading the race the greatest number of laps.

Miss Thiel Victor.

The victory of the Walton Arrows belonged equally to Eleanor Thiel, who led the field home in the girls' senior Derby. She also won the gold medal lap prize. Miss Thiel was easily the best of the finalists. She stumbled and fell 100 yards from the finish line. However, she had time to recover without losing the event.

"John McGraw, Terry McGovern, George M. Cohan, Stanley Ketchel—I have known them all and any low down, ignorant phoney and I don't care whether he be a president of some millionaire corporation or a bum in the gutter, it makes no difference to me because when the Great Umpire calls we are all one and the same without any distinction, absolutely, until we come to my friend and pal, Bill Carey, the president of Madison Square Garden, a squarer square shooter you never met, without fear or favor, and I will look any man in the eye right here and now, with my record of forty years of faithful service announcing fights for all the champions as they come and go and I might say that the most of them were a lot of fine fellows, but plenty of them were phoneys and bums, at that, as you will all, I am sure, uphold my fearless judgment."

Trio of Authors Arises.

The Messrs. Charles A. MacArthur, Gene Fowler and Ben Hecht, authors of novels and plays, whose social ambitions had impelled them to crash the gate, arose at this point and started a cheer which was soon put down by the invited guests with the alma mater song of Madison Square Garden, "He's a Bum!"

In this song, the first word is interchangeable and it runs:

"MacArthur is a bum; MacArthur is a bum!" or "Fowler is a bum; Fowler is a bum!" It was written in honor of Jack Delaney some years ago and like the "Good Night!" song at Yale, is adaptable to almost any subject unless, of course, some one comes along with a name like Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria. The meter is flexible, but it is difficult, even so, to fit in too many syllables.

At 2 a. m. one of the guests, a bum, no doubt, was starting home with a cluster of about fifty toy souvenir hats, collected from the dining places, strung together, by the elastic chain strings.

Again Mr. Humphreys.

Mr. Humphreys was still on his feet acknowledging the honor which this turn-out of the wit and chivalry of all that was highest in sportsmanship in the Empire city of the world, ruled over by that faithful little pal and square-shooting friend and the next President of the U. S., Jimmy Walker [cheers] had done him when another guest espied the guest who was starting home with all the trick hats strung together in the elastic strings.

By this time, the barriers of formality had been burned away by the fires of fellowship and enthusiasm, and Mr. Kaplan, emerging from his keg, inquired:

"Vot hissit; you should stealink hall de hets from hall de customers?"

"I am taking these home to my kiddies," the other guest said.

"Feefty hets he is takink home to his keeds," Mr. Kaplan exclaimed, diving back into the keg. "He has feefty keeds. He is not a man, he is Herrink."

Just Before the Wagons.

A dainty collation was served, followed by nonalcoholic fruit punch from a recipe by Mrs. Ella Boole of the W. C. T. U., and just before the patrol wagons called to take the guests home, Mr. Humphreys again thanked the assemblage for the appropriate honor which they had done him, which was only a deserved honor, as he said, and a trifle delayed after all, without fear or favor.

The guests departed to the cry of Senator Wild Will Lyons, the peerless statesman: "My friends, we are gathered here tonight——"

Also present was Jim Londos, champion heavyweight wrestler.

Athletic activity at Northwestern university will be at a standstill for the next two weeks. Mid-year examinations get under way on the Evanston campus today. Basketball practice will be abandoned until after the exams. Meanwhile Coach Dutch Lonborg will await returns to find if the exams will deprive him of any of the players who have carried the Wildcat through the season so far without defeat.

Chicago Yacht Club Receives Clinch Trophy

A memorial in the form of a yachting trophy, perpetuating the achievements of the late George Owens Clinch and presented to the Chicago Yacht club by his friend and sailing partner, Arch M. Gibson, was announced yesterday by Vice Commodore Hollis E. Potter.

For seventeen of the forty years Mr. Clinch sailed the lakes Arch Gibson accompanied him as his sailing partner on the steel yawl Arcadia. The tribute to the memory of Mr. Clinch was announced by Mr. Gibson at a dinner given to a group of veteran yachtsmen at the Belmont hotel, many of whom formerly sailed on the Arcadia.

It was Clinch who led yachtsmen on the first cruises of the North channel and the then uncharted waters of Georgian bay, and as these sportsmen's paradises were gradually exhausted he increased his radius of sailing to include every port on Lakes Michigan, Huron, and Superior. The trophy, which bears his name, is deeded as a prize for the cruising division of yachts. There are no strings attached to the award other than that it shall be kept in continuous competition.

The trophy was designed by O. J. Wallace and executed under the guidance of Emil Zettler, both of the Art institute, where it is now on exhibition. It is a definite departure from the classical cup idea and represents the designer's interpretation of Arcadia cruising the waters of the western lakes, the four winds, the sea, and the science of navigation. Mr. Wallace has worked out these elemental conceptions in the substructure, while on the top stands a model of the steel ship, close hauled on the starboard tack. The whole is done in silver with the burgee of the Chicago Yacht club on one side and Mr. Clinch's private signal on the other.

230 POUNDERS PULL AND PUFF ON MAT TONIGHT

Matros Kirilenko, an ex-Russian Cossack, will have experience on his side when he meets George Zaharias of Colorado in the windup of Doc Krone's wrestling show tonight at the 202d Coast Artillery armory, Broadway and Thorndale.

Zaharias, a comparative newcomer to the mat game, will match Kirilenko's weight, however. Both will come in at 230 pounds.

Frank Brunovicz of New York, who has won three matches in Chicago, will try for his fourth victory over Fred Grobmier, Iowa scissors expert.

Former college students will appear in two of the bouts. Lloyd Burdick, University of Illinois graduate, will take on Ben Ginsberg of New York. Billy [Barefoot] Evans, an Indian, who used to play football for the Northeastern Teachers college, Tahlequah, Okla., will meet Wild Bill Nelson of St. Louis.

BUCK FIGHTS FOR FAVOR OF DOE, BUT SHE LEAVES

Fickle Lady Deer Can't Be Bothered.

BY BOB BECKER.

The ladies leave 'em flat when they get into trouble. When two buck deer clash in a thrilling duel to win the favor of a doe and the former get into trouble by locking their horns in a tangle which they cannot pull out of, the fickle lady deer for whom they fought leaves them to their fate. This is the evidence which the snow in the northland and the dead bodies of exhausted bucks tells about the inconstancy of the lady deer.

Several of these stories have come to light since the close of the last deer hunting season in Michigan.

One of the most interesting records concerning the death of two beautiful bucks who fought and locked their horns with the result that both died from exhaustion and starvation revealed how a sleek, lovely doe was standing near by watching these two battle for her favor. The doe already had a young buck paying court to her when an older, heavier buck, which had been following the two, charged through the alders and attacked his younger rival. Then followed a battle which ended in tragedy. Nearly every detail of the fight was outlined in the snow and read by a game warden.

First one and then the other would back up, trying to pull his antlers from the interlocking mesh which held the two bucks together. Hour after hour they threshed about, getting weaker and weaker from their struggles. Nearby the snow told how the doe watched this conflict, walking around ready to accept the victor as boss. Then she left.

When the warden arrived both bucks were dead although the body of the larger, older animal was still warm. The animals were unable to unlock their horns so they died together fighting for a lady.

Jordan won't play a safety shot. It isn't his idea of the game. If he had played a safety in the 71st inning he no doubt would have beaten Jacobs. He needed but 1 point. Jacobs needed 2 billiards. Jacobs played a safety and left almost an impossible shot for Jordan. The latter with a safety shot could have left Jacobs in a position just as difficult.

But Jordan smashed into the ivory balls and whizzed them all around the table. He missed by a very narrow margin and when the balls stopped rolling Jacobs was face to face with a setup shot. He made it and was again in perfect position. The last one was easy.

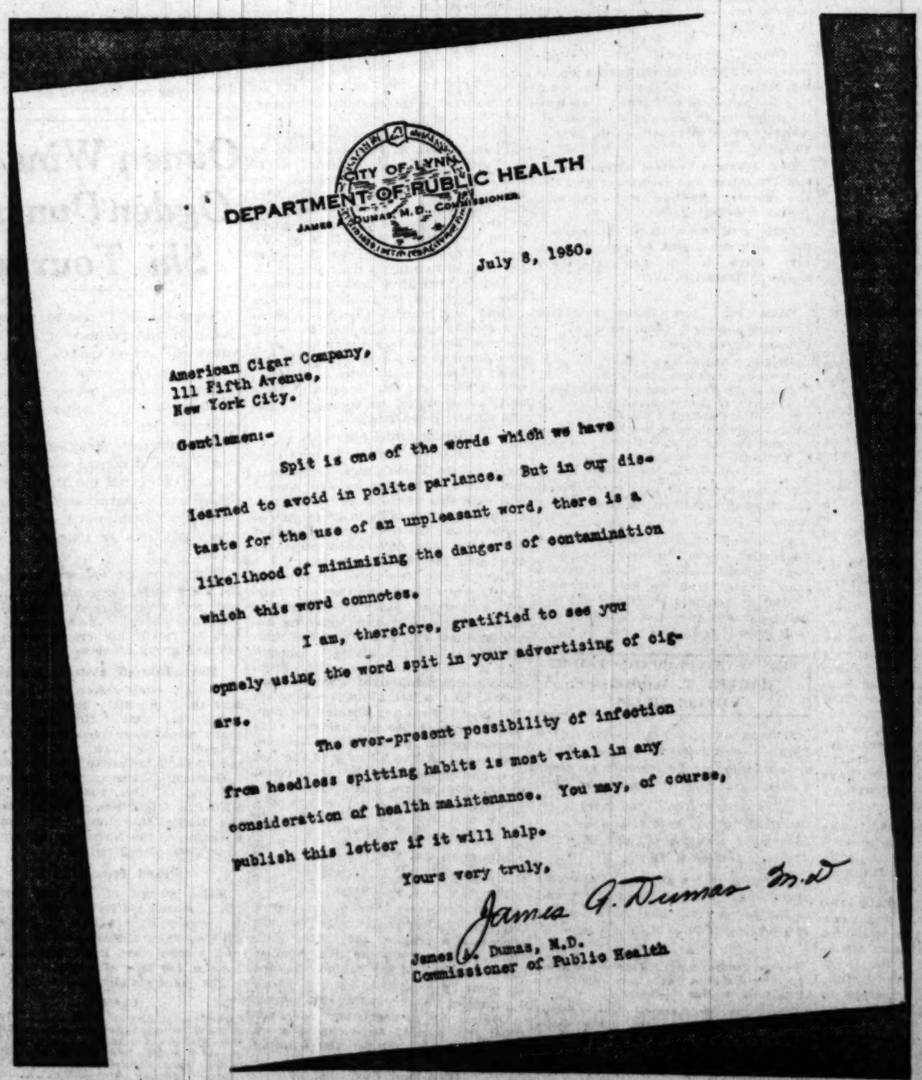
"I Am Gratified to See You Openly Using the Word 'Spit'"

Says

DR. JAMES A. DUMAS

Commissioner of Public Health, Lynn, Mass.



CITY OF LYNN
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH
JAMES A. DUMAS, M.D., COMMISSIONER

July 8, 1930.

111 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

Gentlemen:-

Spit is one of the words which we have learned to avoid in polite parlance. But in our distaste for the use of an unpleasant word, there is a likelihood of minimizing the dangers of contamination which this word connotes.

I am, therefore, gratified to see you openly using the word spit in your advertising of cigars.

The ever-present possibility of infection from heedless spitting habits is most vital in any consideration of health maintenance. You may, of course, publish this letter if it will help.

Yours very truly,

James A. Dumas M.D

James A. Dumas, M.D.
Commissioner of Public Health

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Dumas' letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Dumas writes: "The ever-present possibility of infection from heedless spitting habits is most vital in any consideration of health maintenance."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

BETTY ROBINSON INJURES ANKLE

Betty Robinson, women's Olympic sprint champion, tore the ligaments in her ankle Saturday night when she slipped on the ice covered steps of her sorority house in Evanston. Betty, who is a co-ed at Northwestern university, has been training all winter under the direction of Coach Frank Hill at Patten gym in preparation for the indoor meets scheduled next month. The injury will curtail all track activity for at least two weeks.

Aurora Team First to Enter Golden Gloves

Owen Nelson, of Aurora, Ill., has entered the first team in THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves boxing tournament. Nelson, who sponsors an athletic club, was so enthusiastic over this year's tournament, the fourth of the series which names a Chicago team to fight the winners of the New York elimination meet, that he wrote for information before the first entry blank was printed.

The Aurora team will compete in the sectional bouts at Ashland boulevard auditorium, Feb. 16 and 17. Nelson has entered six boys, as follows: Theron Kies, 118 pounds; Frank Miller, 126 pounds; John David, 135 pounds; George Franzen, 147 pounds; Howard Metzger, 160 pounds, and John Banks, 175 pounds.

Finals at Stadium March 11.

Two boys will qualify at each weight in each of the three Chicago sectional tournaments. These successful fighters then will meet the winners from 15 cities at the Coliseum, the semi-final and championship bouts being reserved for the Stadium on March 11. Following is the schedule of sectional meets with the dates when entries close:

Ashland auditorium—Feb. 16-17; entries close Feb. 9.

White City—Feb. 23-24; entries close Feb. 16.

A map of Cook county is printed this morning indicating the divisions for the tournaments. Boys living outside of Cook county should enter the nearest section. If a team has several good fighters in the same weight, it is permissable to divide them so they will not fight against each other in the first qualifying rounds. All bouts, in each section, are arranged by lot.

Must Use Correct Names.

A trophy will be awarded to the team scoring the most points in the finals at the Stadium.

Many of the entries probably will not belong to a club. It is advisable for these boys to remember ring names are not permitted. Correct names, ages and addresses must be given. Boys 16 years of age and over are eligible. All must be members of the Amateur Athletic union. Registration cards may be obtained from Capt. Roy E. Davis, 538 South Clark street, Chicago, on the payment of a small fee.

GOLDEN GLOVES SECTIONALS

Lake Forest Ex-President Mastoiditis Victim.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—[Special.]—Dr. Richard Davenport Harlan, retired educator, and son of the late associate justice, John Marshall Harlan, of the United States Supreme court, died three days after his wife died suddenly. He was president of Lake Forest college for six years.

Dr. Harlan had been ill two weeks with a cold which developed into mastoiditis, which caused his death. Mrs. Harlan, while enroute to the hospital last Wednesday, was stricken with apoplexy, causing her death. On account of his serious condition, Dr. Harlan was never informed of the death.

Funeral Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Dr. Harlan will be held at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, which the late Justice Harlan attended for many years, on Tuesday morning. Interment of the bodies of Dr. and Mrs. Harlan will be at Rock Creek cemetery.

Dr. Harlan is survived by one brother, John Maynard Harlan of Chicago, and two sisters, Miss Laura Harlan, who was social secretary at the White House to Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Coolidge, and Miss Ruth Harlan, both of this city.

Princeton Valedictorian in 1881.

Born at Evansville, Ind., Nov. 14, 1859, Dr. Harlan was educated at Princeton, graduated in 1881 as valedictorian of his class. He received his A. M. degree at Princeton in 1884, graduated from the Princeton theological seminary in 1885, received his D. D. degree from Princeton and his LL. D. degree from Union Theological seminary in 1904. Dr. Harlan on June 5, 1889, was married to Mrs. Augustus M. Swift, who was formerly Miss Margaret M. Prouty of Geneva, N. Y.

He was ordained in the Presbyterian ministry in 1886, in which year he became pastor of the First Presbyterian church, New York City, serving in that capacity until 1890, when he went to the University of Berlin to pursue special theological studies. He became pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, Rochester, N. Y., serving until 1901, when he went to Lake Forest.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Walkout

MEADOWCROFT, THOMAS EDISON'S "BOSWELL," ILL

Wizard's Aid 50 Years Victim of Grippe.

Boonton, N. J., Jan. 25.—(AP)—A man who for half a century has submerged his own scientific genius in his devotion to Thomas A. Edison lies seriously ill tonight.

WILLIAM H. MEADOWCROFT. [Acme Photo.]

A short, white haired man with a slight English accent, William H. Meadowcroft has reached his 78th year. For nearly fifty years of his life he has been called a Boswell and even more to the inventive genius of the age, and until he was taken down with grippe two weeks ago was engaged in his "spare time" in compiling a detailed chronicle of Edison's works.

To Meadowcroft, Edison is "the old man." The intimacy which such a designation conjures has been in the making since 1881.

Schooled in England and America, Meadowcroft was admitted to the bar in New York just a few months before he began the work which has been his life with Edison. In the earlier days he did much experimenting and has been called the first exploiter of the miniature electric lamp such as is used in telephone systems.

More fame came to him, however, with his development of the first electric display signs. He toyed with little square lamps and there evolved the beginning of a new phase of advertising. Later came experiments with the X-ray and with liquid air.

AUTO CRASHES ROAD BARRIER; 1 DEAD; 1 HURT

Plunges on 75 Feet, Upsets in Ditch.

One man was killed, and another critically injured last night when their automobile crashed through a black and white barrier marking the end of the Elgin-Evanston highway at Waukegan road, near Glenview. Thomas Lunde, 50 years old, 4054 North Hermitage avenue, was killed. His companion, William Labinsky, 55, of the same address, is in the St. Francis hospital, Evanston.

Lunde and Labinsky were driving east in the Elgin-Evanston highway. At Waukegan road is a large obstruction warning drivers the pavement extends no farther. The driver, believed to have been Lunde, apparently failed to see the barrier. His car ripped through it, bounded along 75 feet, and overturned into a ditch. J. J. Ryan and S. D. Miller of Glenwood heard the crash and took the men to the hospital.

This and four other deaths raised the cook county motor toll to 94 for the year. The victims:

Walter Kendgarski, 38, years old, 1732 North Lincoln street, a machinist. Fatally injured while waiting for a street car at 1679 Milwaukee avenue, when he was struck by the machine of Vernon Kohler, 17 years old, 3248 North Kolmar avenue.

John Dolan, 70 years old, 4948 West Kinzie street. Died in St. Anne's hospital of injuries received on Dec. 12 when struck by a hit and run driver at Augusta boulevard and Long avenue.

Unidentified man, about 40 years old. Died in the Jackson Park hospital. He was injured on Saturday by the automobile of Robert Ramsey, 277 15th avenue, Hammond, at 98th street and Ewing avenue.

Frank Koscenda, 32 years old, 2212 Gunderson avenue, Berwyn. Died in the Berwyn hospital of injuries on Saturday when struck by the car of Edward Janda, 4029 Rose avenue, Lyons, in Berwyn.

RAIL OFFICIALS HUNT CAUSE OF WRECK AS 5 DIE, 20 ARE HURT

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 25.—(AP)—Officials and engineers today surveyed the wreckage strewn roadbed of the Southern Railway near Helenwood, Tenn., in an effort to determine the cause of the derailment yesterday of the Chicago Florida bound Tuwanee special which resulted in the death of five persons and injury to more than twenty others.

The wreck occurred shortly after noon on a curve in a mountain pass while the train was traveling at high speed. Passengers said they believed the engineer was trying to make up time, but Southern officials today declined to comment on the cause of the accident.

The dead were: H. A. Lindle, engineer, Somerset, Ky.; C. A. Sexton, fireman, Sunbright, Tenn.; Mrs. Charles E. Rinehart, San Diego, Cal.; Mrs. Annie Belle Baggett, Macon, Ga., and Mrs. Logan O. Cowgill, Indianapolis, Ind., and Tampa, Fla. BELLBOY WHO SERVED LINCOLN IS DEAD AT 88

A man who knew Lincoln died yesterday in the German Deaconess hospital. He was Sebastian Miller, 88 years old, who succumbed to injuries he received on Nov. 20 when he slipped on the back porch of his home at 3004 South Wells street and suffered a fracture of his right leg.

Mr. Miller came to Chicago when he was 7 years old. At the age of 14 he was employed as a bellboy in the old Tremont house, which was frequented by notables of the period. Lincoln was frequently a guest at the hotel and Mr. Miller served him.

Later Mr. Miller became engaged in the cooperage business. In 1890 he was superintendent of streets for the city and four years later he was collector for South Town. His son, George J. Miller, is an internal revenue agent.

CANADA WHEAT SURPLUS SET AT 300,000,000 BU.

Importing Nations Can Fill Needs.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Canada is credited with having a surplus of over 300,000,000 bu of wheat. There are also large surpluses in Argentina and Australia, particularly the latter.

It is estimated that these three countries have sufficient surplus to satisfy the bulk of European import requirements for the season, and, with the help of Russia and South Africa, an impression prevails in the grain trade that importing countries will have no difficulty in securing all the wheat required.

As wheat raising in Canada, Australia, Argentina, and Russia has developed faster than in other countries, and it is known that grain can be raised there cheaper than in the United States, the latter nation has been practically sidetracked as an exporter and is considered as on a domestic basis.

Need Acreage Cuts.

Recent developments are regarded by close observers as indicating the necessity of a generally reduced acreage in all grains and the question is, what is American agriculture to do with its vast acreage and its inability to compete profitably with other large countries?

These conditions, combined with farm board operations in wheat, have placed American markets in a position by themselves. Land and labor are considered by some too high in relation with Argentina, Australia, and Canada, and there is also a movement on for an increase in import duties to keep out foreign grains.

Argentine corn is being offered at eastern seaboard ports at lower prices than American, and Canadian rye is almost on an import basis.

To make the agricultural situation in the United States more unsatisfactory grain traders say that the market is hampered with government restrictions, and, above all, has to compete with the government in the grain trade. The Farmers' National, a government coöp, it is claimed, is operating with government money and the government has held wheat values up to a level where a greatly increased consumption and practically a crop disaster, it is claimed, are necessary to put the market on a healthy world parity.

Chicago Above Liverpool.

With prices in Chicago far above those in Liverpool, export business is impossible. The farm board, however, has arranged with millers to give them wheat on a July basis to enable them to fill export sales of flour, the wheat to be returned by millers by Sept. 15. This, it is said, will help millers in the southwest, where prices are lowest, and they are understood to be willing to accept a moderate loss to enable them to maintain their flour brands in foreign markets.

A feature uppermost in the minds of the trade is the uncertainty as to what the farm board will do with its 230,000,000 bu of cash wheat and futures and where storage room will be secured for the new crop. Farm board members are understood to have given their opinion that May wheat in Chicago would be maintained at the July level, also that their intentions as to July will be announced after the middle of April. Traders, however, say that they fear a change in the farm board's policy, and that should they decide to liquidate their big holdings there would be a break in values that would surprise the world and possibly carry all grain prices down to a lower level than the trade has known.

It is this uncertainty combined with the extremely bearish sentiment prevailing the world over that makes speculators and investors timid about entering the markets on either side. They are also frank to say that the whole grain situation is so bearish that it offers nothing to induce the general public to come in on the buying side despite the fact that prices are the lowest in years, being so low that even professionals are reluctant

Savings Show Big Increase During 1930

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 25.—One of the outstanding developments in banking during 1930 was the increase in savings banks deposits which took place all over the country. Final figures for the net gain in savings deposits are not yet available for many states, but reports received from leading centers indicate that substantial advances were experienced.

In New York state savings deposits increased more than $400,000,000 during the year, advancing to $4,793,750,000 as of Jan. 1 last, compared with $4,391,294,000 a year before. The advance lifted aggregated deposits of the 149 savings banks in the state to the highest level in history. Of the gain a substantial portion was accounted for by the rise of $365,089,000 shown by savings bank deposits in New York City during the year.

Advance Explanations.

Several explanations have been advanced by bankers for the unusually large gain in savings bank deposits last year. It has been pointed out that during periods of depression it is the tendency of the public to save more than during periods of prosperity, when the emphasis is more upon spending. In addition, a large amount of funds which went into the purchase of securities during 1929 was placed in savings banks during 1930.

A factor which had much to do with the expansion of savings bank deposits in New York City, however, was one in no way related to the savings of wage earners and small capitalists. This was the heavy influx of corporation funds. When money rates fell below the level of 4½ per cent which was generally paid by savings banks, business men and others who had funds to invest found that a more profitable return could be secured by placing their funds with various savings banks than by investing in high grade securities.

Open Several Accounts.

Savings banks are forbidden by law to accept more than $7,500 deposits from any one individual, but persons who had larger amounts to invest circumvented this regulation by placing the full limit in each of a number of savings banks.

This development has been a source of concern to savings bankers and to the state superintendent of banks, and has resulted in certain measures designed to retard it. Last fall a number of savings banks reduced the rate of interest paid by them from 4½ per cent to 4 per cent, in the hopes of discouraging some of this nonsavings money.

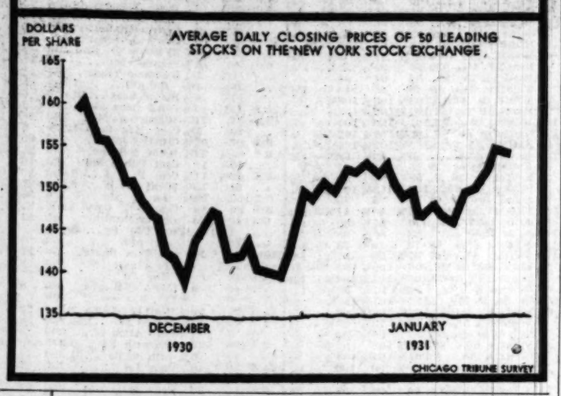
The company's bond investments, based on their Dec. 31 market values, aggregate $45,709,692, divided as follows: County and municipal, $13,453,122; railroad, $12,064,750; government, $8,823,380; public utility, $4,320,560; state and province, $3,693,980, and miscellaneous, $7,674,460. During the year the company increased its holdings of stocks by $3,723,560, bringing its total stock investments to $51,100,734. The financial statement showed total assets of $116,896,125.

STOCK MARKET PRICES WERE HIGHEST SINCE THE FIRST WEEK OF DECEMBER



AVIATION TRUST REPORTS PROFITS OF $3.25 A SHARE

Aviation Securities corporation reported net profit for 1930, including $1,228,617 profit on the sale of securities, of $489,119 after federal taxes and other expenses, also after the deduction of $741,987 for writing down of listed stocks to the lower of cost or market and adjustment of unlisted stocks.

This is equal to $3.25 a share on the 150,500 shares, and compares with a net loss of $1,189,075 after expenses and adjustment of securities in 1929. Net assets, exclusive of 35,156 shares of the company's capital stock, valued at the lower of cost or market as of Dec. 31, were equal to $18.62 a share, against $13.74 a share at the close of December, 1929.

The report of 1930 shows the corporation has an interest in only three companies related to aviation industry as against an investment position in thirty-four other corporations. The stocks of all three aviation companies are listed on the New York Stock exchange. A year ago the holdings included the securities of about twelve organizations in the flying industry, some of which were unlisted.

Believes Readjustment of Wages Is Not Essential

A thorough readjustment of wages and rents before the current depression has run its course is neither possible nor essential, in the opinion of Moody's Investors Service. It declares that, although wages have been scaled down in most depressions, the decreases in recent times have been much less than the lower cost of living permitted.

Moody's gives the following comparison between declines in wages and in cost of living during various major depressions in the United States:

Period.	Cost of living.	Wages.
1893-1896	— 8.4%	—10.0%
1907-1908	*	— 3.5
1920-1922	—25.9	—14.5
1929-1930	—10.0	†— 4.4

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT IS HAVING MORE THAN USUAL SEASONAL RISE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 25.—When most of the steel that is bought for prompt shipment, which is for shipment at approximately the end of the time required for production of the ingot and its transformation into the finished product, the rate of steel ingot production is considered to be by far the best index of conditions and prospects in the steel industry.

Statisticians averaging various estimates report that steel ingot production in the week ended on Jan. 3 was about 40 per cent of rated capacity and in the week just ended, about 46 per cent, an increase at each point. For next week, to complete the month, they guess the output at 48 per cent. They admit that these estimates may be too high, but the figures represent 44½ per cent for the month, or a return to the 44.64 per cent rate officially reported for November, while December stood at 38.57 per cent.

Assuming 44½ per cent for January to be correct, the experts report that steel is having more than an ordinary or usual seasonal increase. At this time an increase of not more than 10 per cent is the usual thing. Looking at all the years since the war and throwing out those presenting exceptional conditions, they say that January should equal or slightly exceed November, December being the low month, and that February should match or pass October.

In the present case they estimate that steel would be doing particularly well to equal November, as the decrease in production from November to December was more than a seasonal. In fact, each of the last four months of last year reflected poorer general or underlying conditions.

New York, Jan. 25.—Sales of airplanes and engines by the Curtiss-Wright corporation in 1930 amounted to more than $18,000,000, according to a review of its activities made public by the company today.

Orders on hand Jan. 1 totaled about $12,000,000 as compared with $10,000,000 at the beginning of 1930. Export sales of the company last year aggregated more than $3,720,000, estimated to represent more than 25 per cent of the export sales of the entire aeronautical industry.

The Curtiss-Wright flying service transported a total of 221,433 paying passengers in 1930, against 86,589 in 1929. Flying service planes, including those used in instruction, flew more than 7,200,149 miles, the report says. This service purchased more than 1,831,000 gallons of gasoline last year.

The number of new flying students enrolled last year was 2,481, while more than 1,000 were graduated and licensed.

Plan Scientific Research for Illinois Mineral Industries

BY SCRUTATOR.

The possibilities of applying science to the ordinary problems of production and marketing, at least in the mineral industries of the state of Illinois, have hardly been touched.

Sands, clays, gravels, stone, and coal underlie the state in abundance. Yet in the last ten years, despite an increase in population averaging 100,000 annually, the mineral industries, ranking next to agriculture as a wealth producer, have seen their markets shrink. The decline has been most spectacular in coal; it has been almost as serious in other minerals, taken as a whole.

Earnest efforts are now in progress to arrest the state's declining importance in minerals and to turn it back into an upward course. Representatives of the mineral industries, of engineering and business organizations and of the state government have outlined a plan for scientific research to that end. The Illinois legislature is to be asked to appropriate a reasonable sum for the work, and the approval of Gov. Emmerson has been obtained.

Illustrate Curtailment.

Dr. M. M. Leighton, chief of the state geological survey, under whose direction it is proposed that the work be started, and C. C. Whittier of the Illinois Mineral Industries committee has demonstrated why the state's production of mineral wealth has fallen in late years.

They produced charts to show that limestone is hauled in from northern Michigan, that building stone is imported from Indiana, coal in large quantities from eastern Kentucky and West Virginia, and clay from Indiana, Ohio, and Missouri. These directly compete with Illinois resources. Besides, asphalt from other states and natural gas are displacing or soon will displace alternative materials found locally.

"Our natural market, of course, is in our own state," Dr. Leighton said. "It is certain, with the increase in population, that our demands have not been lessened. Building construction in nine middle western states almost tripled from 1921 to 1928. Instead of following a like percentage the Illinois mineral industries showed an actual loss of production, even leaving coal outside the discussion, each year after 1923.

"The answer, of course, is that competitors have taken the business. We propose to get it back by showing how our own products can be used most advantageously. As an instance, we have clays of many kinds. Makers of terra cotta have not yet found one that is at once economical and at the same time wholly satisfactory. We believe that research will show us how to blend different kinds and make the perfect raw material for this product.

Cite Possible Discoveries.

"It is by no means impossible that some one will discover a way in which the glass sands so abundant along the Illinois waterway can be made into pipes that would replace steel. Perhaps there are better ways to prepare coal for the markets, certainly there are improvements to be made in the disposal and the form of coal by-products. We may in time liquefy or powder all our coal. We believe that important discoveries along these or similar lines can be made.

"The plan is to start modestly, let the petrographers subject our minerals to their microscopes and pass their results on to research chemists and research physicists. When the composition and physical properties of the minerals are understood, it will then be in order to suggest the more elaborate experimental plants to bring out the final products."

In 1921 Illinois marketed 254 million dollars' worth of minerals. In 1928 the figure was only 187 millions. The state, for this biennium, is asked to appropriate only $163,000 more than usual for the geological survey. Scientific research of this type is a proper function of government and it can't be bad business to send $80,000 a year after a business that has lost sixty-seven millions in volume.

SWIFT & CO. WILL ADD SOON LINE OF CANNED FRUITS, VEGETABLES

Announcement that Swift & Co. in the near future will add a complete line of canned fruits and vegetables is the first indication from any of the four large packers of any change brought about by the recent modification of the packers' consent decree. Formal announcement came from G. F. Swift, president of the company.

"Swift & Co. now is working on plans to add complete lines of canned fruits and vegetables under the Swift brands," he said. "These will be distributed to the retail dealer through our existing branch houses and over existing car routes by our present force of salesmen.

"It is a matter of gratification to the company that we will be able to use our existing facilities for the distribution, at wholesale, of a more complete line of food products. The fact that a salesman can sell a complete line rather than merely a line of meats means that savings can be effected on distributive costs.

"It is not possible at the present time to announce a definite date for adding these items, but it will be done without undue delay and as soon as details regarding labels can be worked out."

Canadian Production of Autos in 1930 Is 154,192

OTTAWA, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Canadian production of automobiles in 1930 was 154,192 cars, the bureau of statistics reports. This was 41.3 per cent under the record production of 262,625 cars in 1929. The greatest loss as compared with the previous year was the number of export cars, which dropped from 102,382 in 1929 to 45,361 in 1930. Automobiles manufactured in Canada are produced by branches of several United States automobile firms. Canadian law permits the products of these Canadian factories to be exported to British dependencies under the empire preference provisions of the tariff.

NET INCOME OF HART, SCHAFFNER & MARX IN 1930 TOTALS $504,141

Some improvement in the clothing manufacturing industry, following the last lean year, is predicted by Alexander M. Levy, president of Hart, Schaffner & Marx. He made public his annual report last night.

"It is too early to make predictions for 1931," he said. "Retail merchants bought sparingly in advance, but reorders doubtless will show improvement. We are all looking forward for that revival of business which invariably has followed every business depression of the past. Inventories are at the lowest point in fifteen years."

The company had an operating profit of $1,503,141 for the fiscal year ended Nov. 29, 1930, but $1,000,000 was set aside for contingent reserve, which was increased to $1,500,000.

Net income after this deduction was $504,141, equivalent to $3.36 a share on 150,000 shares of capital stock. Dividends totaling $8 a share were paid, or a total of $1,200,000, which necessitated taking $695,858 from surplus, which now stands at $11,671,969.

Net profit in 1929 was $2,514,676, or $16.76 a share. The balance sheet as of Nov. 29, 1930, shows current assets of $14,569,587 and current liabilities of $558,172.

That State of Mind Is More Hopeful.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 25.—Last week was one of those occasions on which no one could be sure whether the rise in stocks had created better sentiment or whether greater financial cheerfulness had caused the market's rise.

Perhaps the influence of sentiment on prices was the stronger last week, as the converse was manifestly true when the "averages" rose 8 per cent in the first week of the year. However that may be, there is now clearly in evidence a more hopeful state of mind. It is doubtless chiefly impressive from its contrast with the utter gloom and despondency of December, but the contrast with the period of reviving hope, exactly a year ago, is in its way more striking still.

Last January's unexpectedly quick recovery in sentiment and in stock market prices was very widely made

SEES INDUSTRY RESPONDING TO REVIVAL SIGNS

But Has Business Really "Turned Corner?"

New York, Jan. 25.—With a definite warning that it would be a mistake to rush to the conclusion that business "has turned the corner," and that it is not yet possible to judge whether the seasonal upturn which has occurred has any permanent significance, the Guaranty survey of the Guaranty Trust company of New York asserts that the rather encouraging way in which the basic industries have responded to seasonal influences making for revival has been the outstanding business development of the opening weeks of the new year.

The survey says also that while it is desirable to avoid unwarranted optimism, "it is certainly no less important to steer clear of the unduly pessimistic views that will surely be expressed in some quarters when 1930 earnings statements come to light."

Encouraging Reports.

"From numerous branches of manufacture and from various sections of the country have come the reports of increasing output and rising employment," the survey continues. "Stock and commodity markets have caught the improved tone of general business—not with any sharp and sustained advance, but at least with more firmness than had been visible for some time previously. Money rates have declined further, and some improvement has occurred in the bond market. On the whole, therefore, the situation is unquestionably better than it was a month ago.

"It would be a mistake, however, to rush to the conclusion that business has definitely 'turned the corner'—that the factors which caused recession to continue unbroken until about the very end of 1930 have, with the turn of the year, been abruptly transformed into favorable influences. Although it appears, at the moment, that the increase in industrial activity has been greater than is usual at this time of year, it remains true that the expansion is mainly seasonal in its nature.

Recalls False Hopes.

"As a matter of fact, it is not yet possible to judge whether the upturn has any permanent significance or not. In the absence of more conclusive signs of recovery than have yet appeared, it may be well to recall the false hopes that were engendered by the even sharper upturn a year ago. Business men in general have become aware that recovery must be slow and gradual process, and that, to the extent that it is slow and gradual, the foundations for future prosperity will be the more securely laid.

"But, with full allowance for the fact that a few weeks of rising activity at the beginning of the year do not necessarily spell recovery, it is impossible to escape the feeling that the recent expansion may be a sign of the approach of better times. Business has passed through a long period of readjustment. Both materially and psychologically, the deflation seems to have been very thorough. In December and January two conditions have appeared that throw a favorable light on the position of consumers—namely: the relatively small decrease in holiday buying and the hearty response of the public to the annual automobile shows."

SAYS CONTAINER CAR SHIPPING OF C. & N. W. GAINS

Container car shipping service, inaugurated by the Chicago and North Western railway last Dec. 3 between Chicago and Milwaukee, is showing marked improvement in January and will show better progress with new rates just put into effect, H. W. Beyers, vice president of traffic of the road, declares.

"Rates are offered on six kinds of shipments: Station to station; station to station, including pickup or delivery; station to station, including pickup and delivery with minimum units of 20,000 pounds in two containers, or with minimum of 15,000 pounds in two containers, or with minimum of 10,000 pounds in one container, or with minimum of 6,000 pounds in one container.

Financial Notes

Lamson Bros. & Co., one of the largest grain and stock houses, with a record since 1874, will open today their new offices on the 22d floor of the Board of Trade building. With the exception of a short period while the new Board of Trade building was being erected they have held an office in the building since 1884, the longest of any tenant.

Eldredge & Co. announces the sale of $2,000,000 of 5 and 5½ per cent bonds of the city of Jacksonville, Fla. The bonds, which mature Jan. 15, 1934 to 1945, inclusive, were issued to refund a like amount of bonds due April 1, 1931. They were sold at prices to yield 4.50 to 4.90 per cent, according to maturity.

The early part of February will bring about redemption of $16,875,000 kingdom of Belgium external loan 20 year 8 per cent sinking fund bonds, the amount outstanding of a $30,000,000 issue offered in February, 1921. Since the bonds under the terms of the contract were noncallable except for sinking fund for a period of ten years, it was pointed out that the operation is being undertaken at the earliest available opportunity.

George B. Caldwell, founder and first president of the Investment Bankers Association of America, has established the firm of George B. Caldwell & Co., with offices in New York.

The municipal financing schedule for this week totals $19,021,247, compared with offerings of $11,193,000 last week, the Bond Buyer reports. The largest single award scheduled is that of $5,639,000 Rochester, N. Y., 4 per cent improvement bonds, set for Thursday. On Monday Atlantic City, N. J., will award a new issue of three million improvement bonds. Issues of one million dollars each will be placed by the states of South Dakota and Illinois.

CREDIT CANADA WITH HAVING BIG WHEAT SURPLUS

Importing Countries Can Fill Needs.

Farm Stocks Liberal.

Farmers are said to have liberal stocks of wheat on hand, Kansas alone having about 40,000,000 bu on farms on Jan. 1, or 8,507,000 bu above the 1927-'30 four year average. In other states farmers also appear to have wheat to sell. Feeding of wheat on farms is understood to be smaller and confined to localities where there is a surplus.

Movement to primary markets, although augmented by liberal shipments from southwest terminals to Chicago and other points, were the largest for the period in five years, and suggest an increase in the visible, although the same conditions prevailed in the previous week, with a decrease.

Open interest in wheat despite a decrease of 28,000,000 bu in sales for the week was 135,235,000 bu, compared with 132,393,000 bu the week previous.

Lowest prices for the week were made at the close, with net losses of ¾c on old crop and 1¾c on new crop July. March closed at 79½c, May 82@81¾c, liquidation being severe, and July 64¾c. Prices follow:

Feedstuffs Situation Bearish.

Liberal supplies and low prices for feedstuffs in this country, also pressure from abroad, is having a bearish influence on American corn markets, and prices are down to the lowest of the season, with net losses for the week of 3@3¾c. March touching 64c, May 65¾c, and July 66¾c, with September 66¾c. The close was ⅛@¼c above the low levels.

Movement from the country while not heavy, is said to be sufficient for consumptive requirements, and another feature is the indifference to speculate the part of the outside trade which usually understands corn better than other interests. Prices for the week follow:

Liquidation in Oats.

Scattered liquidation was on in oats, due to sympathy with the decline in corn. Net losses were 1 to 1¼c, March finishing at 32¼c, May at 32¾c, and July at 31¾c. Farm consumption is said to be above the average, and cash oats are at a discount under May. Primary arrivals were above the previous week's and last year's. Prices for the week follow:

Rye prices are down almost to an import basis in Canada, and trade has dropped off sharply. The open interest of 16,353,000 bu showed little change for the week, and compared with 16,040,000 bu last year. Net losses for the week were 1@1¾c. March closing at 38¾c, May 40c, and July 40¾c.

LARD, MEAT PRICES RECEDE

Liquidation and hedging sales in lard and dry salted clear bellies carried prices for deferred futures lower. Liberal receipts of hogs with prospects of continuance and only fair buying support were leading features. Consumption is a fair average and there is an abundance of product with a steady accumulation predicted. Although January lard was held more firmly at the close and gained 2¼c net for the week, other deliveries were 10@12¼c. Clear bellies met with poor support and closed 20@27½c lower. Prices for the week follow:

CROWD OF 60,000 LINES THE BANKS OF LAGOON AT GARFIELD PARK AS ENTRIES IN SEVEN EVENTS CONTEND FOR HONORS AND PRIZES IN TRIBUNE'S FIFTEENTH ANNUAL SILVER SKATES DERBIES. Ideal weather for the spectators and the fact that the entry list was larger than ever before served to increase interest in the events and bring out the thousands. Eddie Schroeder, 19 years old, was the winner of the senior event for boys, finishing strong after he had held back for eight of the twelve laps. His victory gave the team championship to his mates of the Walton Athletic club, who scored a total of 120 points against 110 rolled up by the Norwegian Athletic club.

FAVORABLE WEATHER CONDITIONS BRING RECORD CROWD TO 31ST ANNUAL AUTOMOBILE SHOW. General view of the exhibition at the Coliseum, where 300 models produced by forty makers are being shown. The 1931 cars show greater ease in operation and the 1931 prices show that many economies have been instituted by the manufacturers.
